The Mercury

VOL. 59—No. 46 Thursday, July 1st, 1976 PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT TOFIELD, ALBERTA

Sold!

There almost seemed no end to the amount of articles for sale at the "Food For The Hungry" auction for Guatemalan relief, held Saturday at the Camrose Auction Mart, and many items were even given back two or three times for resale for the cause. Above, Otto Streberg calls the bids to the huge crowd which attended, including many from the Tofield area. Several from the Holden Colony brought donations for sale. The unofficial figures for the charity drive, as reported Tuesday, are $4,116 made on Saturday's sale alone, and $1,800 in donations so far. Contributions will still be received in Camrose at Safeway and at Burgar Funeral Home.

Dodds farmers to meet minister of environment

Representing the Round Hill-Dodds Agricultural Protective Association, President Fred Gotheridge headed a delegation which met this afternoon with the Minister of Environment, Hon. Dave Russell.

Before the meeting, Mr. Gotheridge said he expected the deputy minister of environment, Mr. T'Henen, and a liaison officer, Mr. Belyea, would also be present in the minister's office.

The government's new coal policy is expected to be central in discussions with the minister, Mr. Gotheridge suggested, while high on the agenda will be the drilling tests being carried out by the government in the Round Hill-Ekalta area.

The delegation will also be continuing its efforts to have full public hearings held by the Environment Conservation Authority before any permits are let to mine coal in the area.

Other subjects which could very probably be discussed during the meeting would be reclamation, groundwater and pollution, in addition to some of the other problems facing members

Holden plans annual Fair

Plans are progressing well for Holden's annual agricultural fair which will be held next month (August).

The Fair is held under the sponsorship of the Holden and District Agricultural Society, and will be held on August 9th.

In addition to the regular displays which are normally shown at a Fair of this kind, some extras will be added. Included at this year's Fair will be a puppet show and Ukrainian dancing.

As well, a steak fry has been scheduled for the evening.

Tofield has Sports Day

Today (July 1) is Dominion Day, and is also the day Tofield has its major sports program.

Festivities kicked off this morning with a giant parade which started at the Tofield Municipal Hospital, travelled through the business section of town, ending at the Fairgrounds, where judging in the different categories was held.

Official opening ceremonies were held at the Fairgrounds with Tofield Mayor, Dr. W.E. Prenbery and Vegreville M.P., Don Mazankowski, as guest speakers.

Baseball and softball tournaments highlighted the day's activities although other events, for both young and old, were also staged, with the day winding up with a giant beef barbeque.

Holden to alter its Main Street

Plans are being finalized which will give the Main Street of the Village of Holden a brand new appearance.

Some of the vacant lots on the street are being land filled, with plans being made to have them fenced with a portion of the lots to be seeded to grass and shrubs for a better appearance.

Park benches will be added to some locales, so that people may stop for a chat and enjoy the fresh air.

There is also a possibility that a "mini-park" will be erected in one of the lots on Main Street. Plans for such a park are presently in the preliminary stages.

Money for the renovation and improvement on Main Street have been made possible by a grant which has been received from the Devonian Charitable Foundation.

The Devonian Charitable Foundation, located in Calgary, assists communities to conduct civic improvements by donating matching grants. In effect, whatever money the local community spends will be matched, dollar for dollar, by the Devonian Group.

Other progress in Main Street improvement can be noted, as refuse barrels are being painted in colourful designs by Brent Christensen, David Schultz, and Gary Kabzinak, under the direction of their teacher Miss Sokolotosky.

C.H. Schaning is the chairman of the committee in charge of Main Street improvements while committee members are Ken Chamberlain, Mrs. Katherine Hurum, Matt Bellrich, and John Semeniuk.

Further information on changes and developments for Main Street will be reported by the committee as plans are finalized.

Kallal Motors tops in softball league

Kallal Motors of Tofield has taken over sole possession of 1st place in the Hi-Way 14 Men's Softball League.

The Tofield team holds a one point edge over Ryley, but, has two games in hand while Bruce trails Ryley by three points with one game in hand.

Holden and Lindbrook are tied for fourth place, following by Tofield Torco with Kingman left in the basement.

Standings	W	L	T	Pts
Kallal's	6	0	0	12
Ryley	5	2	1	11
Bruce	4	3	0	8
Lindbrook	3	3	0	6

Recreation Report

By Laura Lee Ahlahl - Camp Director

"You're Never Too Old To Go To Camp"

You may think you're just too old to go to camp. This is untrue. That's why, this year we are having a senior citizen's day camp.

There's no better way to get away from the hussle 'n bussle of society, than to go to camp and relax.

At this camp, you'll be able to do things you haven't done for years. Go for a swim, take a hike, or sit under a tree and have forty winks. You'll be able to do all this and more, in the peacefulness and serenity of Camp Lake.

If you're a senior citizen and this appeals to you, fill out the registration form in your '76 Summer Program Booklet and mail to us immediately.

Let's Go On A Trip!

After you have gone to camp you can look forward to the Senior Citizen's Annual Bus Tour.

Planning has already begun for the trip. However, we would like to know how you feel about a tour to North Battleford, Saskatchewan? There you will see some of the historical sites in the area and get to see our neighboring province.

If you have suggestions or, if you like the idea of going to Saskatchewan, let us know. Send us the suggestion sheet in the back of the '76 Summer Program Booklet.

REMEMBER - Do It Now!

Safety vs bilingualism

Prime Minister Trudeau on Tuesday pretty well proved the pilots and air traffic controllers were right in their mistrust of government assurances, commenting on the agreement of the pilots to go back to work, with the statement that the settlement proved a victory for bilingualism in Canada. It extends his goal of pursuing bilingualism, he said, if it can be proven that safety in the air is assured.

What's most interesting is that bilingualism, and victory for his policy come first. Ahead of safety. Ahead of national convenience. Ahead, it might almost seem, of national unity.

For across the length and breadth of the land, there has developed a great mistrust of the Trudeau administration, its goals, and its methods. Why, even during the height of the strike by the airline pilots, two more Quebec airports were added to the five which were already declared bilingual by the government. Can anyone wonder why the pilots mistrusted government assurances in the face of such arrogant disregard of the sensibilities or arguments of those protesting, even while the same government assured the pilots they had no reason to doubt the government's promises?

One of the most interesting aspects of this strike was the remarkable strength of public support behind the strikers. It's almost safe to say that in the huge percentage of strikes, there is not too much support and a good deal of opposition to the position of the strikers, and the problems to the general public caused by the strike.

It seems really remarkable, then, that with the considerable dislocations caused by airlines being shut down for nine days, with mail and freight services disrupted, with incomes all across the country being drastically affected, the vast majority of people still maintained their feeling that the pilots were right in their protest, and their strike.

Two wrongs still don't . . .

The anti-inflation board may well have erred recently in insisting on scaling down a salary agreement reached by the Calgary Board of Education and its teachers. But if they did, the teachers displayed no higher level of intelligence in choosing to fight the matter, tooth and nail.

At stake is seventeen cents a month.

Two dollars over an entire year.

So both groups are caught up completely in a matter of pure principle, the teachers pointing out that even if they win, it will cost them a great deal more money to conduct the fight. But the anti-inflation board wouldn't accept the settlement which exceeded allowable limits.

Surely this is one of those witless and asinine exercises, utterly devoid of common sense, which calls into question the intelligence of both parties, and also of the system. It's not even worthy of Don Quixote.

With all the real problems facing the government's attempt to restrain inflation, with all the real problems facing education today, including the teaching force, and with all the complex and even desperate situations facing millions of people in the world today, it is neither right nor practical that these two protagonists should be allowed to square off against each other, tieing up all the human and physical resources that will be needed to bring the matter to a conclusion, while other far more important questions are left untended to.

In a seventeen thousand dollar salary, the seventeen cents at stake represents one one hundred thousandth part.

Pure principle. Pure stupidity.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint

Canadian comment

OTTAWA — (SP) — In the wake of the government fiasco over the decision to buy Orion aircraft from Lockheed as Canada's new Long Range Patrol Aircraft, some interesting things are coming to light.

The deal as it stood was a bad one - because Canada was about to spend far more money than it should have on the LRPA task - but the aircraft itself is excellent and designed for the job. The government went wrong by allowing the Armed Forces to try and purchase much more electronic hardware than was needed. It would have given us probably the best such surveillance system in the world, but did we really need the best, at the cost which was being demanded?

Failure to settle the terms of the Lockheed contract, which had been thumbed over so many times it was dogeared and ready for an old age pension, was a serious blow to Armed Forces morale and a terrific slap in the face to Defence Minister James Richardson.

There were, however, some people in Ottawa who were delighted to see the Lockheed deal fall through. In the cabinet there were ministers like Treasury Board President Jean Chretien and Supply and Services Minister Jean Pierre Goyer who opposed the contract. There were also people in private industry who didn't want to see us spend a bundle that big - more than $1 billion - on patrol aircraft.

McDonnell Douglas Corp., for example, was convinced that if Canada spent more than $1 billion on Lockheed Orions, there wouldn't be any money left to buy new fighter aircraft for the Forces; hence there was lobbying in Ottawa against the Orion deal. McDonnell Douglas wants to sell the F-15 Eagle fighter to Canada at roughly $15 million per aircraft.

DeHavilland Aircraft of Canada is still hopeful that some of Canada's naval aircraft needs might be met with deHavilland DHC-7 planes, and they weren't exactly unhappy when the Orion deal went sour.

Meanwhile the boys who fly those limping, aging Argus aircraft over the Atlantic, Pacific, and Arctic coasts will have to go on gliding out the flight hours with a machine which is rapidly reaching the limits of its capabilities.

Tourism zone favors light industrialization

Major emphasis on agriculture, but light industrialization was favored by about 25 people attending the June meeting of the Battle River Tourism Association on June 17. Held at Consort, the business meeting followed a steak fry hosted by the Consort Chamber of Commerce.

A considerable amount of time was devoted to the proposed Regional Plan prepared by the Battle River Regional Planning Commission. The aspects of the four options presented (ranging from "Agriculture Dominant" to "Industrialization") were explained by members of the committee asked to study the question.

The motion eventually passed indicating that the tourist association "favors option two as outlined in the report with the amendment that the proposed new Edmonton-Calgary Corridor be deleted at this time". Leon D'Albertanson of Wainwright reported further on the Zone Map which is in a final stage of production; and provided various cost estimates on a "winter brochure". It was decided to go for 20,000 full color brochures dealing with winter attractions and activities in the zone at a cost of about $5,300.00.

Members were again reminded that any directional signing problems could be communicated to the Camrose Office of B.R.T.A. With the help of the Alberta Motor Association, direction signs can be erected.

The notice of motion regarding a policy on tipping was dealt with and approved unanimously. The tourist association is now officially opposed to the custom and "urges all businesses in the Battle River Tourist Zone 5 to establish adequate and fair wage practices to publish prices for services and - or products to include all appropriate costs or provisions of same; and to participate in the program to eradicate the custom of tipping throughout this tourist zone."

Aircrew re-union to draw thousands

A gathering of famous airmen unprecedented in history will take place in Winnipeg September 9-12 at the second Commonwealth Wartime Aircrew Reunion.

Sponsors of the event, the Wartime Pilots' and Observers' Association, P.O. Box 1702, Winnipeg, will host a galaxy of civil and military aviation stars covering nearly the entire history of powered flight, from Orest War "aces" to lunar astronauts.

The three-day event is designed as a social get-together of all aircrew who served in any war with the air services of the British Commonwealth, regardless of rank, trade or nationality.

Special guests to attend include many of the most famous names in aviation history - Johnny Johnson, Douglas Bader, Jimmy Doolittle, Johnny Fauquier, Arch Whitehouse, Adolph Galland, Sir Andrew Humphrey, Sir John Baker, Sir Denis Smallwood, Robert J. Dixon, Gabby Gabreski, Deke Slayton and Ronald Evans.

A similar reunion in 1970 was attended by 1500 former aircrew and their wives from all over the world. Attendance at the meet set for September is expected to exceed 3000.

Hail board claims early successes

Three Hills Capital

Records recently made available show strong evidence that the hail suppression program financed by farmers here from 1957 to 1968 as one of the most effective to date.

This is what Jim Bishop, a member of the original Alberta Weather Modification Co-op as well as Interim Modification Board, told us this week.

According to Mr. Bishop, in the M.D. of Kneehill portion of the project, for the six lowest years out of the 12 years the program was carried out, the Hail Insurance Board paid out losses of only $920 on almost 1.4 million dollars of hail insurance written.

This is a loss to risk of 0.07 percent for the 18 Townships in Townships 29 to 31, Range 21 to 26 in the south half of Kneehill, Mr. Bishop said.

During these three township rows west through the County of Mountain View to Range 2 W5, increases this to a 33 township block over which this remarkable low loss factor was basically maintained with an average loss of only three-quarters of one percent. No individual year in the records either before or since has had losses as low as even the highest of those six years.

Historically losses, for this area averaged 14.44 percent, probably the highest losses of any area of similar size in Alberta. Severe hail losses in 1959 resulted in a major reorganization of this program. Of the remaining nine years, the four years with hail losses, 1962-63-64-66 averaged 7 percent L-R. This contrasts with the nine bad years of 18 in history with 23.3 percent L-R.

According to the Interim Weather Modification Board office in Three Hills, the effects of the ground generator program added to the seeding by aircraft done experimentally last year have not yet been completely assessed.

Mr. Bishop speaks only for the Alberta Weather Modification Co-op, as the Interim Weather Modification Board has not yet issued a statement," said secretary, Dorothy Stewart, at the Interim Board office. Board chairman, Gordon Sterling was not available for comment.

Jim Bishop said that since this air mass seeding method pioneered here demonstrated hail damage can be practically eliminated under many conditions, the need is for research efforts to be directed to work with this effective approach to find out what the problems are that prevent hail damage from being eliminated under all conditions.

On the other hand, at the Weather Modification Convention in Calgary last September, Dr. David Arlie, Director of the U.S. National Hail Research in Colorado, reported that if updrafts in a storm exceeded 1,000 feet per minute, it appeared that seeding method, using aircraft alone, increased hail production. Their cloud seeding has been stopped for the present.

There is some reason to suspect this may have happened here on some occasions. The reason may be when seeding from only a few points with aircraft, too much moisture rises through the critical temperature zone where silver iodide becomes effective with no seeding in it to hasten the ice crystal growth that makes a critically important contribution to the reduction of supercooled water available for hail growth in the upper reaches of the cloud. When it finally comes in contact with the nucleating agent in the cloud top, it could then contribute to efficient hail production.

Several controls for aphid

Most healthy legume plants can withstand moderate infestations of pea aphids.

But high aphid densities may stunt alfalfa and other legumes - allowing weeds to take over and crowd out plants.

Adult pea aphids are soft-bodied, light to dark green in color and about three sixteenth of an inch long. From a distance, an infested alfalfa field looks brownish and close examination will reveal aphids on the ground, where they fall readily when plants are shaken.

The pests overwinter as eggs on legume stems. All aphids that emerge in spring and summer are female and the second and third generation are sometimes winged. Winged males and wingless, egg-laying females are hatched in September or October and are the only aphids to mate each season.

Several natural factors help control pea aphid outbreaks. The young may take as long as eight weeks to mature in cool spring and fall weather. Rain and water from sprinkler irrigation systems may knock them to the ground and kill them. Good weather, soil and moisture conditions promote rapid legume growth and lessen the extent of insect damage.

Aphids have many enemies that check their spread.

Several predators, such as the ladybug beetle, eat the larvae and adults. A wasp-like parasite sometimes lays its eggs inside aphids, eventually killing them. In warm, wet weather, a fungus disease may wipe out aphid populations.

Farmers can lessen the effect of an aphid attack by cutting alfalfa when it begins to blossom and by removing the hay from the field quickly.

Insecticides should be used only when plants show damage. One spraying each season will control the aphids. However, insecticides may also kill the aphids' natural enemies and boos that pollinate alfalfa.

American plant breeders have developed aphid-resistant pea and alfalfa varieties.

TRAVEL TIME.

It's the time for holidays. Many of you, no doubt, have travel plans made? Perhaps you are starting to think about your wardrobe. What will you pack. Marian Williams, D.H.E. at Vermilion, has the following hints:

Fabrics: Knit fabrics are your best choice for comfort and easy care. They pack easily because they don't wrinkle or crease and maintain their good appearance during wear.

Garments: Try to anticipate the varied activities you may encounter and take only one outfit for the activities on the maybe list. Select suitable garments for all temperatures and weather conditions. Be prepared for a sudden rise or fall in temperature or an unexpected rainy spell. A coat - preferably water resistant and a warm sweater are essential.

Coordinates are invaluable in a travel wardrobe. Select one or two colours and build your wardrobe around them. If a jacket can be worn with a skirt, pants, shorts or dress in addition to it's matching garments - take it. You may be surprised how many articles you have that can be mixed or matched.

Don't forget accessories either! Jewelry, scarves, etc. don't take up space and can "brighten up" any wardrobe. Shoes take up space, so try to select one colour to go with most outfits, plus comfortable walking shoes and a pair of slippers or sandals.

Packing With a Plan:

It's wise to lay out all items you think you will need, along with the accessories to accompany each outfit. You'll see how much you have to pack. Before anything is packed, give it a critical eye. Is it necessary? Clean? In good repair?

First pack odd-shaped items such as shoes, camera, make-up case, clock. Fill in spaces with lingerie and crush proof clothing. Place the heavy items at the side opposite the handle of the suitcase. Next layer garments, beginning with the least used or least crushable. Fold each garment smoothly with as few folds as possible. Include tissue paper in the folds of garments which wrinkle. By layering clothes, the top layer can be removed down to the articles you want, without disturbing anything.

If you would like more travel tips and ideas, we have a booklet "The Woman Who's Going Places" which is available from our office.

Killam's tourney Saturday

Killam Lions Club ninth (9th) annual baseball tournament will be held this Saturday and Sunday.

Considered one of the major tournaments in Western Canada, it offers competing teams $5,000 in prize money with the winning team collecting a total of $1,200 while being awarded the Labatt's Challenge Trophy.

A team from the United States, along with one from Saskatchewan, will compete with six teams from Alberta for the cash prizes.

Action will commence at nine o'clock on Saturday and continue all day. On Sunday, the first game begins at noon with the finals scheduled to start at six o'clock.

The opening round will see Viking Shamrocks play the Edmonton Tigers while St. Paul Bears will meet the Unity Cardinals. The Berkeley (California) Bears will face the Edmonton Cardinals, and Red Deer Omecals (defending tournament champions) will play the Grand Centre Northlanders.

Following in the complete two-day schedule.

Saturday, 9.00 a.m.: Viking vs Edmonton Tigers. Noon: St. Paul vs Unity. 3.00 p.m.: Berkeley vs Edmonton Cardinals. 6.00 p.m.: Red Deer vs Grand Centre.

Sunday, Noon: Winner B vs Winner D.: 3.00 p.m.: Winner A vs Winner C. 6.00 p.m.: Finals.

Lakeshore-McKenzie news

Mrs. Ellen Eaton

Miss and Howard Ferguson entertained their two daughters, Doris and Howard Brown and family of the district, Mrs. Loretta Wale and friend, John Lemcke both of Tofield; their son, Nelson Ferguson of Edmonton, and his friend, Ren-Al Olson and Mae's mother, Mrs. Roberts of Tofield, as well as granddaughter, Wanda Weir, all at a birthday supper on June 12th in honor of Doris's and Ren-Al's birthdays, which are both on June 12th.

Donna and Frank Edwards and family of Whitecourt were Saturday visitors at the home of Donna's parents, Howard and Mae Ferguson and Wanda Weir, returning home on Saturday night.

Rod and Isabel Rudacki motored to Vermillion on Sunday taking their daughter, Heather and Marlene Magnuson of Ryley to the Lakeland College of Vermillion where they will attend the 4-H Club Week held this week.

Bob and Gwen Blanchette and two sons, Bobby and Daryl of Edmonton, were Sunday visitors at the home of Bob's two sisters, namely, Deanna and Arnold Nelson and family and Gail and Ron MacAdam. Gail and Ron have a home on the same farm as her sister, Deanna and Arnold.

Mrs. Mavis Jacobsen, Mrs. Katie Baergen and Lillian Fairbobn, both of Tofield; Mrs. Ila Walker of the Senior Citizen's home at Sherwood Park and her daughter, Mrs. Ellen Sisco of Calgary, Mrs. Isabel Rudacki, Mrs. Diane Pitcha, Mrs. Effie Pinsken, Mrs. Helen Brom, Mrs. Mary Schroeder and Mrs. Mae Ferguson, all met at the home of Mrs. Rose Walker on Monday to help Rose celebrate her birthday.

Leroy and Shirley Eaton and son, Ronnie and his friend, Jim Wegren of Fort McMurray, arrived Friday night to spend the weekend at the home of Leroy's mother, Mrs. Ellen Eaton. Ronnie stayed at the farm with his grandmother for the school holidays while the others returned to Fort McMurray around noon on Sunday.

Rain has been general over the past week leaving side roads and lanes in poor condition. The rain has been a blessing to the farms and gardens after the long dry weather. It stopped Sunday evening.

Holden and district

Mrs. G.H. Taylor

Weekend visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hooper were their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Hooper, daughter, Wendy and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Sucky of Edmonton. Guests on Sunday were Shirley and Irvin Scott, all helping to celebrate the Grant Hooper's Wedding anniversary.

Cheri Anderson was a Monday morning visitor to Camrose.

Miss Vivian Carlson and friend drove down to Calgary Friday afternoon after school taking along her mother, Mrs. Edith Carlson and brother, Eric, visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Bob Carlson overnight, and Mrs. Carlson and Eric leaving for Penticton where they will visit with Edith's father, Mr. Lamb at Penticton, and also with other relations in the district.

Eleanor and Lew Blair of Shorwood Park were recent Saturday afternoon callers with Mrs. Beth Caupbell, later visiting with Lyle and Vernion Grosland. They also visted that J.A. Giebelhaus, who had been a hospital patient for a few weeks, was now back home at Sherwood Park.

Ray Howland was an evening caller with Mrs. Beth Campbell and her sister, Mrs. Phyl Morris of England.

Irvin Scott has accepted employment with the Village of Holden as village foreman, Dean Jeffery having resigned from the position.

Mrs. Gwen Hooper and her mother, Mrs. Phena Evans of Viahia Lodge in Viking, left Wednesday for Kelowna, B.C., to attend the 25th wedding anniversary of her brother, driving out to Kelowna with the Motkmal's.

A long time resident of the Holden district and the last few years of Holden, Mrs. Clara Deputan passed away Thursday, June 24th 1976 at the age of 73 years. She is survived by her husband, Steven of Holden; two sons, Ernie of Edmonton and Nestor of Chilliwack, B.C.; one daughter, Mrs. Gene (Olga) Bilyk of Westlock; and eight grandchildren. Prayer service was held on Sunday at Park Memorial Chapel in Vegreville. Requiem Mass was held Monday morning at St. John's Ukrainian Catholic Church at Borschie with Rev. J. Ewaschyshyn O.S.B.M. being the celebrant and interment was in the Borschie Cemetery.

The Deputans were long time farming residents of Holden, and on retiring from farming a few years ago, have made their home in Holden. Mrs. Deputan has not been in very good health for the past couple of years. Mr. Deputan has been staying with his son, Ernie and family, in Edmonton.

Visitors last Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hurum were her sister, Mary and husband of Dawson Creek, stopping off in Holden on their way home after visiting with their son, Leroy and family in Sask.

Mrs. Alice Jones of Edmonton and Harry, Arthur, and Herb of Camrose, spent last Wednesday with their mother, Mrs. Carrie Olson, helping her celebrate her birthday. Mrs. Bertha Nohr of Edmonton also drove down to visit with Alice. Mr. and Mrs. A.M. Steer also called to congratulate their sister on her birthday.

Several ladies of Holden Lodge O.O.R.P. attended the funeral on June 23rd. of Richard Gares, husband of Mrs. Vivian Gares, a member of Viking O.O.R.P. Lodge who has visited with Holden Lodge many times and has been their District Deputy. Her daughter and family, the Don Manchurs, resided in Holden for several years, before leaving for Wainwright, and are now residents of Sherwood Park.

The Holden Senior Citizens Group held their monthly meeting Thursday evening with a very good turnout of members. Present at the meeting was George Baker of Ryley, representative for the County of Beaver Recreational Department, who addressed the meeting, giving them much information for grants that might be obtained and explaining the various grants and telling of the information that is required, and leaving forms for these. After much discussion, a committee was appointed to look into the matter. The committee appointed were George Giebelhaus, Mrs. Kathleen Hurum, Mike A. Komarnisky and Otto Hurum. The committee is to approach the Village of Holden Council shortly. At the conclusion of the meeting, lunch was served with hostesses being Mrs. George Giebelhaus and Mrs. Kozlowich.

C. Melby and Otto Hurum were recent visitors at Viahia Lodge, Viking calling on friends residing there.

The Volunteer in our Community.

We are beginning to think about how deficient life on earth would be if we allowed the mechanization of living deprive us of the contacts we gain in voluntary association with our neighbours.

George P. Vanier, Governor of Canada quoted "as our society grows ever more and more complicated and more personal, the need for voluntary work becomes daily greater, for it is essential that there be preserved a balance between complexity and conscience."

What we require of volunteers is not a complaint! dunking with things as they are, but a positive and spirited adventure into what might be. If it be true, as Galileo said, that you can not teach a man anything but only help him to find it within himself, then voluntary work for social kinds can be the greatest good a person can do himself.

Sometimes a good business idea needs a friend.

Finding the capital to start a new business, or to expand the potential of an existing business is never a simple task. But when the regular financial institutions are not able to help, the ALBERTA OPPORTUNITY COMPANY is available. We aren't easy — but we do go further in loaning funds that can't be obtained elsewhere. The business must be well managed, and it's plans must be well researched as to market pricing, competition and other relevant matters. But given these conditions we're ready to listen seriously.

A major reason the ALBERTA OPPORTUNITY COMPANY was formed was to aid development in the province's smaller communities — and this remains an important objective. But most important, ALBERTA OPPORTUNITY COMPANY is founded on the principle that given the opportunity, Albertans need not take a back seat to anyone for resourcefulness, talent or imagination in the field of commercial enterprise.

SUBJECT: WOMEN AND CANCER

Ignorance and fear often make women victims of cancer. Yet, the facts are not so frightening. Women can do a greater deal to protect themselves from this disease, according to the Canadian Cancer Society.

The most common cancer sites in women are located in parts of the body that can be easily examined by a doctor. This would aid early detection, so crucial to the possibility of cure.

The five principle cancer sites in women, with their incidence out of every 100 cancer cases, are: breast - - 25 cases; skin - - 17; intestine - rectum - - 12; uterus - - 11; and cervix - - 6.

This year, the Canadian Cancer Society's educational program concentrates on two effective and important precautions women can take to protect their health - - breast self-examination and the Pap test.

The best screening method for breast cancer can be done by women themselves. Breast self-examination practised monthly in the privacy of the home, takes little time but will enable a woman to discover unusual conditions of the breast in time for early and effective treatment. The method of BSE is simple and can be learned from a doctor during a checkup and the Canadian Cancer Society also has pamphlets available on the method.

The Pap test has made great advances against cancer of the cervix. In the last 20 years, the death rate in Canada for this type of cancer has dropped 25 per cent. The Pap test can be done in a doctor's office or clinic. A sample of the moisture from the vagina is taken and later examined under a microscope to determine if any abnormal cells are present. The test can discover precancerous changes in cells and therefore be caught early enough for cure. The Canadian Cancer Society urges all women over 20 to have a Pap test as often as her doctor recommends.

The Pap test and BSE are just two steps a woman can take in the fight against cancer. There are others. The key to successful treatment is to detect cancer early, and to do this, there are certain steps every woman should take:

— If you are over 35, have a physical examination - - this should include a proctoscopic examination and the Pap test at intervals recommended by your doctor.

— Report to your doctor any unusual bleeding, discharge, swelling or discomfort of any kind, or any changes in normal body functions. Don't assume that bleeding from the rectum is due to hemorrhoids.

— Do not take daily indigestion tablets and treat it with home remedies. This symptom, especially after age 40, should be brought to the attention of your doctor.

— Be suspicious of miracle cures and quack diets. Check with your doctor or your local branch of the Canadian Cancer Society to determine the validity of these so-called "cures".

— Do not smoke. Lung cancer, relatively rare in women at one time, is increasing due to the fact that more women now smoke.

Statistics tell us that four out of five Canadian women will not die of cancer. By knowing the facts and taking the suggested precautions, women play a vital role in protecting their health. For more information on cancer facts and prevention, contact the local unit of the Canadian Cancer Society.

Magic

Otto Streberg is not pulling rabbits out of the air, but the prices he pulled from the huge crowd at the "Food For The Hungry" auction on Saturday almost seemed like magic. Donations for auction ranged from rabbits like the one above to radiakes to appliances and furniture to a truck camper-shell, and the spirit of giving to the cause of Guatemala relief was high.

Your fuel tanks should occupy a place by themselves.

Your UFA agent wants your farm to be a safe place to work as much as you do. And he has a lot of ideas and experience that will help put safety first. All of your fuel tanks, for example, should be grouped in a place by themselves.On high, well drained ground. They should be equipped with proper catwalks and ladders. And they should all have a product identification label. But there's a lot more ideas where these came from. And they all came from your UFA agent. So if you have some concerns about farm safety, give him a call.

SPERRY NEW HOLLAND

Round baling offers an easy, one-man hay system. All the hay, from baling through feeding, is handled mechanically.

With the Model 850 round baler, you can make and wrap big round bales without leaving your tractor seat. Afterwards, you can move bales into a storage area with either the Model 80 bale mover or Model 85 bale handler at your convenience. Even a teenage girl can handle tons of hay quickly and easily without touching a bale.

Minstik news briefs

Mrs. Jim Roddick

Approximately one hundred people came through pouring rain on Saturday afternoon to view crafts and arts that have been done at the crafts centre since it's opening in late January. Many talents of local residents and those who attend the centre was a surprise to most in attendance.

A quilt being made by several ladies, as well as part of the two art classes held each week, were on display. Many pieces of ceramics, pottery, macrame and rug or cushion making were among exhibits.

Coffee and dainties were served throughout the afternoon.

The congregation of St. Judes church gathered at the Steen home on Sunday after services for a pot luck dinner in honor of Rev. Carswell who has spent 30 years in the priesthood.

The kindergarten class were honored at a party on Thursday evening following their graduation to grade one, at Minstik school.

After the heavy rains of the past week, residents were happy their annual picnic had been scheduled for June 19 rather than June 26th. The rain, however, was welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dunn of Lethbridge were Monday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Nastchuk. That day being Vivian's and Michael's 25th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. S.L. Edwards of the Senior Citizens Lodge at Sherwood Park was a guest of her sister, Mrs. Jennie Wilson, for 10 days.

A hymn sing was held at the United Church on Sunday evening with those in attendance coming with many old favorites.

Mrs. M. Dilkinder of Stony Plain was a weekend guest of the E. Deklinders.

Ronald Ferguson, who had been a patient in the University Hospital for 2 weeks, returned home on Saturday.

Pupils, teachers, bus drivers and their families enjoyed a wind-up picnic and dinner as school closes for the summer months.

Your correspondent has received several appreciation letters with regards to the recent class re-union held and all are looking forward to one in two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Herricks were hosts, on Wednesday, to Mrs. Charlotte Waggott of South Carolina, U.S.A., and her son, Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Waggott, aunt and cousins respectively of Albert's. Also another aunt, Mrs. Emily Herbert of Ottawa.

Johnson-Swabey vows exchanged on June 5

A lovely spring wedding took place on June 5th in Knox-Metropolitan United Church, Edmonton, uniting Cheryl Lynn Swabey, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Swabey, and Rodney G. Johnson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Johnson of Camrose. Rev. T. J. Sawyer officiated.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was radiant in a gown of sculptured lace with a feature panel of pear-de-soie and long lace train. Her waist-length veil was trimmed with a wide double border of lace and held in place with a lace and pearl beaded headpiece. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

The flower girls, nieces of the bride, Angela Swabey and Alice Swabey, were identical gowns of flocked pink nylon and carried baskets of white daisies and forget-me-nots with bands of daisies in their hair.

Maid of honor, Marie Williams and bridesmaids, Bonnie Jacques and Cherice Johnson, were identical gowns of floral blue sheer over taffeta with matching bolero and carried nosegays of white daisies and forget-me-nots. They wore daisies in their hair.

The groom and his attendants, Don Nordlin, Gary Swabey, and Kelly Wright were in pale blue suits with matching shirts and navy ties.

Mrs. Swabey, mother of the bride, wore a long blue floral dress with matching coat, with a pink corsage.

Mrs. Johnson, mother of the groom, wore a long pale blue flowered gown with a pink corsage.

The reception was the first to be held in the new Minnith Community Hall, which was decorated in yellow and white. The wedding cake centered the head table and had been decorated by Joan McEwan, a friend of the family.

Master of ceremonies was Bob Swabey, a cousin of the bride. Dave Borgstrom opened the banquet with grace.

Frank Swabey uncle of the bride, proposed the toast to the bride. The groom very graciously replied.

Don Nordin proposed the toast to the bridesmaids.

Ruth Johnson took care of the guest book.

In the evening, a dance and refreshments was enjoyed by friends and relatives.

The happy couple spent a honeymoon in Jasper and B.C. and are now residing in Calgary.

Round Hill is set for tournament

Round Hill's big softball tournament will be held on Sunday.

The tournament was originally scheduled for a couple of weeks ago and had to be postponed because of rain.

Ten teams will play in the ladies' section of the tournament. Nine of the teams will be Round Hill, New Norway, Camrose Canadians, Holden, Fort Saskatchewan, Heisler, Tofield, and two teams from Ryley. A tenth team will be selected later this week.

There will be a six-team men's tournament. Five of the teams are Bawlf, Camrose, Ryley, and two teams from Round Hill with a sixth team to be named.

As well, there will be minor games, and various kinds of races and other competitions for the kids. Horseshoe competitions will also be held.

Tofield Sports Day is highly successful

Despite having to be postponed for two days because of rain, Tofield's annual Sports Day, held on Saturday, was a huge success with 2,500 people entering the Fairgrounds.

The day started off with a successful parade, following which everyone went to the Fairgrounds to watch ball games, 4 gymkanas, view the exhibits, and visit.

Baseball

Ryley won tournament honours when they won both of their starts.

In the opening game, Ryley edged Bardo 5-4 in extra innings as Elmon Solberg picked up the win while Richard Foshaug was tagged with the loss. In the finals, Ryley whipped Round Hill 12-5 as Robert Lodo picked up the win with Randy Strilchuk being charged with the loss.

Round Hill gained its berth in the finals when they edged Tofield 5-4 in an extra inning in the opening game of the tournament. Strilchuk picked up the win while the loss was charged to Larry Murray.

Parade

Following are the results of the different competitions held during Saturday's big parade.

Commercial Floats: 1. Lindseth Seed Farm 2. Super A and That Place (tied) 3. Tofield Hospital and Tofield Tire (tied).

Non-Commercial Floats: 1. Tofield Garden Club 2. Tofield Mennonite Christian Training.

Holden 4-H has Achievement Day

By Karen Loetke

The Holden 4-H Beef Club Achievement Day was held recently.

The calves were weighed at the stockyards and taken to the Holden Complex for the show.

Lawrence Kallal from Tofield was the judge and he placed the steers: Perry Story had the champion while Karen Schmidt showed the reserve champion. In the breeding class he placed Lorna Grinde first, and Kim Kowalchuk was second.

The calves were taken to Viking for the inter-club show.

The judge placed Daniel Klies of Viking as champion, while Kevin Maxwell of Viking had the reserve champion.

Mike Zowtuk was the auctioneer for the sale.

The buyers were: Zowtuk, Sheets and Hutchinson, United Feeds, Camrose, Bill Dary, William Ogrodnick, Custom Maintenance Consultants, Edmonton, Holden District Chamber of Com-

Precision

A parade isn't complete without a marching band, and the Edmonton All Girls Drum and Bugle Band filled the parade route in Tofield on Saturday with spirited music and a show of fine precision. They also put on a show in the arena as part of the Sports Day activities which followed.

Families honored

Three area families will be honored by the Edmonton Ribbiniea Association during Edmonton's annual Klondike Days, later this month.

The families of Charles Magnason of Ryley, Lawrence Hrabec of Holden and Andy Heiberg of Tofield will be among the twenty-five families to be honored by the Association.

The families were chosen by the Alberta Farm Family Awards Committee from nominations submitted by agricultural societies and chambers of commerce. The families were chosen on the basis of their achievements as farmers and for their contributions to their communities.

Tribute to the families will be paid on July 25th when a full day of events have been planned for them. Included on the day's agenda will be visits with Premier Peter Lougheed, Lieutenant-Governor Ralph Steinhauer, and Edmonton Mayor Terry Cavanagh.

Development plan adopted

The new plan for future development in Tofield was adopted by Town Council at a meeting on June 14th.

The plan was discussed and a few minor changes were made. The plan is now to be reproduced with the changes. Memos, Sword and Scenes of Municipal Planning were in attendance for the discussion on the proposed plan.

Dorothy Clark was named acting secretary-treasurer until the position of town administrator is filled.

Three readings were given to a by-law covering nuisances and unsightly premises within the town limits.

At a special meeting earlier in the month, council named AD-1 Services as engineers to proceed with production of tender documents for construction of a town shop.

Naming a member to serve on a committee to investigate the regional recreation problem was tabled to a future meeting. There was some discussion as to whether or not the town should withdraw from the program.

Information for this story was obtained from unapproved council meetings' minutes.

Progressive Farming

PROGRESSIVE FARMING

Beginning this week the District Agriculturist's office in Ryley will be putting out weekly articles dealing with subjects of timely importance to the farmers of our County. By doing this, we hope to reach more farmers in the County and to be of general service to the County as a whole. Any suggestions as to improvements or topics for this weekly article will gladly be appreciated.

HAYING TIME

We are approaching the time of year when most farmers should be thinking about cutting their first hay crop of the season. Cutting the hay at the right time is very important to obtain the best quality of hay possible.

The time of cutting varies with each crop but is determined by the stage of growth. For example, alfalfa is at its optimum quality when at the 10 percent bloom stage. At this point in time the most advantageous point of high yield and high protein content is achieved. Even though the overall hay tonnage may be lower, the quality (ie. total digestable nutrients) will be much higher than at any later date. The grasses are best cut between heading and full bloom since after full bloom is reached much of the leaf protein is transferred to both the roots and seeds thus resulting in less nutritious hay.

Curing and handling of the hay are other key factors in maintaining a high quality hay. Rapid curing is essential and is speeded up through the use of windrowers and hay conditioners, while the handling of the hay is best done when the crop is still tough. Handling dry hay results in shedding and the loss of leaves which in turn depletes the quality of the hay due to the leaves being the most nutritious part of the hay.

If you have any questions on this or any other topic, please contact the District Agriculturist's office at Ryley, phone 663-3555, for further information. We would be more than glad to help you.

Requotable quote: "If Agriculture would have kept up with inflation, a loaf of bread would cost $3.00 today".

James B. McKay, District Agriculturist and Blair Roth, Asst. District Agriculturist.

CLEANING SPRAY EQUIPMENT

As the spraying season is coming to a close, I hope people will take a few extra minutes and clean their sprayers thoroughly.

Not only should the equipment be thoroughly cleaned to prevent injury to susceptible crops, but also because of the corrosive aspects of some chemicals to sprayer parts.

The proper time to clean sprayers is just after spraying and not immediately before spraying. Even before using a "clean" sprayer, it should be flushed with water.

Liquid Materials. To remove residues of herbicides with an oil base such as esters of 2-4D and similar materials, rinse the sprayer with Kerosene, diesel fuel, or a similar light oil (not gasoline).

Equipment in which amine forms or other water soluble liquids such as amiben, amitrole T, and trifluralin have been used, thoroughly rinse with a water detergent solution (one box detergent to 30-50 gallons of water). water soluble dry materials such as amitrole, dalapon, and TCA should be treated as water soluble liquids. Allow the water detergent solution to circulate through the system for several minutes.

After the kerosene, diesel fuel, or water detergent rinse, fill the tank one-half to three-quarters full with a water-ammonia solution (1 quart of household ammonia to 25 gallons of water). A water-trisodium phosphate (TSP) solution (1 cup TSP to 25 gallons water) may be substituted for the ammonia solution. Circulate through the system for a few minutes, allowing a small amount to go through the nozzles. Let the remainder of the solution stand for at least 6 hours and pump through the nozzles. Remove nozzles and screens and flush system with two tankfuls of water with the nozzles removed.

Wettable Powders. These are low in solubility. Remove the nozzles and screens and flush the tank with water to physically remove the wettable powder. If possible use water under pressure to dislodge wettable powder lodged in corners and around fittings. At least two flushings with clean water should be done. Wash all the nozzles and screens to remove powder accumulation.

To properly prepare a sprayer for storage, disconnect the hoses and coat all bare metal parts with oil or rust inhibitor. Clean metal nozzles and store in oil. Prepare and store the pump according to the manufacturers directions.

The above items, if carried out each year, would greatly improve the life and operation of our farm sprayers. The extra time and effort would pay excellent dividends.

If you have any questions on this or any other topic, please contact the District Agriculturist's office at Ryley, phone 663-3555, for further information. We would be more than glad to help you.

SUMMER'S HERE!
Summer is finally here. The hot days seem to give everyone a big thirst. This week's columns will be some summer cooler ideas.

Someone asked for a rhubarb punch recipe

ROSY RHUBARB PUNCH
2 lbs (7 - 8 cups) rhubarb
3 cups water
1 - 6 oz. can frozen lemonade
2 - 6 oz. cans water
½ cup sugar
1 large bottle ginger ale
METHOD: Add 3 cups water to rhubarb. Simmer until tender. Strain. Chill. Juice. (There will be approximately 4 cups juice).

Add frozen lemonade, water and sugar to chilled juice.

Add ginger ale just before serving. This makes approximately 10 cups.

Milk drinks provide food value as well as taste appeal. A favourite with children is:

HONEYNUT SHAKE
2 tbsp. honey
2 tbsp. smooth peanut butter
1-½ cups milk
Mix honey and peanut butter and milk and beat.

TRY: SUNSHINE COOLER
½ cup frozen concentrated orange juice
½ cup sugar
4 cups cold milk
Nutmeg
Combine orange juice (con centrated) and sugar. Divide mix ture evenly into four tall glasses. Fill each glass with milk, sprinkle with nutmeg on top. Makes 4 ser vings.

Another favourite is
PEACH BLOSSOM
2 fresh or canned whole peaches, mashed
3 cups cold milk
4 scoops vanilla ice cream
Nutmeg
Add milk gradually to peach pulp, then add ice cream, beat un til well blended. Pour into tall glasses and sprinkle with nutmeg. Makes 4 servings.

Your blender will make a smooth product

Farmers say good audience

"We had a good, informative meeting with the Minister," commented Fred Gotheridge after five members of the Round Hill Dodds Agricultural Protection Society met with the Hon. Dave Russell, Alberta Minister of the Environment.

Mr. Gotheridge said he felt there had been a lack of communication between the farm group, and the Environment Conservation Authority, in that the feeling persisted they were interested only in the Round Hill-Dodds area, whereas in reality, the spokesmen said, the group has been interested in seeing an over all plains coal policy developed, covering all areas.

Mr. Gotheridge is president of the group, which was formed when it was announced Calgary Power and Can Pac Minerals hoped to strip mine some 35,000 acres, to fuel a large new power generation plant in the Round Hill-Dodds area.

Presenting the association's case to the minister were Bernie Van Tetenborn, Calvin Lauber, Tom Mehlreish and Lester Millang, in addition to Mr. Gotheridge.

The farmers came away with the feeling there was still a good deal of hope for their presentation. They had asked that hearings into the application be delayed until a suitable time for farm operations, and were told this request would probably be granted. There was a possibility the hearings would be delayed until November, they were told.

Mr. Russell went on to tell the group the government is currently running drill tests in the area, to check on a number of aspects of the country, including reclamation potential, water patterns, amounts and qualities of water. The coal is also being tested for sulphur content, mercury content, ash and other heavy materials. Further testing is being conducted on air immersion from the core tests, the moisture content, and thermal content in BTU's.

The information gained will be made available to members of the farm body.

Some dismay was expressed by the farmers over the minister's comment that he supposed the government would make the decision on end-use for any land strip mined, after its reclamation. In contrast, Mr. Gotheridge said, it had been the hope of the farmers that a number of them might be invited to sit on a board or committee to discuss future land use.

The overall tone of the meeting was friendly, but serious, said Mr. Gotheridge, involving a good deal of information being exchanged by both sides.

Leaving the meeting, the group felt their time had been well spent, and that the meeting was good, informative and useful.

"In His Steps Today"
by Marti Hefley
As a sixteen-year-old Marti Hefley read "In His Steps" and thought "Somebody ought to write a version for today". "In His Steps Today" is the fulfillment of that wish.
"What would Jesus do?" In the classic "In His Steps" by Charles Sheldon, a group of Christians makes this motto their guide for daily living; and their lives are set aglow for Christ. But that was 1890! Would it work in the 20th century? Another group of Christians decides to try it.

Round baling . . .
the easy way to make hay.
SPERRY NEW HOLLAND
Round baling offers an easy, one-man hay system. All the hay, from baling through feeding, is handled mechanically.
With the Model 850 round baler, you can make and wrap big round bales without leaving your tractor seat. Afterwards, you can move bales into a storage area with either the Model 80 bale mover or Model 85 bale handler at your convenience. Even a teenage girl can handle tons of hay quickly and easily without touching a bale.

Wheat Pool plans work at Hardisty, Kelsey, Rd. Hill

Part of a $3,600,000 building program planned by Alberta Wheat Pool this year includes a number of construction programs in this region.

Heading the list will be a 70,000 bushel country elevator at Hardisty, with 20 fully happened bin.

The elevator will be located on the site of the present Hardisty No. 1, adjacent to the present 67,000 bushel cribb annex. The old Pool No. 1 at Hardisty will be dismantled, as will Pool No. 2. Pool No. 4 and the bakers annexes attached to them.

The new house will be 38 feet by 36 feet by a hundred feet in height, and will be equipped with a receiving and shipping leg, each capable of handling 5,500 bushels per hour

Two overhead style fibre-glass, electrically operated doors will feature the driveway, which will be 18 feet wide and 20 feet high.

Metric beams in the office will feature the receiving scale, a 70 x 10 foot concrete deck equipped with sixty ton hydraulic hoist The hopper scale is of 6,000 pounds capacity

New dust handling equipment will involve a five horsepower dust collector to collect dust from both legs, then store it in an outside steel

Railway siding alongside the new unit provides for a seven car spot, and a five horsepower car mover will be installed.

Service from annex to elevator will be provided on 12-inch conveyors both top and bottom, each of which will be capable of moving 5,500 bushels per hour The Hardisty unit is one of five major units planned by the company, and the smallest of the five. Milo and Rockyford are slated to receive 170,000 bushel units, while Beaverlodge and Sibbald will each get 130,000 bushel units, all of the high variety basis.

Both Kelsey and Round Hill are on the construction program for new frame warehouses, 44 x 30, as part of a program affecting nine such centres

The work is all planned for the 1976-77 construction year, and if no problems arise during the construction year, it is expected the entire program could be completed by the end of that period. said an official of the Pool's construction department. Mr Trelenvos. None of the work will start before the first of August, he said, in answer to a question by The Canadian, because much of the work still remains to be done, in some areas selecting sites, in others completing detail work and developing priorities.

Agriculture News

From the office of the Agricultural Fieldman

At this time of the year many wild plants come into view because of their showy flowers. Farmers should always be on the lookout for new plants and have them identified in case the new invader could become a serious weed problem.

A great number of inquiries have been made this spring regarding a large hairy plant with yellow flowers, growing on the edge of sloughs and wet areas. This plant, marsh ragwort, is a common wild flower of the prairies and should be of little concern. It often "circles sloughs with a golden-yellow ring" in the early summer and then is unnoticed for the rest of the year.

Scentless mayweed is still one of the major weeds causing concern in our county. The daisy like weed is already well established in the Viking-Bruce area with pockets of the infestation in the Ryley-Holden districts. Residents of this county should become familiar with this plant, so that control can be started as soon as a new "patch" is found.

If you are sending a plant sample for identification by mail, it should be sent in a cardboard container to prevent damage to the specimen. Envelopes are too easily flattened and bent, and are often pressed by stamp cancelling machines. Send the entire plant, including the roots, stems, leaves and flowers, as well as any information such as where the plant was growing, when it was first noticed, etc.

This service is provided free to everyone and should be made use of. Samples can be sent to: Agricultural Fieldman, County of Beaver Box 140 Ryley, Alberta T0B 4A0.

Recreation Report

We are still receiving registrations for camping at the Regional Recreation Office. Be sure not to miss out on any of the Summer Sundays.

If you have not received your copy of the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Summer '76 Summer Program Calendar, please phone in and we will mail one to you or your friends.

Progress supervisor's report is missing this week because she is attending a camp and playground course for five days.

Back next week. Register early. George Baker.

SHEEP PREDATORS

The Canadian sheep industry loses almost $1 million annually through predators such as coyotes, dogs and wolves. The key to reducing sheep predation lies in the management of wild carnivorous, better control of dogs and proper disposal of sheep carcasses, says Bob Sparling, a member of Agriculture Canada's Food Systems Branch.

Garden Club plans Horticulture Show

by Doris Brown

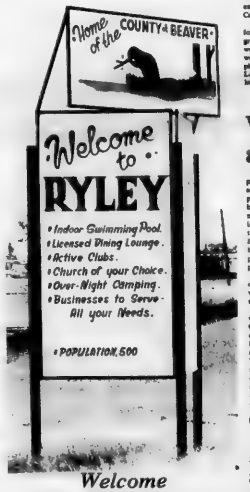
The Tofield Garden Club met at the home of Audrey Brown on Monday.

Despite the rain, the members viewed Audrey's lovely yard before holding the business meeting.

Committees were formed to carry out specific duties in connection with the Provincial Horticulture Show to be held here on August 14 and 15th. Tickets for the banquet to be held on Saturday evening, August 14th were available and purchased by many of the members present. There will only be 150 tickets sold for the banquet.

Members who had canvassed the places of business in Tofield for prizes or donations reported their results, which to date have been most favorable. It is hoped that all businesses in Tofield will be contacted in the very near future.

The next meeting of the Garden Club will be held at the home of Mary Rample on August 9th.



Welcome

The Ryley Main Street Project Committee have erected a "welcome to Ryley" sign at the entrance to the village. This is just one item on the agenda to improve the village's appearance. Spruce trees have been transplanted, with cleaning up and fencing of n ..ent lots to come. This work is being done with a grant from the Devonian Institute and should make quite an improvement in the look of the village.

Tests may resolve power plant future

On Monday of this week, the board of directors of the Round Hill-Dodds Agricultural Protective Association met with the assistant to the deputy minister of the department of environment, Mr. Teesen, to discuss a program of testing being carried out by the government in the Round Hill area.

Also present at the meeting were Mr. Belyea, of the department, District Agriculturist Larry Williams, and Carrie Johannsson, environmental representative in Camrose.

The farm committee was informed by Mr. Teesens that the ground and coal tests were pretty well completed now, and there were literally thousands of samples taken. These are now in Lethbridge, at a testing laboratory, to be analyzed.

Most of the tests will be pretty well completed by the middle of next month, said Mr. Teesen, and at a later date, all the information from these tests will be available to the association.

"We were led to believe," said Mr. Gotheridge, "that the information from these tests will pretty well give the government what they want to know . . . whether this land can, or can not be reclaimed. We were also led to believe that if the tests show that this land cannot be reclaimed, the project would be dropped," continued Mr. Gotheridge, who is president of the association. "On the other hand, if it shows it is possible to be reclaimed, it still doesn't necessarily mean the project will be approved. There are many other aspects to look at."

Mr. Teesen felt the best way to deal with a project of this kind is to take one step at a time. It's just a waste of time, and money, to pointed out, to look at other concerns of the government and the people, until it is determined just whether this land can or cannot be reclaimed.

Quite some time was also spent in discussing different types of hearings that may be held. Mr. Gotheridge said his group is still asking for Environment Conservation Authority hearings, in addition to the compulsory Energy Resources Conservation Board hearings, but the government seems to be very reluctant to permit this additional hearing.

PUBLIC MEETING

The association will hold a public meeting at the gym in the Round Hill School on Monday, July 19, at 8 p.m. All interested people are welcome. The main purpose of the meeting is to inform the members, and the public, what the board of directors has been doing, and to get some input from them.

Want pioneers at Heritage Day

The oldest living pioneers or people born in this area are being sought for the Heritage Day program on August 2. Prizes will be awarded to the pioneers, both male and female, who have lived in the Battle River Tourist Zone the longest period of time, and also to the oldest man and woman born in this area. However, the pioneers must be present at the program to win.

It's not known, of course, but organizers of the program feel the oldest pioneers will probably be settlers from 1900 or before.

The day-long program, which will be held on the grounds of the Camrose Museum, and Playgrounds, is being organized by the Museum Society, in response to an appeal from the Battle River Tourist Association. The BRTA received a grant from the provincial government to help promote recognition of Heritage Day, and asked for submissions from every community in the zone.

Two were received, but one was later withdrawn, so the entire award was turned over to the Museum Society to promote the program.

Not only pioneers, but adults and children who wear a period costume will have a chance to win a prize. Prizes will also be awarded winners in horseshoe competitions, and a number of sports events.

Ice cream cones on the grounds will sell for a nickel, while pop will go for a dime. On the other hand, coffee will be provided free.

However, that's all the food that will be available on the grounds, stress the committee, so visitors bring their own lunch.

The entire day is being planned as a family day, and anyone, in Zone 3 or beyond is welcome.

The program of activities for the day starts at 10 a.m., with demonstrations of early household skills and crafts, early day schools, stage coach and fire engine rides for the children, and horseshoe and other sports competitions.

During the lunch period from noon until 1:30, there will be band concert on the grounds, followed by a program of award and prize presentations, accompanied by musical entertainment from the Music Makers. Composed entirely by senior citizens from Calgary, the Music Makers are becoming well known for their old-time, and highly entertaining, presentations.

Alumni at Olds

Olds College Alumni Association reports the 1976 annual summer reunion will be held at Olds College on Saturday and Sunday, July 31 and August 1, starting at 10 a.m.

Classes being specially honoured and recognized will be 1916 (60 years), 1926 (50 years), 1936 (40 years), 1951 (25 years) and 1966 (10 years)

Nursing graduate

Joan Doreen Burnstad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Burnstad, graduated from the University of Alberta Hospital School of Nursing recently. Miss Burnstad received all her schooling in Round Hill, and is presently employed at the University Hospital.

What's behind it?

Shocked Canadians everywhere are wondering what's behind Canada's imporvible attitude with the IOC and the Taiwanese athletes who hoped to compete in the Olympics. What's the purpose of being so difficult, so stubborn, so unamenable to compromise?

External Affairs Hon. Allan McEachen and his department must have some reason behind assuming so unyielding a position, but if so, it seems never to have been made public. What could be the reason for this? Or have they just painted themselves into another of those corners for which the Liberals are becoming quite well known, not having given the matter sufficient thought in the first place?

Certainly IOC chairman Lord Killanin seems to have managed to lose very little face in adopting the pragmatic view that there is too much at stake now to cancel out, there are far too many people involved to consider, and if a sacrifice has to be made, then Taiwan must be offered up as the sacrifice. Hopefully, the rest of the committee members will agree. Hopefully, because there is the very real chance that the games might have to be cancelled if enough of them support the move to back off as a protest against Canada's stand.

McEachen, it seems, has been successful in pointing out that right from the first contract, there was a carefully worded, though innocuous appearing, escape hatch, one which Lord Killanin and all other members of the international committee failed to notice, or worry over. After all, Canada's reputation was such as to be acceptable, to be trusted,to be relied on.

Are we now in the eyes of the world to regain the reputation we once enjoyed with the native Indian populations of "speaking with forked tongue"?

4-H back

Many 4-H workers with ten year memories will rejoice over the decision to move responsibility for the program away from the Department of Youth and Recreation and Wildlife, and back to Agriculture. We might almost add, where it belongs.

4-H worked well in the province over many years, but together with the Junior Forest Wardens, it was grouped to help flesh out the fledgling Department of Youth when Bob Clarke was first named to a cabinet post more than a decade ago. With it went Les Usher, as deputy minister, a man who built a large part of his reputation for effectiveness on his success with the 4-H program. And quite justifiably.

But removed from the network of district agriculturists and district home economist, 4-H never seemed to forge new links in the chain to replace those that were broken or lost in the move. Probably there were more resources at the top, and efforts were made to improve the organizational chain, but they never somehow seemed to reach down to the ground, and out to the little groups of juniors and leaders who so frequently needed the direct contact but found it remote at a hundred miles away, whereas it had once been close at hand.

Now, either the error has been recognized, or the department of youth, etc., has enough other irons in the fire to keep it busy without 4-H. Either way, the new opportunity for closer contact with people actually working in the same fields of endeavor as the juniors, and familiar with conditions in the area, can spell nothing but new highs ahead for 4-H

Report from

by
Don Mazankowski, M.P.
Parliament still sitting - June 30th.

Despite predictions that the House of Commons would recess on June 30th, the session continues on and could do so for a week or more. Three major issues have dominated the attention of the House and the country in recent weeks, these being capital punishment, the dairy problem and the air strike.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

One of the more dramatic moments which I have experienced during my time in Ottawa came during the vote at second reading of the Bill to abolish the death penalty. As members filed in to the House to vote, no one knew for certain what the outcome would be and the mood was very tense. The final result was 133 in favour of the Bill to 125 against. This vote did not end the matter, though. The Bill then went to the appropriate Parliamentary Committee and is now before the House for third and final reading. Before the last vote is taken, however, some 45 amendments to the Bill will have to be considered. It is for this reason that the House is still sitting.

The issue of capital punishment has attracted widespread public attention. The vote on the Bill is a free vote, meaning members can vote as they choose without being influenced by a party position. This is resulted in pressure being put on many members to vote according to the views of their constituents. As many of you will recall, some time ago I conducted a survey in our constituency on this crucial issue. The results were that 83 per cent of the residents of Vegreville constituency favoured the retention of the death penalty. I, therefore, registered my vote accordingly and will also do so in the final vote on the Bill.

THE DAIRY PROBLEM

As I am writing this article today there is a demonstration on Parliament Hill by a group of dairy farmers. This is the second time in less than a month that such a gathering has taken place. Today's demonstration was orderly but the previous one ended up with much damage being done, and a rather humiliating experience for the Agriculture Minister. The government's mismanaging of the dairy policy in Canada has affected us in Alberta as much as it has the eastern farmers. Surplus skim milk powder stocks have risen to some 300 million pounds, with a world glut as well it only follows that all avenues should be explored in merchandising the product.

Stocks have been sold on the world market from 14 cents to 20 cents per pound, while prices have remained very high domestically.

I have raised this matter with the Minister of Agriculture urging that a portion of the powder be released to the animal feed industry at prices less than the present 45 cents per pound. This would help on two counts, firstly it would aid in reducing some of the surplus stock. Secondly, it would provide some relief to the livestock industry, particularly veal production.

The Minister looks upon this suggestion as unacceptable claiming it would upset orderly marketing. I find this difficult to accept in the face of dairy producers paying huge storage charges and interest costs in maintaining these stocks.

AIR TRAFFIC SHUTDOWN

The strike of air traffic controllers and airline pilots over the issue of bilingual air traffic control has been the major item in the news recently. The crisis once again opened up the question of the way in which the government's bilingualism policy is being implemented. Clearly, safety is the basic issue of importance in air travel and the current dispute should be resolved on a technical basis, not a political one. Any decision to broaden bilingual air traffic control should be properly and thoroughly assessed by those who have the necessary knowledge and competence to judge such a complex technical issue. The Official Languages Commissioner himself agrees with this. He has stated that common sense must be exercised in implementing the Official Languages Act and, further, that he would ponder seriously the relative importance of bilingualism and air safety in terms of the greater public interest.

Common sense is certainly what is required in applying the Federal Government's bilingual policies in all federal services. Any attempt to force feed the issue causes the kind of hostility and backlash which we do not need at this juncture.

Canadian Comment . . .

by Peter Ward

OTTAWA — (SP) — Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc is in danger of creating destructive opposition among Canadian fishermen to his department's white paper on policy which was released a short time ago.

LeBlanc is generally considered to be one of the best fisheries ministers Canada has ever had. He's demonstrated an intuitive feeling for fishermen, and a business-like approach to bringing Canada's fishing industry into healthy financial condition.

The white paper, though threatens to take away its dependence from Canadian fishermen is how they bring in their catches. I can't think of a Canadian occupational group more likely to oppose loss of independence bitterly than fishermen.

LeBlanc proposes much tighter government regulation of Canadian fishing. To begin with, he talks about upgrading the trade to professional standards by holding courses and issuing certification papers. I have yet to meet the civil servant who could conduct such a course without ruffling the feathers of his students.

He white paper also proposes a system of government control over the fishing fleet, which would direct fishing vessels from one fishing ground to another, zeroing in on areas where fish were plentiful, and reviewing areas which were being over-fished. Such a service would be invaluable, provided it was operated on a voluntary basis, but from the tone of the white paper, it sounds like LeBlanc plans something obligatory.

The assessment of Canada's fishing industry presented in the white paper on fishing is a thoroughly competent piece of work and the suggestions for future policy make sense - but only if the proposals to restrict the traditional independence of Canadian fishermen are handled with the utmost of tact.

Ryley district news

Lena Reil

Mrs. Jon Lehman of Ryley was the lucky winner of the Microwave Oven given away at the grand opening of the Town and Country Drug Mart in Tofield.

June Wink of Edmonton spent two weeks with her grandmother, Mrs. Joe Lehman.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lehman attended the wedding of Mrs. Lehman's niece, Roxanna Lede, to David Ferguson in the New Norway Lutheran Church on Saturday. Mrs. Lehman enjoyed renewing old acquaintances from years ago.

Kristian Jensen, Lars Peter, and Elsa Jensen of Denmark left for their home on Sunday after spending a month with their brother, Herman, Hilda and family.

Christians in ignorium? Anglican primate asks

The sun broke through the clouds just in time for the commencement of the annual Memorial Service at Rundle's Mission, Pigeon Lake, on Sunday afternoon, July 11. The welcoming address was given by Dr Nelson Nix, president. Rundles Mission Society followed by the opening prayer led by Rev. Robert Settle of Merlyn, Alberta, a former worker with CUSO and missionary in Columbia. Following this, a lone trumpeter from the Cosmopolitan Youth Summer Band Camp played the opening verse of "Unto Thy Hills Accord" from a hill behind the crowd of 200 people. He was joined in the succeeding verses by other members of the band seated on the platform of the "Arms Outstretched" monument and by the voices of all those present. The service continued with the Lesson from the prophet Amos read by Archdeacon V. Cole, Executive Archdeacon, Anglican Church of Canada, Edmonton Diocese. After a brief musical interlude provided by the Cosmopolitan Band, greetings from the Alberta Conference of the United Church of Canada were brought, by the President of the Conference, Rev. Florence Watkinson of Camrose. After this greeting the guest speaker for the occasion Most Rev R.W (Ted) Scott, Primate Anglican Church of Canada and moderator of the World Council of Churches spoke to the people gathered. He began his address by saying "We are fortunate to be here in this setting in tranquility beauty, peace and freedom, when we live in a world of strife, turmoil, and oppression. A kind of world that is asking questions of the Christian Church from two angles. Christian Church other countries ask - - do we in Canada believe, that the quality of life depends not on the things we possess, but on our personal relationships with God and our neighbor Do we believe in freedom, when many of our foreign policies impose direct controls on other peoples?

People in our midst ask- Does a commitment to Jesus Christ mean there is no United, Anglican or Catholic- Nor white nor black - nor communist- Does it mean that there is community - a love for all of God's creation. Do our lives reflect these values? Is it possible for such a community to exist?"

Rev. Scott continued his talk by speaking of judgement and repentance- not in the sense many of us may be accustomed to, but as a positive Gospel invitation to assess where we are- how do we live- what do we stand for. "A sense of judgement is still real, but it means more than to be sorry- it means to live more- as I move like Christ in to these days"

Rev Scott concluded his talk by stating that in a world so complex and demanding as ours- it is tempting to back off- to develop a personal religion. He illustrated the point by asking - if something hurts you deeply and also someone you love- which is harder to forgive- the wrong done you or the person you love? So it is with religion which is easier- to develop a practice of Christmas called ignorium, to ignore the injustices and pains of our world, or to work and pray with other Christians in community, centered in Christ What does it really mean to love God and neighbor? What does it really mean to be a Christian in the world of today?"

Following the address a brief period of quiet, and then the concluding hymn echoed over the lake Afterwards the crowd dispersed to chat in small groups and have coffee on the grounds of the mission and in the lodge. And still the sun was - shining.

Mrs. Ethel Brekstad, who has been visiting with her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Brekstad in Ontario for the past five weeks, returned home Saturday morning. Ethel had driven down to North Bay with Clare Anderson and her aunt, Mrs. Francis Hanson, early in June.

Mr and Mrs. Marshall Slywka and girls of Sherwood Park have been visiting the past week with his mother, Mrs. Mary Slywka.

The Holden Brownie Troop spent a few days last week camping at Maquinon Lake having early Tuesday morning with five of their mothers going along. Mrs. Carol Chomick was the cook for his occasion.

Adolph Laube, who had been a patient in the hospital at Viking, has been transferred to an Edmonton hospital for further treatment.

A former Holden resident of a few years ago, Raymon Kandt, late of Edmonton, passed away on Tuesday, July 6th at the age of 54 years. He is survived by his wife, Mae; one son, Douglas, four daughters, Mrs. Brian (Helen) Thin, Mrs. Ronald (Shirley) Sikorski, and Patricia Kandt, all of Edmonton, and Mrs. Ronald (Bev) Bergeron in Bonnee; eleven grandchildren, two sisters, Hilda Watson of Alliance and Helen Kandt of Edmonton, and two brothers, Frank of Calgary and Walter of Port Saskatchewan. Funeral services were held July 9th from Port Sask., United Church and interment was in the Field of Honor at Port Saskatchewan cemetery.

The Kandt family resided for several years in Holden. Ray was employed in one of the garages.

The Holden St. Gregory's R.C. Church was filled to capacity Saturday morning when relatives, neighbours and friends from far and near attended the service to pay their last respects to a long time resident of the Bruce district, and of Holden. Rudolph (Lawrence) Kabanay of Holden passed away on July 7th, 1976 at the age of 63 years in the General Hospital, Edmonton, after having had serious surgery which was successful, but complications developed. He is survived by his wife, Nellie of Holden; two daughters, Veronosca of Edmonton and Joanne of Holden; one son, Reginald of Edmonton; one brother Rev. M.P. Kabanay of Vegreville; and two sisters, Mrs. Sid (Mary) Johns and Mrs. John (Annie) Evanchuk of Edmonton. He was predeceased by his parents, Katherine and Adalbert Kabanay, two brothers, Joseph of Michigan, U.S., and John of Edmonton, and a sister, Stephanie of Edmonton. The Prayer Service was held July 9th at St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church with Knights of Columbus prayers following the prayer service. The Mass of Christian Burial was held July 10th at St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church in Holden.

Rev. T. Rantz was the celebrant, assisted by Rev. M.P. Kabanay and other priests, all paying tribute to the late Mr. Kabanay.

Interment was in the Holden Cemetery. Mr. Kabanay was born and raised in the Bruce district where the family farmed. Mr. and Mrs. Kabanay and family moved to make their home in Holden some years ago and he was prominent in all affairs of St. Gregory's Church, and was active in community endeavors. He served for a time on Holden Village Council and was Village Foreman for some years.

Mrs. Mike Komarnisky has been a patient for the past week and a half in Daysland Hospital with a severe case of pneumonia. Mike was visiting with her Sunday.

Former Holden residents, Mr and Mrs. Steve Komarnisky, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Chamulka of Edmonton, and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Corbin of Grande Prairie, were attending the funeral of Rudolph Kabanay on July 10th.

Mrs. Robert Taylor, Saylor and Aaron, were Sunday evening callers with Robert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G.H. Taylor. Aaron stayed to visit with his grandparents for a few days.

Steve Deputat is at present staying with his daughter, Olga and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Dilyk, at Wentlock.

Mrs. Kay Chopka and Mrs. Irene Olson were recent visitors for a few days in Kamloops while attending a wedding and reception.

Pete Ogonoski, who is a patient in the General Hospital, Edmonton, had major surgery Tuesday morning of last week and is making slow but satisfactory progress. Mrs. Ogonoski was visiting with him for a few days.

Mrs. Beth Campbell and her sister, Mrs. Phyl Morris of England, who had been visiting for the past week with their nieces and families at Valleyview and Spirit River, were back at Ledue on the weekend with Mrs. Campbell's daughter, Marjorie and family. Mrs. Campbell came home on Sunday evening with Erma and Beth Morris of Viking who were Sunday visitors at Ledue. Mrs. Morris was staying for the week with her niece and family, Marjorie and Ken Campbell at Ledue.

Recreation Report

By Val Charteris

"Where Have All The Children Gone?"

The Beaver Regional Parks and Recreation Summer Program is now underway, but, where have all the children gone?

I understand that there are numerous camps, lakes, and campgrounds which engulf many children each year, but what about the remaining children who can boast of no summer fun and leaning? Why not register your child (or yourself) in one of the following activities:

1) TRAVELLING PLAYGROUND

July 19th 23rd. Prague at the Community Hall.

July 26th - 30th, Bruce at the Bruce Stampede Hall

August 2nd - 6th, Pohsks

August 2nd - 6th, Kopperstch, maybe combined

August 9th - 13th, Beaverhill at the Beaverhill Community Hall.

August 16th - 20th, Spitzwood at the Spitzwood Community Hall

August 23rd - 27th, Lindbrook at the Lindbrook Community Hall

Registration Fee $1.00 per person

2) STATIONARY PLAYGROUNDS

All playgrounds will open Monday, July 12, and continue until August 20

Tofield Lions Club Playground.

Ryley Lions Club Playground and Community Hall.

Registration Deadline - August 3rd.

CAMP REGISTRATION FEES: $10.00 per camper, per session, will cover all meals, materials, supplies, transportation and insurance.

As an added attraction, on July 20th Mr. Westlob from the Provincial Museum of Alberta will be at Camp Lake to demonstrate the art of Bird Watching.

These programs are open to all ages, no matter on County of Beaver, join in the fun!

As the first day of camping and playgrounds has been completed, we have been faced with mishaps and misunderstandings. But in which any program with new staff and participants, these incidents are bound to occur.

If you are unhappy or unsure of a program which we have to offer, please contact us as soon as possible and we will try to help you.

The Senior citizens' tour is being planned for North Battleford, Saskatchewan, visiting the Western Develop Museum, Fort Battleford, and if time permits, the Duck Lake Museum and Historical Site If you have any suggestions or ideas please write or phone us as we need your participation to make it successful.

BITS AND PIECES

The 1976 Alberta Women's Week at Vermilion was a success. The women who participated seemed to find the time enjoyable and interesting. Emmie Oddie spoke on adjusting to changing roles. Through personal anecdotes she described some of the adjustments she has made. Did you know that she has been writing "I'd Like to Know" in the Western Producer for thirty years? Maxine Hancock, author of Love, Honor and Be Free spoke on the importance of values and goals in planning one's life. Thelma Scambler talked about planning for the future. One should always be planning for retirement. Other activities included a barbeque, crafts (bargello, enamel, knitting, beadwork), sessions on cooking with microwaves, sewing lingerie, setting up a home business, food preservation, and many more. All in all, it was an interesting three days.

Glenda Molgat, D.H.E at Bonnyville, sent the following information on cleaning jewelry

How is your jewelry looking these days? To look its best, it should be kept clean and stored properly. Do not jumble all jewelry together in a box or jewelry case because a diamond will easily nick and scratch other gems and metal settings. If you haven't a proper box, wrap each piece in tissue paper

To retain the sparkle on valuable jewelry of precious metals and stones, clean in hot sudsy water using a small brush. A little ammonia will help loosen the dirt, but do not use it on pearls. Rinse in clear hot water and dry with a soft bit of cloth or tissue.

For costume jewelry, clean with soap or detergent in lukewarm (not hot) water. For more thorough cleaning of settings, use a Q-tip dipped in alcohol. Rinse in lukewarm water. Work quickly. Too hot water or too long a soaking may loosen the cement.

To clean plastic jewelry, sponge with mild lukewarm suds and rinse with a cloth dampened with clear lukewarm water and wipe dry. No soaking, no hot water, no alcohol or ammonia!

Wooden jewelry may be wiped with a soft cloth wrung out of cool water. Polish by rubbing it gently with the palm of your hand.

Gold jewelry can be rubbed up gently with a soft piece of chamois. Go softly on gold-plated articles or the metal will be worn off. For silver jewelry wash with a soap or detergent and hot water, polish with silver polish, wash again and rinse well. Polish dry.

Lakeshore-McKenzie news

Mrs. Elliot Ferne

On July 6th, Arnold and Deanna Nelson and family motored to Wainwright and spent the day visiting at the home of Arnold's aunt, Mabel and Ostie Kinghorn, returning home the same evening.

Charlie and Mickey Niemerz motored to Whitecourt on July 6th where they were guests at the home of Mickey's niece, Donna and Frank Edwards and family, returning home the next evening.

On Sunday, Howard and Mae Ferguson motored to New Sarepta to attend the grandmas, then later in the afternoon, they went on to Edmonton where they visited Mae's sister, Mrs. (Don) Marguerite Bailey in the General Hospital, where she has been a patient for the past week.

Dallas Niemerz, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Dena Niemerz of Calgary, is at present staying with his grandparents, Charlie and Mickey Niemerz.

Mrs. Lily Tiedemann and family are receiving the sympathy of their friends and neighbours on the death of their son and brother, Jimmy Tiedemann who passed away on Saturday, July 10th in a hospital in Edmonton.

Also receiving the deepest sympathy of neighbours and friends are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Tiedemann and their parents and relatives on the sudden passing of their little 18 month old daughter on Sunday, July 11th.

On Monday, your reporter accompanied several members of the Tofield Golden Club on a bus trip to Elk Island Park. On the way we stopped at the Ukrainian Pioneer Village on Highway 16, then into the park where we stopped at Sandy Beach recreation area for a lunch before going on to Lamont where we stopped at the Senior Citizens home for a short visit, before returning through the park again, returning home along the westend of the park on the south side of Hyw. 16 where we saw a few buffalo, (the only animals we had seen on the trip). Then on to North Cooking Lake, and from there, following the road coming onto Hyw. 14 at Lindbrook, and from there back to Tofield around 6 p.m.

A rain storm hit this district Monday evening with a downpour that lasted only a short time, with some thunder and lightning following the storm but, no hail in this district so far.

Progressive Farming

INSECTS

In the past month we have received numerous calls and complaints regarding shelterbelt problems. To date most of these inquiries have dealt with such insect pests as the Yellow Headed Spruce Sawfly, the Spider Mite and various types of Aphids and scales.

A close inspection of one's trees is required to prevent any serious damage occurring to ones trees from any of these little pests. Often these insects will cause considerable damage before it is noticeable from afar. Therefore, to maintain a healthy shelterbelt, the trees should be inspected at least once a year, preferably in the late spring, to ensure that there are no damaging infestations of insects at work in your trees.

Should you discover an infestation which you feel will be damaging to your trees, all these insects are controlled by the use of the safe pesticide called Malathion. It is important that Malathion be applied when the temperature is greater than 60 degree F. A possible exception to the above application could be Spider Mites when can be controlled by thoroughly washing the mites from the trees with water.

The actual spraying of the shelterbelts is often a problem on most farms. Tree spraying can be done by hooking a gun type nozzle (available for $25 to $30.) to any fairly high-pressure spraying system. Or if the above system is not available the County will spray your trees for a certain fee.

If you have any questions on trees or any other topics, please contact the District Agriculturist's office in Ryley. Phone 663-3553, for further information. We would be more than glad to help you.

Agricultural News

From The Office of the Ag. Fieldman

PEAR SLUG

Foliage on many ornamentals and hedges in the County will start turning a brown, scorched color in the next few weeks. Close examination will reveal that the upper portion of the leaves have been eaten away, or "skeletonized". This damage is caused by sawfly larvae, commonly known as pear slugs, feeding on the leaf tissue.

The adults which are dark bluish-black, wasp-like insects are now emerging from cocoons in the soil and are busy laying eggs. The eggs are deposited singly in small semicircular incisions cut in the leaf tissue. Hatching takes place about two weeks after the eggs are laid and the larvae complete their growth in four or five weeks. It is during the larval stages that the leaves are skeletonized.

The larvae are nearly half an inch in length when full grown. The body is so enlarged in the front that the head is concealed and the body tapers toward the tail end. The larvae secretes a slimy substance which covers the body, giving it a dark olive-green color and causing it to appear like a small slug. When the larvae are full grown they drop to the ground, where they overwinter as prepupal larvae in earthen cocoons. Since there is a considerable overlap in generations, larvae may be found from early July through August.

Root slugs can be easily controlled with little damage to the plants if they are spotted early. The host plants which are cotoneaster, hawthorn, plum, cherry, pear, mountain ash, and quince, should be closely examined about mid-July through mid-August for signs of larvae or early feeding. As soon as larvae or feeding is noticed a malathion spray thoroughly applied to leaves and stems as directed on the label for sawflies will give acceptable control.

A great deal of time and effort is spent in developing beautiful yards, shelter belts, and wind breaks. Insects, of all types, can destroy in a few days, what takes years to grow. Check your trees today.

Where cows were king

Cows were featured last Wednesday at B & H farms, near Millet, when the Northern Alberta Hereford Association held the last of five day-long tours for delegates to the 7th World Hereford Congress, held at Banff for the first time in Canada. Keen interest was shown by breeders from every corner of the world, who attended the show, and many acknowledged the last was the best. Paul Kallal's cattle, from Tofield, drew a good deal of attention, and he is seen here, comparing notes with some other breeders as the day progressed.

Former Tofielder passes in Red Deer

Hugh William McAllister of Red Deer, passed away on July 5, 1976 at the age of 53.

Mr. McAllister was born on January 6, 1923 at Tofield where he received his education. During most of his working years, he was employed by Northwestern Utilities Limited, first at Tofield, later at Wetaskiwin and in 1963 he moved to Red Deer. He had been awarded a service pin for 30 years of service with Northwestern Utilities Limited. In June, 1963, he was married to the former Jane Betty Anderson. Mr. McAllister was a member of the Kiwanis Club of Red Deer.

He is survived by his wife, Jane of Red Deer; three sons, William of Wetaskiwin and Robert and Warren, both of Red Deer; one stepson, Richard in Germany; two daughters, Linda and Lori, both of Red Deer; one stepdaughter, Mrs. Judy Becker of Red Deer; two step-grandchildren; four brothers, Peter of Camrose, Jim of Whitehorse, Yukon Territories, Don of Calgary and Arthur of Tofield, four sisters, Mrs. Emily Carlyle and Miss Kaise McAllister, both of Edmonton, Mrs. Margaret Pointer of Port Moody, B.C., and Mrs Minnie Ritchert of Chilliwack, B.C.

Funeral services for the late Hugh William McAllister were held from the Eveside Funeral Chapel, Red Deer on Friday, July 9, with Dr. Siegfried Koegler officiating. Cremation followed. Eveside Funeral Chapels Ltd., was in charge of arrangements.

VOL. 39—No. 49 Thursday, July 22, 1976 PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT TOFIELD, ALBERTA

Cabinet kills Dodds power plant

Premier Peter Lougheed last Thursday surprised nearly all groups concerned, as he unexpectedly announced the provincial cabinet had decided not to permit development of the Dodds-Round Hill coal field for generating electric power at present.

At the same time, Mr. Lougheed indicated the cabinet favored development of coal fields in areas of poorer topsoil, although it was conceded the coal under prime agricultural land would probably be needed later on, barring technological developments in the generating of power.

The area has been the subject of considerable controversy and discussion ever since Calgary Power announced it was planning a major coal-fired generating plant with a projected life of some 25 years. The company filed application with the Energy Resources Conservation Board last November for permission to develop the area.

Meantime, a group of farmers in the region formed the Round Hill-Dodds Agricultural Protective Association, and developed a campaign to have the reclamation potential proven before the soil was disturbed.

With an estimated cost of more than two billion dollars, the project would have involved some fifty-five square miles of farmland, some of it rated as No. 2 soil by the province.

The announcement by the premier was quite unexpected by all parties, and Fred Gotheridge, president of the Round Hill Agricultural Protective Association commented later, "We were prepared to carry on the fight over the next two or three years" to achieve their point. Mr. Gotheridge had said repeatedly the aim of the Association was not simply to stop Calgary Power in its Camrose-Ryley project, but rather to urge the development of a comprehensive plains coal policy, because of all the other coal deposits in the area which sooner or later may be explored for mining.

The government move, naturally, brought mixed reaction. Calgary Power's president M.M. Williams expressed concern over the decision, and the implications it involved for his company. He pointed out the company has already invested approximately five million dollars in the project, but hoped the information collected so far could be used later on if the site is considered for development in the future by the Alberta government.

Farmers in the area, and particularly directors of the association, felt the action vindicated the stand they had taken, and particularly their low-key, factual development of their case, with a minimum of hysterics or dramatics. Unifarm, which had supported the association in all its activities, was equally happy with the indication that the future of good agricultural land would be given major consideration by the government.

Several businesses in communities surrounding the plant, including Camrose, Tofield, Ryley and Holden, were disappointed that the expected development would not materialize, with its attendant business expansion. Others, however, and more quietly, expressed gratification that the potters of growth would be allowed to continue in a more orderly manner, and without the boom which might have developed.

Building gas supplies

Drilling is in progress on one of three new natural gas wells in Northwestern Utilities' Beaverhill Lake gas field. —Photo by Mills Parker

Hail report

July 15, 1976

The cloud seeding aircraft were very active on Thursday and Friday, July 8th and 9th.

Storms developed southwest of Rocky and Caroline during early afternoon Thursday July 8th. The Rocky one tracked toward Bowden and dissipated between Innisfail and Wamborne. The Caroline one, went over Olds and dissipated near Torrington. A third storm started near Buck

Northwestern drills 3 wells

Northwestern Utilities has drilled three new natural gas wells in the Beaverhill Lake Field. Two of the wells were brought into successful production this spring, and completion work is still continuing on the third well.

The three wells, all located near Tofield, will be tied to the company's field gathering system to increase the productivity of the dry gas field. The wells were drilled to a depth of about 2,600 feet.

Northwestern has 24 producing wells in the area, and 148 company-owned wells on its system.

The company will construct a 500-horsepower compressor to inject the gas from these wells into the transmission lines between Viking and Edmonton after boosting the pressure of the gas to about 300 pounds per square inch.

About 25 per cent of NUL's gas requirements are obtained from company-owned reserves such as those which are located in the Beaverhill Lake area. The company serves almost 200,000 customers in 153 communities, with a maximum demand of around 800 million cubic feet of natural gas per day.

Shaw Association hosts "soil" tour

Members of the Shaw Community Association hosted the annual Alberta Soils Tour during their stopover in the Camrose-Ryley region on July 20.

The Shaw Community provided a reception at the site of CanPac Minerals test excavation site where ongoing research of coal mine reclamation will be undertaken. The group also toured Black Nugget Park and the research test plots at the Burnstad site.

The Alberta Soils Tour is an annual event, sponsored this year by the Alberta Government Department of Agriculture. The 60 member tour includes government, industry, and university personnel engaged in the field of soil fertility and productivity.

The Shaw Community Association also hosted a meeting on July 19 with officials from Can Pac Minerals and Calgary Power to assess the situation facing its members after the announcement July 15 by Premier Peter Lougheed to cancel the proposed coal mine and power plant at the Camrose-Ryley Area.

Association members were assured that reclamation research would continue in the area, but other activities by Calgary Power and Can Pac Minerals would be suspended.

The Shaw Community Association will continue its assessment, of the impact of the governments decision to cancel the project without public hearings. The Association will also continue its liasson with Calgary Power and Can Pac to ensure its membership has a voice and influence in policies that effect its members.

Ryley girl on exchange

Miss Marlene Magnuson left on Sunday morning for a two-week 4-H exchange trip to Los Banos, California.

She is one of forty-five 4-H members and two adults who will travel via a chartered bus.

They will travel through Montana Utah, Arizona, and west to Los Banos, California.

Each member from Alberta will stay with a host family. They will also tour other parts of California before heading north through the Redwoods of California, Oregon, Washington and then into British Columbia and the Rocky Mountains.

A stunner

Premier Lougheed's sudden announcement last Thursday that the Canrose-Ryley project would not be given government approval was a real stunner. Nearly everyone was caught off base by the suddeness of the announcement, and most people were surprised that the "big companies" didn't just automatically win the round. Many had thought the opposition effort mounsied by the Round Hill Dodds Agricultural Protective Association and others might be effective in slightly delaying the program, or holding it back during more extensive trials, but even the president of the Association thought they'd have to fight for another two or three years.

One thing which should be noted, and which Canrose MLA Gordon Stromberg has been quick to point out, is that the premier didn't just slam the door on the power generating proposal. Rather, it has been deferred, or referred, for more information, for more expertise in reclamation.

"As presently conceived" and "under existing circumstances" are two of the modifiers used in the premier's announcement, and both leave the door wide open for a future application for development of the same field.

One can be sure, though, that reclamation capability will have to be far better proven than it has been to date, and that information will have to be absolutely as complete and as accurate as it is possible to make it. There are rumblings that one of the reasons the cabinet made the decision it did was that it was not satisfied that the information it was working on was either complete, or completely accurate.

The cabinet decision has raised many hopes, and dashed many others. Many of the farmers in the area can now feel secure on their land for at least a decade, before any new application to develop the land comes along, and by that time, developing technology may stave off even further the time for development.

Plans of Calgary Power and CanPac Minerals have been given a rude jolt, but in all probability they can salvage, over a period of years, much of the expense they have gone to. Some of the information gained will be useful in moving to other areas, and some of the information can be stored.

Developers in all the surrounding communities will see their hopes dashed, because rarely are they interested in the long haul, but mostly in immediate gain. Holden, Ryley and Tofield may lose a good deal of development, but much of it would have been so big for them as to cause major dislocations in their communities, even though it might be welcome dislocation. Canrose could much more easily have handled the attendant growth, but it was probably slated for a much smaller part of it, due to the distance, and the condition of road surfaces.

And here, too, deferral may be all for the good. Slow, steady growth is much to be preferred to jackrabbit gains, and the City Council is already facing numerous problems with the growth we have even now. An extra type of industrial employment would be a welcome addition to the job potential in the area, but few merchants who give the matter any thought would trade this for the presence of a hundred and fifty established farm families

Canadian Comment . . .

by Peter Ward

OTTAWA — (SP) It's amazing how things can change in a few short years. Back in 1970 there were howls of protest about American restrictions on the amount of Canadian crude oil allowed to imports.

Things tightened up considerably when the Arabs began turning the price screws, because Canada kept the domestic price at about $4.50 a barrel, and began charging an export tax on every barrel of oil sold to the Americans, bringing the net price to the U.S. up to world market levels.

In 1973 the National Energy Board produced a study of the volume of reserves in Canada of both natural gas and crude oil. It wasn't as pleasant a picture as the one we'd been shown earlier, but still, there was the Athabasca Tar sands, which contained reserves almost equal to the huge hydrocarbon deposits of the Middle East.

Here we've been given yet another picture. This latest version is gloom all the way. Instead of aiming at self-sufficiency in energy for Canada by 1980, the government now says it is aiming for self reliance in energy by 1985, with only one third of our oil needs supplied by imported crude.

Meanwhile, says Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie, Canada is going to move rapidly to world prices, to encourage conservation. So much for the great pioneers of a few years ago. And the guys charged with thinking out our nation's future today aren't doing so hot, either. Not a whisper in the report about development of alternate sources of energy.

That pessimistic report on Canada's energy reserves is also designed to justify the higher oil prices with which we'll be hit in a month's th ot, and to explain government haste in [illegible] drilling this summer in the Beaufort Sea. Politics.

Look at the programs which have been introduced during the past decade by the federal government: programs which have taken king-sized chunks out of Canadian resources and changed this nation into a fat, lazy sloppy country, instead of a thriving place with the people growing stronger each year.

Now we're going to be trusted to more of the same in the energy field. The private organization Energy Probe called the latest energy paper "a $100 billion exercise in treading water," and I'm afraid that's exactly what it is.

Servants of the people, not masters

Round Hill, Alberta
July 12, 1976

Dear Sir

I would like to comment on the article which appeared in the July 8 issue of the Edmonton Journal entitled, "Coal", by Stanley Williams.

Mr Williams fails to project the proper concept of democracy when he places the total power over coal in Alberta in the hands of Hon Don Getty, Energy Minister and the "boss", Hon Peter Lougheed.

Under the true concept of democracy, Hon Peter Lougheed is the servant of the people. So too, are all the Ministers of all the Departments of government. It is surprising how quickly a majority government loses sight of this basic principle.

If we, the voters of Alberta, concur in the concept as Mr Williams stated it, we will only serve to hasten the downfall of these men of power.

Also, according to Mr. Williams, the men in authority are bending over backwards to see that maximum benefits from the coal resource be derived for the people of Alberta. With mention made of the provincial labor force, service and supply industries, parks, wilderness and recreation areas, heritage sites, wildlife sanctuaries and so on.

But what about the poor dirt farmer whose land and livelihood will be at stake? He is the forgotten man on the totem pole. And what about the acres that will be taken out of food production? How compliacent we can afford to be when our shelves and our stomachs are [illegible]

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. Emma Bowthorpe.

Big round bales can be dangerous

Users of big round hay bales have come into the accident picture of late. The Alberta Safety Council has been receiving reports of deaths and serious injuries most of which occur when handling these giant bundles.

Some safety hints include:

— tipping the tractor

— the bale rolling off the raised front loader and back onto the operator

— the bale rolling downhill

Here are precautions that will make your haying operations safer

— operate the baling equipment as directed in the instruction manual

— if possible use a rear mounted carrier

— if a front-mounted bucket or fork is used, carry the bale low and keep the speed slow. Add ample rear ballasts to offset the heavy front load to maintain balance. If the tractor is a low-profile model and the bale obscures the view, carry it low and go slow, or drive in reverse- a heavy bale lifted high can tip the tractor especially on slopes, or during turns on rough ground

— drop bales where they can't roll

Make this hay harvest a safe one!

the Homemaker

It's Saskatoon Season

Mom mentioned that she was busy picking Saskatoons this last time I talked to her. They are so good. Betty Birch, District Home Economist at Swetlet sent this report.

Rumor has it that the saskatoons are plump and ready for picking. So starts the great race to the country, but remember to check with the owner of the property before you go picking. It's just common courtesy.

Saskatoons grow in clusters and usually ripen evenly so the whole crop can be picked at once.

Fruit that is barely ripe has a higher vitamin C content and gels more readily then really mature fruit. It's also better for freezing and preserving. If you're planning to make wine, Jelly ripe fruit is usually better as it has a higher sugar content.

But back to what you're going to do with those delicious berries once you get them. The first thing that comes to my mind is saskatoon pie. Mmm. Saskatoons are usually a little flat unless some acid is added. The acid is also needed to help get the fruit. Rhubarb, tart apple or lemon juice will give the needed acid to the berries. I find a good combination for a pie is about 3 cups of saskatoons and 1 cup of rhubarb. The rhubarb supplies some acid and a little juice, especially if the berries are a bit dry. Use about ¾ cup of sugar (depending on your taste) and 1 tablespoon of tapioca for thickening.

Pies may be frozen before or after you bake them and thawed in the oven before serving. A little rhubarb or raspberries added to the pie seems to keep the berries from being dry and hard after the pies have been frozen.

One recipe suggests adding a tablespoon of vinegar to each pie. This would provide acid.

If you plan to freeze saskatoons without making them into pies, pack them dry in bags or tubs. If you want to put sugar with them, the berries should be crushed slightly. Allow about 1 cup of sugar to 6 cups of fruit. Pack them in tubs.

Saskatoon Jelly - Put saskatoons and any other fruit you want to add in a kettle and barely cover with cold water. Boil slowly until well cooked. Strain through a jelly bag. Add three quarters as much sugar as juice by measure and cook for about twenty minutes or until two drops drop off of a spoon. Pour jelly in jars and seal with paraffin.

Saskatoon Jam - Use the same procedure as above except instead of straining through a bag, the fruit should be put through a coarse strainer

Tofield

Tofield operator named CB of Year

Alphonse Fontaine goes to bed with radio headphones on every night and usually he doesn't get much sleep

But the truckers who roar down Highway 14 don't sleep either and that's exactly what Alphonse wants.

A year ago, an inexpensive little citizen's band radio opened up a whole new world for him and all ex tors there, his constant vigil has made the roadways around Tofield a much better place to be

In appreciation of his dedications to the good causes of CB radio, CBers from the Tofield area and Edmonton gathered Sunday to name Alphonse "CBer of the Year."

At a surprise party on the lawn of his home, Alphonse, better known by his handle "Alberta Wheels," was presented with a fancy new Fanfare 300 radio and an elaborate 84-foot tower and antenna combination

Plaques, cards and a huge cake were inscribed with his new title and CBers gathered around to tell him how much they had enjoyed talking to him over the last year and how much they appreciated his hard work

For some it was the first time they had met in person the lively man who has spent almost all his 48 years in a wheelchair

"Isn't it marvelous to have all these people come out and do this? Isn't it wonderful to have friends like this?" he said, after he recovered from the initial surprise

All I can say is thank you. And I'm going to get out there now and talk to you all. I'm going to keep those truckers awake every night they're out on the road." Alphonse's old equipment gave him an average range of about 30 miles so he could communicate with people on the highways as far away as Edmonton. But his radio was beginning to wear out and the CBers knew how expensive new equipment can be

So about four months ago some of the Edmonton people started collecting money to buy him a new radio. It wasn't an easy task since they couldn't let the secret out on to the air waves but it soon began to snowball with people from as far away as Calgary pitching in enough money to buy Alberta Wheels a whole new set of equipment

On a good day, the new outfit could bring Alphonse in touch with people as much as 100 miles away

"He's been so good to people we wanted to show our appreciation," explains Rod Courtier, who operates a radio shop in Edmonton

Alberta Wheels helped Rod out when he ran out of gas at 4 a.m. and the wind was blowing a chilly 25 degrees on the highway

He radioed to Alphonse who quickly phoned for someone to take him gas.

Another time, a Tofield man saw a burglary in progress and rather than risk his own safety, simply radioed Alberta Wheels who immediately notified the closest RCMP detachment

But the work and camaraderie with local CBers, Alphonse really loves his association with truckers.

Three sometimes four trucks at a time will be parked outside his comfortable Highway 14 home where he lives with his father

He helps them when they're in trouble, gives them directions and then offers them a friendly cup of coffee any time of night or day

"I like them to stop for a coffee it helps keep them awake. But I'll just talk to them, too - I'll talk to them all night if need be," he says.

"It's just so marvelous. I get to talk to people from all over. I think it's never ending."

Alphonse lost his mother a few years ago and he and his father have had some "long, lonely winters," he said.

But last winter it sure did make the days and nights shorter Sometimes the nights were too short because I was enjoying myself so much."

He keeps his radio open to channel 19 all day and night and also has a set in his specially-made hand-operated car, so he is seldom away from the air waves for more than a few minutes

Alphonse is a skilled leather craftsman and refurbishes old violins and guitars but since he got his radio hasn't had as much time to be in his workshop

"I'll just be on the air now Giving you people a blast all the time," he says with a wide grin

Round Hill farmers ask accent on environment

Reacting to bleak environmental warnings from soil scientists of Alberta, Montana and Germany, the Round Hill Dodds Agricultural Protective Association is still fighting desperately to preserve a way of life for future generations of farmers against a proposal by CanPac Minerals and Calgary Power to strip mine some 60 square miles of prime farm land and build a huge coal-fired generating plant near Camrose. The group believes that decisions made regarding the Camrose Ryley project will establish a precedent for a massive development of strip mining projects which would affect agriculture across a large area of the province. The Environment Conservation Authority has been approached by the Association to hold public hearings apart from the more technical Energy Resources Conservation Board hearings scheduled for late fall.

The status of the E.C.A. hearings is still in limbo in spite of the fact that the E.C.A. has officially proposed those hearings to the Minister of the Environment. Hon. Mr. Russell's reply, in part says, "The Minister has informed the Authority that the Camrose Ryley Project is presently under consideration by the Energy Resources Conservation Board and the Government". The Authority has therefore decided to await further clarification from the Cabinet and the Minister.

Round Hill area farmers now ask what criteria Mr. Russell will apply when deciding how to hold a series of hearings which would be just as fair to the farming community as to the power plant applicants.

"We suggest to Mr. Russell that either government funding for a realistic intervention is provided, or alternately, sanction be given for E.C.A. public hearings. This decision has been delayed now for two years and we would expect, in all fairness, to have an answer to this proposal at the earliest possible date."

Fred Gotheridge, president of the Round Hill-Dodds Agricultural Association, referring to a recent meeting between his group and the Hon. Dave Russell, Minister of the Environment, said, "We were pleased that the Minister met with us on a cordial basis and particularly pleased with his remark, 'we are all working toward the same objective'".

Nevertheless our group is still concerned and frustrated by the prospect of attending e.c.a. hearings without the technical and legal expertise available to the applicant. We cannot afford to hire consultants to prepare a sophisticated type of intervention.

Instead, we have asked, along with other groups, for public hearings under the jurisdiction of the Environment Conservation Authority. We strongly prefer the E.C.A. hearings but it seems that Mr Russell is planning an expanded type of E.R.C.B hearing, "which includes people from the Department". We are not comforted by his suggestion, since E.R.C.B. hearings have always been attended by representatives of the Department of the Environment.

Until our concerns about restoration of the soil are satisfied as a result of a practical and scientific long term 'proof of recovery' we do not believe that a 'drawing-board' approach to hopeful restoration processes will satisfy the public good. Such a proven study would mean moving the coal mining project back some 10 years and we are of the opinion that Calgary Power cannot wait that long and still meet their objectives. We suggest that there may be other possible alternatives which would perhaps share across the province additional sources of energy with less impact on the social and economic concerns of any established agricultural community.

Since Mr. Russell sees the Environment Conservation Authority as an agency to study 'broad general terms of environmental concern', we are prepared to widen our terms of reference to include all presently developed agricultural land in Alberta which may be attached by strip-mining or other major industrial programs. We have conveyed this proposal to the Minister and the Premier by letter.

Hay Lakes seniors get grant

Hay Lakes Senior Citizens Club has received a grant from the Federal Government. Giving all the grant was announced by Health and Welfare Minister, Marc Lalonde under the New Horizons Program for Senior Citizens. The grant amounts to $5,869.

The money will be used to carpet and furnish a portion of the new addition to the Hay Lakes Community Hall, which was started earlier this year.

The area will be used exclusively by senior citizens of the area and will offer a variety of activities for the retired members of the community.

County Agriculture News

From the Office of the Agricultural Fieldman

One of the responsibilities of the Agricultural Service Board of the County is to enforce the Pest Control Act and to help control declared pests within the County.

The Norway Rat, Grasshoppers, the Warble Fly and bacterial ring rot in potatoes are all named as pests under the pest act. The coyote, magpie and shunk are named as nuisances under the same act. Farmers have the right to destroy a nuisance on his own property and is compelled to destroy a pest.

Other forms of wildlife causing problems to farmers are in most cases the responsibility of the Department of Fish and Wildlife.

Each year a few predator reports are investigated by the fieldman's office. Usually the predator is eliminated and in some cases the farmer receives compensation for his loss.

Every farmer who feels that he may have lost a farm animal because of a predator should contact the County Office. Even though one loss of a few chickens or one lamb, or a weak calf might not seem significant enough to warrant reporting, other reports from the same district might indicate a mutual problem exists throughout the area. Sometimes isolated losses can be linked together and the predator identified by the pattern of his kills.

Ministik news briefs

Mrs. Jim Reddick

Your correspondent is back on the job after enjoying almost two weeks vacation which took us across Saskatchewan, Manitoba part of Minnesota, North Dakota, Wyoming and Montana.

A day was spent in Yellowstone National Park, and only a small portion of what there is to see was seen but we did arrive in time to see "Old Faithful" put on it's hourly show.

I took this vacation with my daughter and son-in-law Edna and Glenn Ferguson.

Others of the area are also on vacation, among them being Theresa Rogers who is spending some time at Vancouver and on the Island.

The Bowermans also are enjoying their vacation at the west coast and visiting relatives and friends in Victoria and area.

Lorraine Davenport and Wayne Kleinschroth leave today for a survival camp in the Nordegg area for 5 days.

Gladys Swabey and Mrs. Alex Kleinschroth are patients in Tofield Hospital.

Greg Thor of Edmonton, and Wayne Pearce of Ardrossan, spent last week at their grandparents home, the Alex Pearces. This week, they leave with their respective parents on vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Waters of Summerland, B.C. were recent visitors with Tom's sister and husband, Violet and Michael Nauchuk. They visited other relatives and friends before they left for Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Bruce George and Barbara of Aberdeen Scotland, and Carol George of Calgary, were weekend visitors with Mrs. S. George, Dolly Reddick and Edna and Glenn Ferguson. Mrs. Dorothy Meyrick of Unity, Sask., also called for a visit on Saturday afternoon.

Peter Spohn of Los Angeles California was a Saturday visitor with the George Alex and Harvey Kleinschroth families also calling on the Andrew Fergussons.

The George Kleinschroths hosted a family birthday party at Hardisty Lake on Sunday, the occasion being Elaine's birthday. They later called on Jean's cousins, the Jim Lyles.

Rev. A.B. Sampson assisted his granddaughter, Cathie Waddle, with the church services at the United Church on Sunday.

Former P.O.W. passes July 10

On July 10, 1976, James Earnest Tiedemann of Tofield passed away in an Edmonton hospital after a lengthy illness at the age of 52 years.

He was predeceased by his father, Herman in 1974.

He leaves to mourn his passing, his mother Mrs. Lily Tiedemann, and 4 brothers, Walter of Tofield, Joe and Marvin of Calgary, and Floyd of Edmonton.

Funeral services were held from the Tofield United Church on July 13th with Rev. John Ohlinger officiating. Interment was in the Tofield cemetery.

Pallbearers were Lloyd Norn, Jerry Lawrence, Hugh Witney, Gerald Tiedemann, Bill Surrette and Bert Tiedemann.

Jim was born and grew up in the Tofield area. He enlisted in the army at the beginning of the war, where he served with distinction until he was captured by the Germans and spent seven and one-half months in Camp Stalag No. 7. He was wounded twice, received a number of medals and was honorably discharged at the end of the war.

CONTROL OF HOUSEFLIES IS ALBERTA

Houseflies are the most numerous & most annoying insect pests in and around livestock handling facilities during the summer months in Alberta. Because they frequent unsanitary situations such as manure and garbage piles, they can become infected with disease organisms which can be transferred to humans via stomal and food contamination. Flies are capable of flying five to 10 miles and can thus carry pathogens from livestock feedlots to nearby urban centres without difficulty. Besides the public health hazard, flies are also a nuisance just by their presence in homes, offices, and classrooms, often in overwhelming numbers.

The rapid build up of fly populations during the early summer necessitates some method of control being applied. Otherwise populations become so large later in the summer that effective control becomes more difficult and costly. The best control procedure is a combination of proper sanitation and proper chemical application to keep fly numbers at an acceptable level. Without a proper sanitation program, chemical control will prove to be unsatisfactory and will be a waste of time and money.

Sanitation

Houseflies breed in such materials as manure and garbage piles, rotting hay, silage, and moist, spilled grain. These sites should be removed and disposed of by May so overwintering adults have fewer places to lay eggs. This clean up procedure should be maintained on a weekly basis throughout the summer and early fall. Clean out silage pits thoroughly, remove spilled grain from around grain storage and bundling facilities and under feed banks. Make sure manure is removed from inside pens and outside under fences. Flies do not breed in pure manure, therefore bedding and manure accumulated over the winter provides an excellent breeding site and should be removed and spread on fields as early in the spring as possible.

However, as is often the case, manure accumulated over the winter cannot always be removed to the fields due to wet soil conditions and must be piled for later disposal. It is because of such circumstances that insecticide control should be initiated once the first generation of flies is noticed in May.

Electric Flying-Insect Traps

A number of electrical devices have been developed that can assist in reducing fly numbers in confined areas such as offices, homes, milking parlors and rooms, small barns, suction tale rings, etc. These electric flying-insect traps consist of one or two ultra-violet lights surrounded by two screens. The screens are energized by a transformer, and the flies, attracted by the ultra-violet lights, are electrocuted when they attempt to fly between the screens. The moisture of the body of the insect completes the electric circuit.

Chemical Control

Chemicals can be applied by three methods: residual wall sprays, fly baits, and insecticide-impregnated strips.

Residual Sprays: Residual sprays are applied as a low pressure spray to areas where flies congregate, i.e. ceilings, light fixtures, windows, doorways, stanchions, and walls. Outdoors flies congregate on walls, fences, and other surfaces exposed to direct sunlight, especially in the morning and late afternoon.

By limiting the application of residual sprays to areas where flies congregate, less chemical is required and more effective control is achieved. Depending on the residual life of the insecticide, repeated applications may be necessary as soon as any increase in flies is noticed.

Fly Strips: Fly strips or bands are especially useful in restaurants, milk rooms, etc. where sprays are not permitted. The flies are either killed by contact as they rest on the bands, or are killed by fumigant released by the bands or strips.

Fly Baits: Fly baits are manufactured in various formulations and mixtures, consisting primarily of an attractive bait mixed with an insecticide. Baits alone are not always effective for controlling flies but in combination with residual sprays provide very satisfactory control. Placing bait stations in areas where flies congregate greatly increases their effectiveness. Be sure to read label instructions and keep the baits out of reach of children.

If you have any questions on this or any other topic, please contact the District Agriculturist's office at Ryley, phone 663-3553, for further information. We would be more than glad to help you.

Top hog handlers

The best hog trucking firms in Alberta received industry awards when the Livestock Protective Society held its annual meeting in Red Deer on April 9. At the request of The Canadian, the Society made the picture above available for printing, showing two of the winners are well known hog haulers in this region. Third from left is Joe Duggan, proudly holding the trophy awarded C.J. Duggan and Sons as 1975's top hog handlers. The award was to the Overall Alberta Winner, for hauling over 50,000 hogs, with only 12 losses. Extreme left is Bruce Campbell, of Forestburg, who won the category two award, and was acclaimed for an outstanding record, losing only two hogs after hauling almost 14,000 hogs. Second from left is E. Schneider, while right is George Crothers, a second time award winner.

Gordeyko stallion thrills Stampede

One of many exceptional exhibits seen by Calgary Stampede patrons at the Heavy Horse Show in Place Square July 12, 13th, and 14th, was the massive Clydesdale stallion, Bardrill Enterprise, from Okotoks. Flown to Alberta from his native Scotland April 30th, this majestic young stallion is the first Clydesdale in the history of the breed to win the male championship at both the Glasgow Stallion Show and the Royal Highland Show. Since that double win in Scotland, as a two-year-old, Bardrill Enterprise has become the center of attention in the Clydesdale world. When paraded at the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede on Monday morning, Bardrill Enterprise made his debut on the North American tanbark.

Bardrill Enterprise has been coveted by Clydesdale breeders from Australia, New Zealand, and the U.S.A. and Canada. When the Gordeyko Bros. of Okotoks, succeeded in negotiating the purchase of this handsome bright bay, the Clydesdale world was staggered with their good fortune. The arrival of Bardrill Enterprise in Alberta is hailed as a cornerstone event in the annals of this breed.

A substantial number of Clydesdale breeders from across Canada and the U.S.A., turned up at ringside, to witness Bardrill Enterprise put through his paces. Herding this number were representatives of the Anheuser Busch Inc. brewing firm from St. Louis, Missouri. This corporation is much taken with Bardrill Enterprise, looking upon the stallion as a potential sire of the quality hitch horses sought for their celebrated Budweiser eight-horse [illegible]

Recreation Report

by Val Charteris

Looking for some excitement?

The Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Department may have the answer. On Friday, August 6, we are sponsoring a "Teen Beach Party" at the Camp Lake Private Beach. Admission is $1.20 per person. Weiners and buns, marshmallows, and refreshments will be served. The time is from 9:00 p.m. till 1:00 a.m.

If desired, bring your sleeping bag and you may sleep on the beach.

There is limited parking space, therefore, come in car pools.

Please - respect the camp and its facilities. No alcoholic beverages permitted. If this beach party goes over well, others are sure to follow.

Here is some more information on the overnight bicycle tour:

The tour will begin on Monday morning, August 16 at the Lindbrook Store. We will then continue to Tofield, Ryley, and Holden. An overnight stop will be made at the camp site, a mile west of Viking. The tour will resume the following day to Camp Lake. Another overnight stop will be made. A cool drink will be available at each venue. Food will be available at Camp Lake and the Viking Camp Site. The fee of $4.00 per person will cover all costs.

So, come on teens, talk to your biking buddies and join in our bicycle tour. Register with the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Department, Box 5, Ryley. Phone 663-3730 before August 11.

District news items from Ryley

Lena Reil

Bob and Debra Cross visited in Ryley and district from Friday evening to Sunday afternoon. Bob attended a party for Barry Stumbo on Friday night, and Debra visited her aunt and uncle. Sunday evening, they had Debra's aunts, Ida and Lena, accompany them to Edmonton.

Mrs. Robyn of Ryley is a patient in an Edmonton hospital.

Mrs. Dagny Joines is happy to be back home after spending some time in the hospital.

On Friday, a lovely lawn party was held at the Harold Vergette home. A nice evening was held by all. Their children, Annette Short, Gary Vergette and Yvonne, her husband and baby, and other [illegible] attended.

Bible School was held in the United Church last week with a program on Friday evening.

Anniversary

The 25th wedding anniversary was held for Audrey and George Knudsen on Saturday in the Ryley Community Hall with a large crowd turning out from the district and other communities.

All their children were home to make the special event complete.

Keith Robson was the emcee for the evening. Alvin Knudsen, brother of George, also spoke on different things, while pictures were being shown of the earlier years and their romance. Other speakers were Doris "Nord" Ogrodnick, Bob Cross Sr., Bill Johnson "Former councillor", Harriet Ruddy, Harold Parsons, a gentleman speaking for M.L.A. member, Mr. Baresh. Four ladies, Beth Kope, Milly Helgeland, Ruth Mankinen, and Janet Johnson sang a couple of songs which were enjoyed by all. Joe and Doris Ogrodnick's daughter played a couple of lovely pieces on the piano. The Knudsen family, along with Grandpa John Knudsen, best men and bridesmaids, were seated at the head table which looked lovely with the wedding cake, candles, etc. Lunch was served and a dance followed.

Kevin and Brent Podruzny of Camrose spent last week visiting Grandpa and Grandma Anderson in Ryley.

Wilfred and Carol Helgeland and boys of Camrose were Sunday callers on Stan and Ida Hanka.

Around the town

Friends and relatives entertained Mr. and Mrs. Mike Korbie of Vancouver, B.C. last weekend.

The June winner of the Tofield Curling Club's $100 draw was Don Kondrat while Don Litwin was the July winner.

Brenda and Debby Langerak of Grande Prairie are visiting with their grandparents, the E. Kennedy's and aunt and uncle, the E. [illegible]

Holden Bonanza Club draw winners for recent months were: April - Jim Tymchak, Holden; May - Alan Jensen, Tofield; June - Connie Engiers, Edmonton, and July - Olive and F[illegible]ing Sand, Camrose.

Mr. and Mrs. Stan Voltner and family have returned from an enjoyable holiday in the Helena, Montana area.

Gary and Elaine Niemitz and family from Malta are here to visit their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Niemitz, and to help them celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary.

Carol and Dave Boschman of Whitecourt were weekend visitors with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Wiens and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Boschman.

Mrs. Crystal Klinker and daughter, Jeannette, of Germany, are visiting friends in Tofield.

Mrs. McCowan and Mrs. Saltzman visited with Yvonne Brown last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Garford have returned home after a holiday in Banff and points in B.C.

Bill Blake handed a small phone on the airstrip in Tofield last Sunday morning, and picked Ed Ferguson up and they flew to Peace River. Before leaving, he gave Shaun, Tommy, and Mark Gilmore their first plane ride.

Mrs. Margaret Bruce and Linda of Nanaimo, B.C. are visiting relatives and friends of Tofield.

Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Robinson, Mrs. J.A.L. Smith, Edith Mary Smith, and Dr. J.G. Williams, and Mr. and Mrs. W.G. Stephenson and Bruce all attended the 10 o'clock service at All Saints Cathedral last Sunday. All enjoyed a lovely barbecue dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W.G. Stephenson in the early afternoon. It was a happy re-union for all, and many pictures were taken.

Nursing degree

Donna Kathleen Prokopczuk, daughter of William Ingram and the late Mrs. Ingram of Kingman, received her Bachelor of Science degree in Nursing (with distinction) from the University of Alberta recently. She was a former graduate of the Camrose Lutheran Bible College and the Royal Alexandra Hospital School of Nursing in Edmonton. Her nursing career has included work at the Mount Zion Hospital in San Francisco and a head nurse position in the Neurosurgical operating room Unit at the University of Alberta Hospital. In 1975, she received a Provincial Training grant Bursary valued at $2500 and the University of Alberta Hospital Women's Auxiliary Bursary valued at $500. She is currently a consultant with the 3M Company in the Medical Product Division and will, in addition, become Head Nurse of the operating room administration at the University of Alberta Hospital in June.

Fund for Hungry

Net receipts for the Fund for the Hungry Campaign held recently in Camrose stood at $6,769.36 as of July 3, reports Ken Hirsch, general chairman of the program.

Auction sale receipts totalled $4,116, while cash donations amounting to $2,737.71 were received, for a total of $6,853.71.

This was offset slightly by expenses of $25 for telephone, $50 for posters, and $9.35 for counter pads, making total expenses of $84.35.

It is suggested, by the committee that the account still open and anyone wishing to add a cash contribution may do so by leaving their donation at Burgar Funeral Home or the Safeway Store.

The committee wishes to express a grateful appreciation to all who have contributed either by donated articles or cash contributions, as well as the many who worked and supported the Auction.

IN MEMORIAM

NIELSON In loving memory of Dick Nielson, who passed away July 24, 1975.

A precious one from us is gone
A voice we loved is stilled
A place is vacant in our home,
That never can be filled.

Ever remembered. by loving wife Jeanie, children and grand children.

STAUFFER: In memory of our parents, William and Katie Stauffer. Mother passed away July 22, 1972. Father, May 13, 1976.

We're orphans now, the six of us
And yet we have each other
These many years now, we have learned,
To live without a mother.
At first it seemed we could not bear
The pain it brought to mind,
But we have learned that others care
For God is good and love is kind.
Now papa's chair is empty too,
He left quite suddenly,
God called him home to be with Him.
His child throughout eternity.
As each memorial year rolls by
Our Christian heritage we treasure
We thank God for our parents
And for His love beyond all measure.

Ever remembered by the children and grand children

Tofield Fair plans being finalized

By Dora Brown

On Friday evening, members of the Fair Committee of the Tofield Agricultural Society met at the arena to finalize plans for the Tofield Fair and the Provincial Horticultural Show, to be held in Tofield on Aug. 14 and 15th.

This year the Fair goes for two days, Saturday and Sunday, and has a total of 279 classes in five categories - Horticulture, Field Crops and Vegetables, Kitchen Crafts, Handicrafts and Art, and the Horse Show.

In all sections except livestock the judging will take place from 2 p.m. until 3 p.m. on Saturday. The exhibits will be open to the public from 3 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday and from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. on Sunday. Exhibits may be brought to the arena and staged on Friday from 2 p.m. to 9 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The judging of horses will begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday, August 14th. A closed gymkhana will be held on Sunday at 2 p.m. The annual "High Point Trophy" will be awarded to the rider winning the most points in the gymkhana events.

All entries must be in to the Secretary by August 9th. Additional prize list books have been printed and are now available for anyone who did not receive one by mail. These may be picked up at Dykeman's Confectionary. Dykeman's also have a good supply of entry tags; exhibitors should pick up as many of these as they require. An entry tag must be filled out and attached to each exhibit.

HORTICULTURE SHOW

This year the Provincial Horticultural Show is being hosted by the Tofield Garden Club and is being held in conjunction with the Tofield Fair. Already entries have come in from Camrose, Wetaskiwin, and Red Deer. As well, a number of displays will be staged. Brooks Experimental Station, Calgary Correctional Institute, Lakeland College (Vermilion), and several from Edmonton have already reserved space. These exhibits and displays from other areas are going to add much to the interest of our show.

A Horticultural Banquet is being held at 6:30 p.m. on Saturday, August 14th. Tickets are now on sale at $3 each, and everyone is welcome to attend.

For a very enjoyable and educational weekend plan now to attend the Tofield Fair.

Tofield Horticulturists to host provincial show

The Tofield Garden Club is hosting the Provincial Horticultural Show on August 14 and 15th. Horticulture exhibits from across the province will be displayed in the Tofield Agricultural Complex, along with other displays of interest to gardeners, lawn spers, and "green thumbs".

Exhibitors are asked to complete their entry forms and to return them to Theresa Jones, secretary of the Tofield Garden Club, Tofield, by August 9th. Entry forms and prize lists are available from the same place.

Those who would like to attend the opening banquet at 6:30 p.m. on August 14th should make their reservations before August 1st.

The show will be held from 3 p.m. to 10 p.m. on August 14th and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on August 15th.

In addition to exhibits, the Tofield Garden Club has arranged for a number of displays, including a display of horticultural books.

The Provincial Horticultural Show, an annual event which is held in different parts of Alberta each year, is designed to bring together as many exhibitors from across the province as possible. This year it is being jointly sponsored by the Alberta Horticultural Association and the Tofield Garden Club.

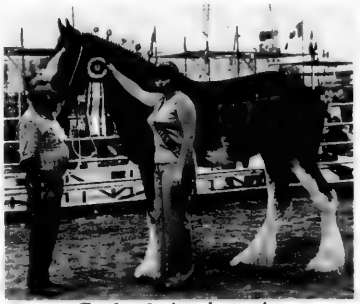
CLUB PLANS TOUR

Members of the Tofield Garden Club are planning a bus tour to Edmonton on Thursday, Aug. 5th, to see a flower show at Southgate and to stop at a Silly farm on the way home. Anyone interested in going is asked to contact Yvonne Brown at 662-2651.

WORKSHOP

The Garden Club is sponsoring an exhibitors' workshop on August 3rd at 7:30 p.m. in the arena. Anyone interested in learning how to arrange and display flowers and vegetables is welcome to attend. You may bring your own materials, flowers, vase, etc., to work with if you wish.

The date of the next Garden Club meeting has been changed to August 2nd at 8 p.m. at the home of Mary Rempel. Entry forms for the Provincial Horticulture Show should be brought to this meeting if possible.



Gorkeyko's win again

Grand Champion Clydesdale Stallion in the 1976 Heavy Horse Show, at Calgary's Stampede Park. July 12 to 14 was Wiltony Jack, two-year-old stallion, owned by Gordeyko Bros. of Okeon. In total, six breeders competed in the Clydesdale exhibition out of the total of 26 entries for the three-day event. Other breeders from Alberta, two from British Columbia, and one from Saskatchewan participated in the show.

Tofield and Viking to quit Rec Board

The Town of Tofield and the Town of Viking have given notice that they will withdraw from the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Board, in letters received at the board's regular meeting on June 30th.

Viking's withdrawal from the Beaver Recreation Board will be effective on Jan. 1, 1977, while Tofield will also pull out as of Dec 31, 1976.

In discussions related to the 1976 budget, it was questioned as to whether or not umpires and referees should be paid. Superintendent George Baker said the only time they were paid was when they had attended clinics, but there were no clinics this season.

There also was a discussion on what courses would be available this year. Mr Baker was asked to get information regarding a Pedal Pushers Course and a Defensive Drivers' Course. Following all discussions, the 1976 budget was accepted by the board.

It was decided that any surpluses received under the 3 mill levy be put into a savings account "in trust" until such time as the Master Plan has been accepted by the Board or until the monies are needed.

Board members expect to receive a report about the programs being sponsored by the Further Education Council in Tofield and Viking, from Mrs. Jean Giebelhaus for the next meeting.

Present were Henry Nachtigal and Andy Heilweg from Tofield, Cecil Stannard of Ryley, Bruce Budd and Dennis Cooper of Holden, Henry Field of Bruce, Len Josephson and Al Willmer of Viking, Mrs. Ivy Mellier and Don Armitage of Kinsella, John Melnyk representing the County of Beaver, and Recreation staff members George Baker, Miss Val Charteris, and Mrs. Betty Castellano.

Margaret Wenger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jon Wenger of Camrose, graduated as an R.N. on June 25th, from the Misericordia Hospital school of nursing in Edmonton.

Her earlier schooling took place in Tofield and Camrose. She will be employed at Beaverlodge Hospital.

Holden Fair is planned

The Holden Fair will be held on Monday, August 9th, with other events, planned in conjunction with the fair, to be held on a spot to day on Sunday, Aug. 8th.

A ball tournament will commence at 10 a.m. on Aug 8th. The feature attraction of the afternoon of the day will be a gymkhana. The fair itself will follow the next day.

It is hoped that more details will be available next week.

COME TO THE FAIR

August is the time of many fairs in the County of Beaver - Holden, Aug. 9, Tofield, Aug. 14, 15, - Viking, Aug. 16 and Ryley - Aug. 18. I hope that you are planning to attend your local fair. Will you be an exhibitor? The success of community fairs depends on contributions from everyone in the community. Do your part!

Every year there are some questions about judging. Remember that the judge is human. She is asked to make choices and does so to the best of her ability. She must be realistic in her expectations and at the same time, maintain a high standard of workmanship. A judge has the right to refuse placing an article that does not meet minimum standards. She should not be asked to make decisions regarding fair rules. Such decisions are the responsibility of the local convenors.

When you are planning an exhibit, make sure you read the prize list carefully. It is important to follow the rules and regulations exactly. If six raspberries are asked for, make sure you have six exactly. Otherwise your exhibit should be disqualified.

If you would like more details regarding exhibits and judging ask for the pamphlet "Judging Standards for Foods, Sewing and Handicrafts".

Have fun at the Fair!

God's Answer to Fat-Loose It
You won't enjoy this book if you are overweight and unwilling to recognize this condition as a spiritual problem. Frances Hunter tells of her scales ups & downs over many years as she tried one diet after another. Nothing produced lasting weight loss until she acknowledged overeating as a sin declared herself a "foodaholic" and turned her appetite over to God. VEGETABLE GARDENING

There are many tips and hints floating around as to how to improve the quality and quantity of your garden vegetables. And this week, we would like to pass on a few of these tips that may aid in improving your vegetable garden.

1. When growing cabbages of ten a major problem is cracking of the heads just before harvesting. Cracking of the heads is caused by the cabbage obtaining too much water when the head is near to maturity.

To prevent or reduce cracking of the cabbage heads, give the heads a twist, once they are quite well developed, to break off the small, fibrous roots, close to the surface. This way the water supply to the cabbage will be reduced and prevent the heads from cracking.

2. In order to obtain white cauliflower heads, tie all the other leaves together at the top as soon as the heads begin to develop.

3. When growing corn there are two main things to remember:

1) When the corn is at silking time, or the period of pollination just before development of the cobs, it is important that the corn has abundant moisture at this time. This will result in larger and higher quality cobs.

2) When harvesting the corn cobs be sure to cool them off to approximately 40 degree F in order to ensure that the corn will remain sweet in flavor. The best procedure would be to harvest the corn in the early morning while it is still cool and then to refrigerate the corn cobs.

4. The use of mulches between the rows in a vegetable garden serves several important functions. For example they are an aid in: 1. keeping the weeds down between the rows. This will reduce the amount of labor required to keep the garden weed-free. 2. Reducing variations in soil temperature and this allows for better growth of many sensitive vegetables. 3. Reducing the amount of moisture lost from the soil by evaporation. This aids in keeping the soil from dying out which allows for more infrequent watering of the garden. 4. Preventing the soil surface from crusting.

There are two types of mulches - organic and inorganic. Organic mulches tend to be cheaper and work just as well as an inorganic mulch. Organic mulches include peat moss, leaves, grass clippings, straw and compost heap material. When they decompose they add valuable humus to the soil. Black plastic sheeting is an example of an inorganic mulch.

Mulching involves spreading the organic or inorganic material around the base of the plants. The depth of mulch depends upon the type of material used. Grass clippings, for example, may be an inch or more thick, while black plastic sheeting may be 4 to 6 mils thick.

Black plastic sweiched over the soil between rows of plants hastens plant maturity and holds in the soil moisture, but it should be removed at the end of the growing season.

If you have any questions on this or any other topic, please contact the District Agriculturist's office at Ryley. Phone 663-3555, for further information. We would be more than glad to help you.

PURPLE PRAIRIE SCHOONER

The North-West Canadian Wagon Train one to try and finish their journey to Peace River from Toronto" arrived in Ryley on July 23rd during the noon hour. Prince and James seemed so relaxed pulling the covered wagon and are in wonderful shape. They must get a good curry comb and brush combos each day. While in Ryley the members of the covered wagon, J.R. Houghton and his son Jon and daughter Barbara, fed and watered their team and many from Ryley and district gathered around the wagon to hear of the experiences they have had along the way. The group presented the crowd with plaque as a souvenir. Mr Houghton and children seem to be most interested in what they are doing. They were presented with a souvenir from Ryley group. Under the leadership of Mr Neufeld. Walter Norton. Johnny Pish, and others, the Houghtons were treated to dinner. Many pictures were taken of them, both in Ryley and on their way to continue their journey to the Peace River Country.

Mrs. Margaret Cross passed away in a Calgary Hospital on July 23rd at 80 years of age. Her husband Ralph Cross, passed away in 1974. She is survived by three sons, Robert of Ryley, Chester of Calgary, and Bill of Bothe, two daughters. Gertrude Christiansen of Veteran and Ruth DeChamplain of Richmond, B.C.; 16 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren; also a brother, Robert Markel of Casper, Wyoming. Funeral services were held on Tuesday at Forest Lawn Full Gospel Church in Calgary. Graveside services were held on July 28th at the family plot at Ryley.

Andrews - McLaughlin Funeral Chapel were in charge.

90th BIRTHDAY

Many friends neighbors and relatives called at the Adolph Pehrson home in the Gladstone district when they held open house on Sunday afternoon for their uncle, Ole Pehrson, on his 90th birthday.

Ole was born in Norway and came to Alberta from the States in 1902. He is always cheerful and quite active for his age and takes a walk each morning. On Sunday he greeted his friends seated by a picnic table on the lawn. A lovely birthday cake and flowers centred the table. The lunch included a Norwegian dish, lefse, which his nieces had made. On open faced sandwiches was smoked salmon which his niece and nephew, Mr and Mrs. Gunnar Stave, brought from Prince Rupert, B.C.

His nieces and their husbands who came from a distance were Mr and Mrs. Archie Spokie and Allan of Prince George, B.C and Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Stava and their daughter Mrs. Glenn Mattson and baby son Guy of Prince Rupert, B.C

Mr and Mrs. Leander Lang and Mrs. Amelia Neufeld are spending the week in Victoria, going by plane, and Amelia will spend her 50th birthdate there

BRIDAL SHOWER

A bridal shower was held on Saturday night at the Gladstone curling rink for the July bride-elect Brenda Orchenki, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Stan Orchenki.

The m.c. for an amusing program was Mrs. Vivian Larson. The bridesmaids and their mothers assisted in opening the many lovely gifts, for which the bride-to-be expressed her thanks.

The wedding of Brenda Orchenki and Howard Siebold was held on Saturday, July 24th, at Daysland United Church. Reception and dance was at the Heather Bluff Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Algot Hultholm spent two weeks in parts of B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Olsen and Lars Olsen are on holidays in England.

Helmut and Agnes Roth have returned from an enjoyable trip to Peace River and Dawson Creek, B.C.

Mrs. Doreen Simpson and children of Edmonton were Sunday visitors at the Gens and Robert Anderson homes.Mr and Mrs. Roy Elander and family were Friday overnight guests with her folks, the John Bracos, enroute from Saskatchewan where they visited his folks and friends. On Saturday they returned to their home at Calgary.

Harold and Kay Anderson of Edmonton and their friends, a couple from Ottawa, were Tuesday guests with Mrs. Gena Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mc Aurther and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Stroeagus of Barrie, Ontario, and Herman Lawson of Tofield were Wednesday visitors at the Don and George Campbell homes and are also visiting other relatives for a few days. They came by plane

Christian Olsen of Prince Rupert, B.C., a former resident here, is visiting his niece, Norma, the Morley Jamnans at Winnipeg, Man.

Mr and Mrs. Lyle Olstad returned home on Thursday after a holiday to Montana and Idaho. At Idaho Falls, Idaho, they were amazed to see the destruction where the dam had broke this spring. Houses were floating and a heavy caterpillar tractor had gone down stream for 28 miles and another caterpiller still had not been found

Many locally attended the silver wedding on July 17th at Ryley Community Hall for Mr. and Mrs. George Knudsen. George is the reeve of the County of Beaver

Mrs. Deanna Sladayk, Shelly, Brian, and Trena of Calgary and the Alvin Brstruds were visitors at the Clifford Brstrud home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Logan of Camrose accompanied Mrs. Ron Brstrud and Richard and Shelly Sladayk to Wetaskwin on Saturday.

The East Hallahaon family are away on holidays.

Emcee at Fair

A native Albertan, Dusty Lee Rivers will be master of ceremonies when the annual Camrose Fair is held August 9, 10, and 11. Rated on• of the best country entertainers in the area today, he has a diverse background contributing to his program, and the depth of feeling he brings to his own performances. Lumberjack, rancher, truck driver, publisher, he's now a rodeo man and an actor. He rides, he sings, he writes, he composes. He's worth seeing when the Fair comes to Camrose.

Hastings Lake pioneer passes

Miles Henry Barrow came to Canada from England in 1909, settling in Ontario and Manitoba for awhile, then moving to the Edmonton district. He worked as a dray man in Edmonton and also on the Grand Trunk at Tete Jeune Cache for many years.

His uncle, Harry Seale, came with him to Canada, and Tovell and worked with him. Then they moved to Hastings Lake district where he bought a homestead and operated a small store on his homestead.

Later he met his wife, Sarah Margaret, and were married and lived on the homestead until 1955, when they retired and moved to Tofield where he lived until his death.

Mr. Barrow passed away in his 93rd year on July 2nd in the Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton. He was born on March 15, 1883, in Lancashire, England.

He was predeceased by his wife, Sarah Margaret, in 1962; one son, Miles William, in 1961; his uncle, Harry Seale, in 1961; one step-son in 1972; also a brother in England.

Mr. Barrow is survived by 4 daughters and one son, Virginia Everitt of Edmonton, Winifred Liefke of Calgary, Isabel Sutton of Edmonton, Thelma Johnson of Kamloops, B.C., and Verlyn Barrow of Tofield; two step-daughters and one step-son, Bessie Barnes of Red Deer, Myrtle Plasmith of Edmonton, and Robert Mair of Drayton Valley; one nephew in England; nine grandchildren, ten great-grandchildren.

Rev Ingram officiating Pallbearers were the grandsons, Dale, Rod, Glenn, Bernie, Miles, and Brian.

CARD OF THANKS

Our heartfelt thanks to all who extended comforting sympathy and help in our recent sorrow. For the beautiful service, floral and memorial offerings, and other kindnesses, we are deeply grateful

Public invited to 4-H showcase

The public is invited to attend all or any of the events in two days full of 4-H activity at the Camrose Fairgrounds this Friday and Saturday, as hundreds of 4-H members from the West Central Region gather for a Jamboree Days program.

Both mornings start at 7 a.m. with a pancake breakfast, and run all day long with homemaking exhibits, dairy and beef cattle exhibits, horses and riding, truck and tractor driving, handicrafts, and other displays. Friday's program winds up with a weiner roast at 8 p.m., while Saturday's ends with a dance starting at 9 p.m.

Jamboree Days has a three-fold purpose, including a fun-oriented wind-up activity for clubs and members of 4-H, an additional level of competition, and to provide a showcase of activities and projects to people not directly involved in the 4-H program.

Joint sponsors are the 4-H Council, Chamber of Commerce, and both city and county councils.

Committee chairmen from this area include Janet Kerr and Ken Houghan, both of Camrose, and Emma Innocent and Sian Gould, both of Rosalind. Many other workers are involved in the planning.

Shaw community meet over mine

The Shaw Community Association also hosted a meeting July 19 with officials from Can Pac Minerals and Calgary Power to assess the situation facing its members after the announcement July 15 by Premier Peter Lougheed to cancel the proposed coal mine and power plant in the Camrose Ryley Area.

Association members were assured that reclamation research would continue in the area, but other activities by Calgary Power and Can Pac Minerals would be suspended.

The Shaw Community Association will continue its assessment of the impact of the government's decision to cancel the project without public hearings. The Association will also continue its liaison with Calgary Power and Can Pac to ensure its membership has a voice and influence in policies that affect its membership.

Members of the Shaw Community Association hosted the annual Alberta Soils Tour during their stopover in the Camrose Ryley region July 20.

The Shaw Community provided a reception at the site of Can Pac Minerals test excavation site where ongoing research of coal mine reclamation will be undertaken. The group also toured Black Nugget Park and the research test plots at the Burnsted Site.

The Alberta Soils Tour is an annual event, sponsored this year by the Alberta Government Department of Agriculture. The 60 member tour included government, industry and university personnel engaged in the field of soil fertility and productivity.

Ryley Council notes

A regular meeting of the Council of the Village of Ryley was held in the Council Chambers on Thursday, June 17th, at 7.30 p.m. with the following present Mayor Baker, Councillors Brown, Berton, and Taylor, and the Secretary-Treasurer R.C. Haviland, and the Town Foreman John Jeffrey.

Moved by Mayor Baker that the Secretary-Treasurer be authorized to sit on the Ryley Library Board as a representative of the Village Council.

Moved by Councillor Brown that the Town Foreman be authorized to hire occasional labour for additional work at $3.00 per hour for the two months of July and August, 1976.

Letters in response to the motion of the Power Plant site south of Ryley as proposed by CanPak and Calgary Power were read. Moved by Councillor Brown that these letters be received and filed.

By-Law No. 12 - 1976 being a By-Law of the Village of Ryley to enter into an agreement with other Municipalities to provide Low Rental Housing Units for Senior Citizens. Moved that By-Law No. 12-1976 be read three times with the consent of all councillors present and finally passed.

Moved by Councillor Taylor and Mayor Baker that the Representatives of the Village of Ryley be authorized to enter into an agreement with respect to Regional Land Fill for the purpose of disposing of Garbage when meeting with the committee proposing such at a meeting to be held at the Beaver County Office.

Moved by Councillor Brown that the Council meet with Mr. Bishop on July 5th to make temporary arrangements for garbage disposal.

A letter as received from Mr. Pollack that he wishes to develop the N.E. part of the village lands, and wishes to purchase same. Moved by Councillor Brown that the Secretary-Treasurer be instructed to inform Mr. Pollock that the Village is not at present selling this part of the Village until such time as a general report on sewer mains and sewer lift Station can be located.

Moved by Councillor Brown that Mr. Kilparchuk be informed that the Village can not sell Lot 4, Block 16, Plan 4980AD to him and that the monies deposited with the Secretary-Treasurer be refunded.

The meeting was adjourned at 10:45 p.m.

Slug control tips

Slugs can be a real problem in flower and vegetable gardens as well as in greenhouses. They attack vegetables, ornamentals and small fruits, especially ripe strawberries, and have caused damage in many Tofield and area gardens.

The practices of adding a layer of mulch to retain soil moisture and to keep weeds under control promotes better plant growth, but it also provides ideal conditions for slugs. Since both soil temperature and moisture are important for slug survival, anything that promotes soil moisture retention and the avoidance of temperature extremes, as mulches do also increases slug survival.

Most slugs feed at night, but some feed on dull, damp days. They are very hardy, but in hot dry weather or during frosts they do not feed or come above ground. They lay their eggs in the soil or under boards or rubbish. Newly hatched slugs will mature and begin reproducing in three to five months, depending upon the temperature. Hence, slugs which hatch in the spring could mature, mate and lay eggs in the fall for next year's generation.

An important part of slug control is sanitation. Get rid of plant rubbish, boxes, sacks and other material that provide the slugs with a hiding place in which to lay their eggs. Sanitation is extremely important in greenhouses where it is always damp. Do not let any plant material collect under benches or in corners.

Traps or barriers are useful for protecting special plants in a small area. Boards not less than six inches square make effective traps. The slugs will collect under the board which you can pick up each morning to remove the slugs. The best barrier against slugs is a fly screen four inches wide. Slide the lower edge about 2 inches into the soil around the plant that is to be protected.

There are many commercial baits, dusts and sprays on the market for slug control, and all are effective when used according to directions. For best results apply them on a warm, moist night when the slugs are most active. Since all slugs do not come out every night, repeat the treatment five days later. If the slugs are abundant, more applications may be needed. Place the material as close as possible to the plants, but do not spray or dust the edible part of any plant.

Further information on baits, dusts and sprays is contained in the publication "Control of Slugs - 1976", prepared by Agriculture Canada and distributed by the publications office, Alberta Agriculture, Agriculture Building, 9718-107 Street, Edmonton, T5K 2C8.

The Richardson Ground Squirrel

The Richardson ground squirrel, mistakenly referred to as the "prairie gopher", inhabits the prairie and parkland region of Alberta. This rodent is found from the Montana border north to the Wentzel, Smith, and Athabasca area, and from the Alberta - Saskatchewan border west as far as Lake Wabamun and southwest along the Alberta foothills.

The animal is approximately 10 to 12 inches in length and may weigh from 8 to 15 ounces when full grown. They are badly yellow in color with irregular grayish patterns on the dorsal surface. The ventral surface may vary from buffy grey to brownish yellow. The tail is short, flat, and slim, the ears are small. Both sexes are about the same size and color when full grown but great variations may be found in this species throughout its distribution in Alberta.

The preferred habitat of Richardson's ground squirrel is the treeless prairie region where high densities may be found. Moderate numbers inhabit the northern parkland and fringe agricultural areas.

Richardson ground squirrels hibernate during the winter months and emerge in the early spring. Adult males are usually the first to appear above ground about the latter part of March and the first week in April. Females emerge about mid April. Breeding occurs within 1-2 days after the females emerge.

The young are born in underground dens during early May, after a gestation period of approximately 21 days. Litters average about eight young, but may be as high as fourteen. Only one litter is produced each year. Young of the year emerge from natal burrows during the first three weeks in June.

Juvenile ground squirrels establish their own burrows when they are 1 to 2 months old. Several burrows are usually clumped in one area. Open grassy areas are preferred for burrow locations. Burrows vary in length and depth depending on soil type. They vary from 12 to 49 feet in length and may be as deep as 6 feet below the ground surface. Nest cavities within the burrow systems, where ground squirrels spend the winter, are 4 to 6 feet below the surface. Nests are made from dead grass.

Ground squirrels are active during the daylight hours. Most of their above ground activity is spent feeding or collecting nest material. Feeding periods are in the morning and late afternoon, although ground squirrels may feed for short periods throughout the day. Their diet is varied but consists of seeds, stems, roots and leaves of grasses and forbes. Insects may also be eaten. Ground squirrels may feed on animal flesh, primarily the remains of road-killed ground squirrels. Ground squirrels are preyed upon by hawks, coyotes, weasels, and badgers.

Onset of hibernation is not a sudden event but a gradual one. Ground squirrels feed intensively on vegetation during the spring and summer and accumulate a fat reserve in preparation for hibernation. Adults spend less and less time above ground once the fat stores are adequate. The majority of adult males enter hibernation in June, while adult females hibernate in July. Young of the year enter hibernation last, generally in early September.

Ground squirrels in agricultural areas can become a serious pest. They may consume large quantities of vegetation and gather quantities of grain seeds. Burrow openings may be a danger to livestock, ground squirrel digging activities may hinder drainage systems and contribute to soil erosion. At the same time the ground squirrel's burrowing activities may be beneficial by admitting air and water into the soil and improving the water-holding capacity.

The Holden and District Agricultural Society Fair Committee advises that the plans are now finalized for the fair on August 9th, at the Holden Complex. They will have someone available on Sunday commencing at 1 p.m. to accept entries.

Judging of the exhibits will take place on Monday morning, August 9th, at 9 a.m. The exhibits will be open to the public from 12 noon to 6 p.m.

In addition to this there will be the following displays or information booths:

puppet show, "Just LIke You", show time 1 and 4:30 p.m.; legal information booth, open 1 to 6 p.m.; (both puppet show and booth sponsored by University of Alberta Extension); Ukrainian dance performance, show time 2.30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m., information booth, Lakeland College - Vermilion and Further Education Council, open 1 to 6 p.m.;

Vegreville Public Health Unit information booth and film, open 1 to 6 p.m.;

pottery demonstration on wheel, by Mrs. D.P. Sinclair, during the afternoon. A smoh fry will be held from 5.30 to 7.30 p.m. to wind off the day's activity.

Fair entries deadline soon

by Doris Brown

Entries for the Tofield Fair close on Aug. 9th, the Fair Committee reminds the public, and exhibit tags may be obtained at Dykeman's confectionery.

Members of the Tofield and District Agriculture Society pay no entry fee, and non-members pay $1 per family. Those wishing to enter horticulture classes (Section 11 must pay an additional $1, payable to Tofield Garden Club, if they are not a member of the Horticulture Society.

The Horticulture, Field Crops and Vegetables, Kitchen Crafts, and the Handicrafts and Arts will be judged at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 14th. The exhibits will be open to the public for viewing from 3 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Prizes will be presented at 2:30 on Sunday.

The judging of horses will begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday with anticipation of even larger classes than last year. A closed gymkhana will be held on Sunday, Aug. 15th, at 2 p.m.

Puppet show informs

From: Just Like You,
Legal Resource Centre,
229 Corbett Hall
University of Alberta,
Edmonton, Alberta.
COMING SOON:
JUST LIKE YOU

The animals in the forest are having problems: the big ones are picking on the little ones, and some animals are taking food gathered by the others. So, all the animals get together and pass laws and set up a court and law enforcement system. This is the basic story of a new and exciting puppet show to be presented at Fairgrounds, this Monday, August 9 at 1 and 4.30 p.m.

Just Like You is a project of the Legal Resource Centre of the University of Alberta. Lois Gander, director of the Legal Resource Centre stated that the puppet show is aimed at the 8-12 year old age group. However, the show which is produced and directed by Roy Small and Lynette Maurice of Patchwork Puppets of Calgary, will be enjoyed by people of all ages.

The cast consists of eight animals with Bear the policeman, Raven the lawyer and Owl the judge. All the puppets are operated by three puppeteers; Clayton Jevne, Steve MacInnes and Barry Kowalsky.

Accompanying the puppet show will be a Legal Information Booth manned by two law students from the University of Alberta; Ian Fraser and Ian Schofield. Pamphlets and information on all aspects of the law and the legal system will be available. The whole project is being funded by the Alberta Law Foundation.

The Legal Resource Centre was recently established to provide public legal information to the more rural areas of Alberta. Prior projects, according to Lois Gander include a speakers bureau, publication of pamphlets and production of audio-visual [illegible].

Just Like You, puppet show and legal information booth, will be at Holden this week. Incidently, admission is FREE.

Holden Sports Day

The Holden Senior Baseball Club is planning a sports day on Sunday, August 8th, commencing at 10 a.m.

This will take place at the sports grounds with teams participating in both baseball and football.

Later on in the afternoon, the Tofield Gymkhana Club, under the sponsorship of Holden and District Agricultural Society, will present a gymkhana in the arena.

Around the Town

Visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Romaniuna is his brother Joe and his daughter Lynn of Surrey, B.C. Also, Mrs. Ed Romaniuna and Linda and Ed of Kamloops, B.C., were last week visitors.

Recently Mrs. Beth Richie and daughter Janet of Ontario were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Romaniuna and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Williams. These three ladies attended school together and are renewing their acquaintance after 37 years.

Doctor and Mrs. Prasbury returned from a visit with their daughter, Kathleen Prasbury of Kamloops, B.C., and with Mr. and Mrs. George McPadman of Victoria, B.C. They report sunshine all the way.

Visiting with Mrs. Audrey Brown and relatives are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Yates and Mrs. Elizabeth Allan from Lancashire, England. Mrs. Yates and Mrs. Allan are nieces of Mrs. Turner and cousins of the Browns. They will visit more cousins at Spruce [illegible].

Buck to open show

by Doris Brown

Dr. Wahter Buck, M.L.A. for Clover Bar, will officially open the Provincial Horticultural Show being held in Tofield on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 14 and 15th. The official opening will take place at the arena at 8:30 p.m. on the Saturday.

Roger Vick of Edmonton, curator of the Devonian Botanical Gardens, will be guest speaker at the Horticultural banquet to be held on Saturday, Aug. 14th, at 6:30 p.m. in the United Church basement. Tickets are still available at $3 each and anyone interested is welcome to attend.

The public is also reminded that on Sunday afternoon, when the show closes at 5 p.m., there will be an auction of plants and produce.

MAKING ENDS MEET

It is rumored that a university graduate will earn $600,000 in a lifetime and high school graduates will earn $600,000. That is a lot of money to spend without planning or thinking. Money should work for you not against you.

Most people shy away from budgeting. Some say they tried it once, that it was a failure, and that they think it will be again. Some believe it may cause more family quarrels about money. Some believe it may tie them down too much; others think it is too complicated and that it involves too much dreary bookkeeping. Still others object on the grounds that it won't increase savings or that nobody else does it.

A budget is a plan for spending money. It is important to plan your spending. Some reasons are to obtain your goals, to educate your children, to make ends meet, and finally to convince the bank manager that you have plans for ordinary spending. (This might be important when obtaining a loan).

A budget is made before-hand, it is not a record of how you spent your money but a plan of how you wish to spend your money. It is suggested that you plan a budget over a year with a five year plan for more long ranged goals.

A budget must be flexible. Bring all the family into the planning. Be specific about what you want to do. Keep your budget simple. Don't expect to follow the expenditures of the average person. Work out what you want. Plan for large expense items so that you are not caught by an unexpected expense. Don't try and keep track of every penny unless you get a lot of fun out of adding up columns of figures or have a needs for being exact. Have a slush fund for ordinary spending.

Remember that the aim of budgeting is to create a little more happiness, not a little more gloom. Saving can be compared to mountain climbing; the goal is easy to see and when means easily attainable, but the route is difficult and many fresh starters loose hill by the wayside. Whipsaw! That's the word to keep in front of you.

Hastings Lake

Lynn Gaten

The "Sunshine Lonesome" concert will be at the hall on August 9 - 12th from 9 p.m. to 2 p.m., all children in the area are invited to attend and join in the fun.

The Ladies' Group will meet on August 16 at 1 p.m. at the home of E. Petersen.

The regular monthly meeting of the Community Association will be held on August 16 at 8 p.m.

Recent guests with the Gaten family were Hevin's mother, Hilda Gates of Calgary; Lynn's parents, Mary and Ray Brown of Westlock, B.C.; and Lynn's brother, Allan Brown and family of Calgary.

The Southview County Fair is to be held August 21 at the Colchester Fellowvale Agricultural Complex. Hastings Lake Hall will be open on Thursday, August 19 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and you are requested to bring your contributions at that time. Any questions pertaining to the fair may be directed to Mrs. B. Chemick at 662-2742.

Recreation Report

By Val Chernish

We are now into our second and final month of summer recreation in the County of Beaver. As residents, but interested in most programs which is great to see.

The playgrounds will continue in Tofield, Ryley, Holden and Viking until August 20. If your youngsters is boy years old or over, send him or her to your local playground . The fee is only $1.75.

The traveling playground will be at Beaverhill from August 9 - August 13; Ryley from August 16 - August 20; and Lindbrook from August 23 - 27.

But at Camp the closing date is undecided. A lawyer overnight over to Camp Lake has been planned for anyone 12 and up from August 16 - August 18 and perhaps 19 August 20; but, as yet, no registration have been received. If no registrations have been received by August 11, this program will be cancelled.

If you have questions re. the area, do not hesitate to contact us or the recreation office.

When are your feelings on the programs we have offered this far? If you have requests for the fall or summer of '77 programs send them in written form to the recreation office.

If you are planning to apply for a Capital Facility Budget Cooperation Grant, they are now due. The deadline for applications is August 30, 1976.

Holden and district new items

Mrs. G.H. Taylor

Mr. John Fennel of Viking, passed away on Monday, July 26th, 1976 in the Viking Hospital at the age of 70 years. Mr. Fennel and family came to Holden in 1920 and resided in the district until 1941 when he moved to Viking to farm and lived there until his passing. He leaves to mourn his passing, three daughters, Mrs. Joe (Anne) Isaac of Chilliwack, B.C.; Mrs. Ina (Emily) Lidstrom of Viking; Mrs. Archie (Esther) Nearing of Viking; seven sons, Isaac, Mike, Louis, Ted, Frank and Edward all of Viking, and Joseph of Holden; sixteen grandchildren; one brother and three sisters in Poland. He was predeceased by two sons, Aaron in 1926 and Leo in 1968. Prayer services were held in the Viking Roman Catholic Church, Viking, on Wednesday July 28th at 8.00 p.m. and Requiem Mass was held on Thursday, July 29th at 10.30 a.m. in St. Mary's Catholic Church in Bruce with Father Adamyk officiating. Interment was in the Bruce cemetery.

Visitors the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tiedemann were Mr. Ed Gessler; his sons Pat Gessler and Melvin all of Edmonton also his daughter Jean. The Gessler family were long-time residents of Bruce and Holden, when Mr. Gessler was agent of the C.N.R. depots.

Erna Depoton of Edmonton drove down Sunday, July 25th, taking Mr. Isabey, Mr. Steven Depoton back with him. Visiting for th. week with the family also to attend the wedding of his granddaughter, Judy Bilyk, only daughter of Gene and Ollie Bilyk of Wombach whose wedding took place on Saturday, July 31st, in Edmonton. Judy who has been teaching for the past three years in one of the schools in Wombach has now obtained a teaching position in an Edmonton school and will be making her home there.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Nichols returned home on Saturday afternoon after spending the week at Saskatoon, Sask., visiting with Ray's brother and his wife, also at points east of Saskatoon visiting with other relatives and old friends. The crops were looking very good there and receiving had started with one combine working and the garden produce was excellent.

Ministik district notes

Mrs. Jim Reddick

Many of our residents have been on holidays recently, some on short jaunts, others for several weeks.

Lloyd, Kay, and Debbie Grassmett returned last Friday from a three week trip which took them first to Port Alberni, B.C., where they spent a few days with Lloyd's sister, Margaret Crossmeier. In Victoria they spent some time at Beacon Hill Park, and at Butchart Gardens, then to Everett, Wash., to visit an aunt of Lloyd, in Portland, Oregon, they spent several days with Kay's sister Bernice and family. One of the highlights of their trip was a visit to the Redwood forest and the Trees of Mystery in California.

Gladys and Frank Bentley and the Bob Bentleys from Jackson Lake spent five days at Sunbeam Hot Springs.

Jean and Russell Rowland spent a week at Fort Macleod with Jean's sister and brother-in-law, Maggie and Mack Hamilton. They took in the Stampede at Stand-Off while there.

Barbara and Albert Herricks went north to the Grande Prairie and Peace River area for three days last week. They marvelled at the wonderful crops and hay fields. Let us hope these Peace residents get this crop off safely before a frost strikes as so often happens.

Joyce, Baden, Myron, and Brent Bowerman spent three weeks vacation in the Victoria area of B.C., visiting relatives and friends and viewing the scenery.

Betty and Keith Williams attended a school reunion of Betty's former school in the Vermilion area.

Theresa Regier and an old friend returned last week from vacation in Vancouver, Victoria, and area.

The Thursday sewing group of the Craft Centre had their pictures taken with the quilt they recently finished, on the lawn of the Frank Dunne at Deville Tickets are now on sale for this quilt and on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday ladies of the group will be selling tickets on the mall at Sunspec at Sherwood Park. Funds will go to the centre.

Due to most Hissing school pupils being away on vacation with their parents, Sunday School is cancelled for Aug. 1 and 8th. Calvin Waldie, student minister, is on a week's camp expedition at Meadowtown, so services are cancelled at Ministik and South Cooking Lake Churches for Sunday, Aug. 8th.

At the recent Klondike Days, Olivina and Verdun Sears entered several articles and won prizes. Verdun got a third prize for his tool house, also a third for his leader cutter. Olivina received a second for her shortbread cookies, a third for bread buns, and a third for her candle. They were guests with all other exhibitors at a dollar party.

Mrs. Marie Kooiman of Iona was a recent visitor with Mrs. T. George.

Mrs. Janice Hamm will be at Ministik Hall on August 17th, from Ministik Hall on August 17th from 6 to 9 p.m. to collect all articles for the County Fair which are not edible. On August 19th, from 6 to 9 p.m., she will collect edible articles. Be sure to take your fair articles on either of these evenings.

College continues secretarial course

The extension department at Camrose Lutheran College plans to continue the 30 week training program for prospective secretaries again this fall. The course in the past has been highly successful, and has been well received.

Enrolment will be limited, but the offering of the course is also dependent on sufficient applications being received. Financial assistance may be available for some applicants through Canada Manpower or Advanced Education for those who qualify.

A minimum of Grade Eleven math and English are required, but previous professional experience of the maturity of the applicant may be considered sufficient to waive this requirement.

Further information can be obtained from the Director of Extension Services at the College. Date for the start of the course has not been determined, but it could be as early as September 13.

"Second Chance"

This books has answers for any marriage, but particularly for husbands who have trouble following the biblical injunction to be the spiritual heads of their homes. There's no pat formula here, but David is a living example of a husband who became a drunken bum before he found that the Bible really had the key to his winning back the love and respect of his family.

David & Sarah Van Wade

"The Gift of Inner Healing"

Ruth Carter Stapleton shares the principles and tools she has found for communicating the love of Jesus to the hurting child within. "There is a solution to every problem. Since Jesus is the same yesterday, today and tomorrow, He is able to go back into our lives and heal the traumatic episodes. He can speak to our deepest needs and bring total healing to every person".

Mrs. Ellen Eaton

On Wednesday, July 21st, the Lakeshore U.C.W. met at the home of Mrs. Thomas James for their annual pot luck picnic dinner. Quite a good turnout of members and also some visitors were present. After a very enjoyable dinner, the meeting was held with discussions on business matters. After the meeting coffee was served by the hostess, and the ladies left for home after having enjoyed a tour around Thomas gardens and viewing her beautiful flowers. The next meeting will be announced later with the time and place.

Margaret Eaton and her friend Mellard Kerr of Fort McMurray arrived at the home of Marg's grandmother, Mrs. Ellen Eaton on July 23rd, coming by motorcycle.

On Sunday, July 25th they along with Marg's brother Ronnie Eaton, Marvin Ross and Ellen Eaton attended the annual pot luck picnic dinner and reunion of the Fischer family and relatives at the Good Hope Hall. Ellen is an aunt of the Fischer family.

After visiting other relatives and friends, also going to one day at the Edmonton Exhibition they left for home on Sunday, August 1st.

On Sunday, August 1st, Howard and Mae Ferguson entertained the following, Mae's mother, Mrs. Roberts of Tofield, her sister Marguerite and Don Bailey of Edmonton, Howard's sister Mrs. Mabel Bailey of Tofield, also their daughter Mrs. Loretta Walz and her friend, John Lamour of Tofield, their son Nelson Ferguson of Edmonton and a friend Ken-Al Olsen, were all at Mengworths's belated birthday dinner.

Howard and Mae Ferguson were Monday, Aug. 2nd, afternoon visitors at the home of their daughter, Doris and Howard Brown and family.

Rod and Isabel Rudnicki and family were Sunday afternoon visitors at the homes of their son Donald, and Diane Rudnicki and Isabel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kyle all of Camrose.

Cheella and Mickey Wimmer were Saturday afternoon, July 31st, visitors at the home of Mickey's brother Howard and Mae Ferguson.

Deanna and Arnold Nelson and family motored to Bruce on August 1st, to attend the Bruce Stampede.

Kevin and Judy Eaton of Fort McMurray were afternoon visitors at the home of Kevin's grandmother, Mrs. Ellen Eaton on July 29th, also overnight guests, leaving Friday to attend the Ed monton Mercury.

Lovey and Shirley Eaton of Fort McMurray arrived Friday night (July 30th) to spend part of their vacation at the home of Lovey's mother, Ellen Eaton. They spent Saturday visiting Shirley's mother Mrs. Vern Roper at Lavoy.

Ellen Eaton accompanied her daughter-in-law, Shirley Eaton and son Ronnie to Vegreville on Monday, August 2nd, to watch the parade and attend the opening of the Vegreville Fair. Several people from Tofield also were there to attendance, Arnold Jones was competing in the oldtimer Fiddler's contest.

Palmer-Earling and district news

Mrs. Joe Knudson

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Oppen of New Westminster, B.C., were visitors with Mrs. Alice Larsen and the Alvin Brazeaus and other friends and relatives.

4-H returns to Agriculture

4-H programs will be officially transferred back to the Department of Agriculture later this summer, after having been transferred from that department nearly ten years ago. Currently the 4-H work is integrated under the Department of Recreation, Parks and Wildlife.

The transfer came about as a result of recommendations made by a special task study into the 4-H Program and its relationship to government. Consisting of representatives from government and the private sector, the task force was established following the Alberta government's decision to transfer youth programs associated with the former Department of Culture, Youth and Recreation to appropriate content departments. The transfer is expected to facilitate the co-ordination and liaison with other rural and urban youth development programs.

The 4-H Program was transferred to the Department of Youth from Alberta Agriculture in 1966 with the idea of giving the young people of this province a government department and, hence, an identity of their own. However, since that time the government has undergone many changes, and it now appears that Alberta youth prefer to have access to many government departments rather than to be tied to a specific one.

Since 1966 enrollment in the 4-H Program has almost doubled and now stands at 11,500. A fairly substantial proportion of the members come from Alberta's smaller cities, towns and acreages on the fringe of cities like Edmonton and Calgary. Members' ages vary from 10 to 21, but the majority are in the 10 to 18 age group.

The number of projects available to 4-H members has also increased in the last 10 years. In 1966 there were 13 projects, now there are 29. Among the projects that have been added are outdoor sports, handicrafts, photography, automotives, apiculture and speech arts. All members are now actively involved in public speaking and communication.

The projects are also more specialized than they used to be. In the beef projects, for example, there used to be only steer feeding; now there are heifer sub-projects, carcass sub-projects and so on. This specialization has come about as a result of the increased specialization in the agricultural industry itself.

Travel exchanges and camping are areas of the 4-H Program that have expanded considerably in recent years. The exchange programs include travel within the province, within Canada and to foreign countries.

Still another area of expansion has been the creation of 4-H councils. These councils co-ordinate the activities of 4-H clubs on a district, regional and provincial level.

Ted Yonck, director of the 4-H and junior forest wardens branch, sees a continuation in the present growth of the 4-H movement, which, incidentally was established in Alberta in 1917 - almost 60 years ago! He also envisages 4-H playing a vital and, perhaps, even more active role in the communities from which its members come.

On Monday afternoon, Mrs. Ed Knudson and her mother, Mrs. Muriel Bergman, accompanied the Theed Weitendi of Camrose to the Vocational Centre in Edmonton to attend Janice Weitendi's graduation as a nursing aid.

Mrs. Art Kolasky accompanied her mother, Mrs. Jersey Bosch, and Alex Bosch of Camrose and attended the wedding of her niece, Marion Beamish of Daysland, and James Loesch of Sirome at the Catholic Church at Daysland. The reception was in Sirome. The happy couple will reside on a farm near Sirome.

Mary and Mike Umryah spent the week in B.C.

Mrs. George Graden and daughter Rosalee were Sunday overnight guests at Stony Plain with Mr. and Mrs. Doug Gardner. Shannon Gardner returned home with them after spending a week at the George Graden home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Charpentier, Mona, Todd, and Vincent and Mrs. Lil Anderson of Camrose spent the week holidaying at Surrey and Kelowna, B.C. Assisting with the chores when they were gone were Jim's mother, Mrs. Vernon Charpentier and Roxanne of Bawlf South.

Recent visitors at the George Graden home were Rosalee Graden of Stony Plain who spent a week. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bowden and children of Boyle. Mr. and Mrs. Julius Otto of Cromfield, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Graden, and Mr. and Mrs. Doug Gardner, all of Stony Plain.

Richard Stensrud of the States was a brief visitor with his cousin, Elmer Stensrud, Mrs. Helga Stensrud, the Albert Speeldings, and the Sam Lockhorts.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kvale on July 26th at St. Mary's Hospital a daughter, 5 lbs. 4 ozs., named Barbara Lynn.

Scouts, Beavers hold Jamborees

Wildrose Boy Scout District was delighted with a first for scouting in this region - a Beaverette a short time ago in the park in Portsmouth. It began with an opening ceremony about noon, followed by a winner event.

Events included a sing song, games, a hike to the lake to see a beaver dam, an obstacle course and a pot-luck supper attended by parents and special guests totalling over 100.

Closing ceremonies consisted mainly of presentations. Each of the five groups participating - 4th Camrose, Edberg, Portsmouth, Hay Lakes, and New Norway - was presented with a participation plaque by Joyce Olson, Beaver Coordinator. Following this, Walter Bremness, past District Commissioner; John Hall, present DC; , and Frank Jackson, Regional Commissioner, were each presented with a Beaverette Badge and a wooden Beaver pin. The presentation was made by a Beaver from 4th Camrose and Portsmith. In return, John and Walter presented Beaver badges and pins to all Beavers and leaders who participated. DC John Hall was then presented with a District Beaver Flag which had been made by Joyce Olson and Edna Wesenberg.

The rest at recent campsite was held at Treasmeer's Farm, a week later with all groups represented and a total of 83 boys registered.

Activities were both challenging and interesting. The results of some of these activities are as follows:

Hike - 1, 3rd Camrose, 2, Hay Lakes, 3, Tofield; Inspection - 1, Sorrell, 2, Hay Lakes, 3, Portsmith. Be Prepared 1, Tofield, 2, Kingman, 3, Sorrel; Rifle Range - 1, Tofield, 2, Hay Lakes.

Several Scouts from Wildrose are this week at the Jamboree at Sylvan Lake which opened July 25th.

The annual Cubaree was scheduled for June 11-13, 120 boys were registered but the heavy rain resulted in closure of camp early.

Royal Bank opens new Holden office

Mrs O H Taylor

The official opening of the new Royal Bank was held on Monday morning with many residents of Holden and District attending the occasion.

Officials representing the Royal Bank were W.P. Pairee, Regional Manager, and G G Pearson, Market Development manager, each making appropriate remarks regarding the new building and its development in Holden and each giving Clay Schoning credit for his interest and help in the completion.

The men were introduced by Mr. Schoning who also introduced the local representatives. Lyle Grenland, president, represented Holden and District Chamber of Commerce, who remarked that the new building showed confidence in the business done here and was a smart addition to the Village; Bruce Budd, mayor of the Village of Holden officiated at the ribbon-cutting ceremony and said the new bank was a very welcome addition to the appearance of the Village.

A former employee of the Royal Bank, Sherman Perve of Camrose, attended. He had commenced his career with the Royal Bank in Holden in 1929 then was transferred to Calgary in 1935, later being for a number of years in the Bahamas from where he retired in 1972.

The new bank is up-to-date with spacious quarters for all purposes, a good sized storage room, well equipped staff room with all necessities, also something much needed, a small private compartment where customers came to look over their private business and papers, and a janitors, locker-room.

The color scheme is in shades of browns and orange. The manager's office is in greys and blacks.

Coffee and lunch was served during the business hours during the day, catered to by ladies of Holden U.C.W., and Mrs. Clay Schoning poured coffee

The staff and equipment had been moved the previous week from the old building which was built about 1912.

The Traders Bank came to Holden in 1909, and the Royal Bank took it over sometime in 1912 with the late George McVittie being the manager.

During the past several years, the inside of the old bank has had renovations and paint jobs outside but, has now become obsolete for business and serving the public as many who are senior citizens had found the entrance difficult to get in.

The final plans are now being made for the Ryley Fair to be held on Wednesday, August 18th.

Entries in the categories of cut flowers, vegetables, fruits, baking, preserves, sewing, arts and crafts, junior activities, and crop show must be at the Community Hall by noon on August 17th.

Judging will take place on the afternoon of the 17th, with exhibits open for viewing from 1:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m. on the 18th.

There will also be a horseshoe tournament, a pot show for children, a tug of war, races of all varieties, and a self-barbeque steak supper from 5:00 p.m. to 7.30 p.m.

Many other activities, displays and booths are planned and everyone is invited to participate.

Provincial show opens on Saturday

Tofield will be the site of the Provincial Horticultural Show on Saturday and Sunday, with the Tofield Garden Club as hosts.

Opening ceremonies are scheduled for Saturday night in the Tofield Arena, with Dr. Walter Buck, M.L.A. participating in the by the Tofield and District Agricultural Society.

The Agricultural Fair will feature exhibits of field crops and vegetables, kitchen crafts, handicrafts, and art work.

As well, there will be a horse show and a greasbarn.

Earlier in the evening, a banquet will be held in the basement of the Tofield United Church with Roger Vick of Edmonton as the guest speaker. Mr. Vick is the curator of the Devonian Botanical Gardens. Tickets are still available for this banquet and may be obtained from Garden Club members at a cost of three dollars per ticket.

All displays will be open to the public on Sunday. The show officially comes to an end at five o'clock on Sunday afternoon, after which there will be a sale of plants and produce.

The Provincial Horticultural Show is being held in conjunction with the annual Tofield Agricultural Fair, which is put on

Around the Town

Friends and relatives gathered at an open house in the Tofield Community Hall on Sunday to help Mr. and Mrs. George Nicosia celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary. Ida's brother, Vic Ulrich and her sister, Emma Schultz, who stood up with George and Ida, were both able to be present. Besides their children, Don and Deanna Nicosia and family of Pincher Creek, Gary and Elaine and family of Malta, Carl and Bob Onishko and family of Kamloops, B.C., other out of town guest were George's mother, Mrs. Joe N'amito of Ladner, B.C., Vic Ulrich and family of Calderose, Elsie Currie of Toronto, Harold and Clara Ulrich of Calgary, Ralph, John and Lucy of Innisfree, and relatives from other points in the province. In the evening, George and Ida entertained at a buffet supper in their home.

Mercury's owner passes on Aug. 3

Funeral services for the late K.E.O. 'Ken' Pairige, publisher of The Mercury, were held in the Camrose United Church on Friday afternoon.

Mr. Pairige had been stricken by a heart attack about three months ago, and was just starting to regain his strength, when he was admitted to hospital with a blood clot in his leg, and passed away on August 3rd. He was 67.

The Pairiges moved to Camrose in 1947 after Ken entered into partnership with the late Rae L. King in publishing The Camrose Canadian. Later, Chuck MacLean purchased Mr. King's share of the business, and the partnership of Pairige and MacLean bought The Mercury.

Ken Pairige was a former president of both the Alberta Weekly Newspaper Association and the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, and was made a life member of both bodies.

He was extremely active in community affairs, being a past president of the Chamber of Commerce, a Rotarian, member of the Royal Canadian Legion, was a member of the Masonic Lodge, and a devoted member of the Tofield United Church.

He is survived by his daughter, Barbara; two sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Giles of Delta, B.C and Mrs. Phyllis Farrell of Creelman, Sask.; a great-aunt, two nephews, and three nieces. His wife, Estelle predeceased him about a year ago.

THE PARTY'S OVER

Ability to suffer

A most interesting comment was brought back from the convention of Catholic Hospitals held about a month ago, in Saskatchewan. During one of the seminars, one of the government's senior men, Dr. Robbins, in discussing levels of treatment which are essential, and those which are desirable, observed "We seem to have lost the ability to suffer".

Obviously, the good doctor is not suggesting that people should be allowed to go untreated, or to experience a great deal of pain, while the province saves money. This is not his job, nor is it the philosophy he endorses.

But it is interesting to have it drawn to our attention that part of the reason for soaring costs is that people are not willing to grit their teeth a bit, as they had to do in earlier days, and that a shot, or a pill, or some other form of treatment, seems imperative at the least sign that "this may hurt you a little".

Many people demand, of course, why they should have to undergo even the slightest discomfort at all, when the means to relieve it is immediately available, and, in many ways, its a valid position to take. Why did science bother discovering all these painkillers, if it were not to benefit mankind?

Yet there is the matter of cost, and there's also the point that we can go overboard in this matter, and become so numb that the drugs produce other effects.

The same doctor, in continuing his address, harkened back to the old days, on another occasion, coming up with a definition of responsibility for personal behavior in a rapidly changing world, where the emphasis more and more is on individual and personal fulfillment, and forget the rest of society. Reminiscent of the philosophy of the late Walt Whitman, and many philosophers before him, is Dr. Robson's dictum that "I have the responsibility not to do as I wish, but to do as I ought."

In today's world that sounds almost heretical, but oddly, we have the feeling it's the sort of thing that is going to be heard more and more in the years ahead.

Out with the death penalty

So now Canada has eliminated the death penalty, at the behest of Prime Minister Trudeau, the Solicitor General Warren Allmande. It was, and is, a hot issue, and obviously half of the Members of Parliament personally support the views of their leaders, because the measure just managed to squeak through.

The interesting thing is that probably very few of that group manage to reflect the views of their constituents, for fairly uniformly across Canada the level of public opinion seems very strongly opposed to elimination of the death penalty.

There are many thousands among us who abhor hanging, and would be glad to see it eliminated, if they could have it replaced with some less torturous method of killing.

It has been argued that killing is killing, and it shouldn't make much difference whether a person is despatched almost instantly or slowly and painfully because the effect is the same in the end. It's also argued that fast or slow, the dread apprehension in the prison reaches the same height, and the community is equally brutalized by insisting on the ultimate punishment, in whatever form.

There may be some truth in all that is said, but we don't think society can be faulted for wanting to reduce the sheer physical torture involved, yet still maintain the ultimate punishment.

It's a wide and complex field, ranging from the crime of momentary passion, or madness, to the calculated, cool, dispassionate killing for hire, for fun, or for gang warfare. And in the latter fields, we cannot blame society for wanting to see the death penalty continued, for the ultimate protection of society itself.

The electric chair is said to produce results just as grisly as hanging, but surely there are other methods which would be painless. Victims of carbon monoxide, for instance, seem never to be aware of their problem. Exhausting the oxygen, as so many campers do with charcoal heaters in trailers, would be another. Science must have many other resources.

We may elect members to lead us, but it seems in a responsible democracy that we elect people to represent us. And we don't believe the majority of Canadians are being represented in Mr. Trudeau's drive for elimination of the death penalty. Even if it is now the law of the land.

Canadian Comment . . .

by Peter Ward

OTTAWA — (SP) — Currently the Canadian Transport Commission is holding hearings which are going to decide matters of extreme importance to all Canadians - those in smaller communities in particular

For years Canada's railroads have been dragging their feet on passenger service, in the words of the CTC itself, in a recent study . . . "the railroads have been engaging in anti-marketing, that is, designing a product consumers don't want, making it available at a time and place where it is not wanted."

Railways are deliberately trying to lose passengers because freight pays better; passengers are more bother; in many respects, government has been cooperating.

These CTC hearings now taking place appear to be aimed at yet another reduction of rail passenger service in Canada, although we may get an improvement - at great taxpayer cost - in the Windsor to Quebec City corridor.

New Democratic Party transportation critic Les Benjamin was one of those who presented an eloquent brief to the commission, pleading that rail passenger service be upgraded, not cut back.

Once gone, the cost of creating a new rail passenger system would be staggering, he claimed, and rail passenger service with the right equipment, can be a far more efficient, cheaper way to move people.

His argument stresses that Canadians in the upper income levels use planes, while those with lower income use trains. As fuel gets more expensive, the sensible rationale for rail passenger transportation instead of planes becomes ever powering. Trains which are loaded to even 60 per cent capacity can move passengers five times the fuel economy of planes.

In Northern Ontario and in Western Canada any reduction in the already skimpy train service will be felt most. Train service which has been cut back in most places to once a day runs could disappear entirely, leaving people dependent on buses or their own cars.

Duplication of service for rail passenger transit is wasteful, concedes Benjamin, but people will return to the use of trains if service is upgraded and more comfortable. In the long run, better rail service would be cheaper than a massive plane and bus network.

Harvest alfalfa on reclaimed coal mine

The first harvesting operations on reclaimed coal fields began the last week of July at Calgary Power's Whitewood Mine, 40 miles west of Edmonton at Lake [illegible]

About 500 tons of alfalfa are expected from the 250 acres of land which has been mined and reclaimed since 1971.

Dr J B Railton, Manager of Environmental Planning for Calgary Power said the alfalfa harvest is part of the utility's overall reclamation plans to demonstrate that lands disturbed by mining can be returned to productivity equal to, or better, than before surface mining activity

Prior to mining, the Whitewood site was primarily muskeg, swamp and marginal agricultural land

"This is the first year we have taken the alfalfa crop from the field. The second growth later this fall will be ploughed under to increase the fibre content and return organic matter and nitrogen to the soil," said Dr Railton

The overall end land use plan for the mine site has yet to be determined and is the subject of a special land use advisory committee established by the utility Reclamation research and demonstration will continue until that end use plan is developed

The revenue generated from the alfalfa harvest will be returned directly to the reclamation research programs conducted by Calgary Power at the Whitewood Mine

"While alfalfa is a very viable and attractive agricultural crop for this particular area of Alberta, we see it as an interim crop but vital to the total reclamation procedure," said Dr Railton.

Some 1350 acres of land have been disturbed at the Whitewood site, with a total of 850 acres either fully or partially reclaimed to date. The balance of land includes the actual mining activity and gravel stockpiles that must be removed before reclamation is completed.

Other research programs at the Whitewood site include the development of a 10-acre experimental Wildlife Habitat Improvement Project in co-operation with the Stony Plain Fish and Game Association, and the planting of a barley crop directly on land contoured after mining without benefit of alfalfa preconditioning

"Our future cereal programs will be expanded. In addition to the existing plots, we will also develop plots on land that has been conditioned with alfalfa to improve soil textures," said Dr. Railton

The harvest of the 250 acre alfalfa plot was done in cooperation with a farmer from Evansburg who entered into a crop-sharing plan with the utility.

BRTA urges Gov't to keep Game Farm

At the last meeting of the Battle River Tourist Association, held at the Taylor Ranch near Chauvin, the question of the future of the Alberta Game Farm was discussed.

After considerable discussion it was decided that B.R.T.A. take whatever steps becomes available to urge the Government of Alberta to prevent the Alberta Game Farm from leaving the Province of Alberta. Since the meeting, an appointment has been made with Hon. R.W. Dowling, Minister of Industry and Tourism to discuss the matter.

The meeting was advised of several reactions to the official position of the association opposing the custom of tipping. It was decided to obtain estimates of the cost of a small supply of suitable show cards perhaps to read: "NO TIPPING PLEASE . . . WE WERE DELIGHTED TO SERVE YOU . . . JUST LEAVE A SMILE!" If these are obtained, they will be made available to interested members at cost.

Leon D' Albertanon of Waterwright reported that the material for the winter brochure has been placed in the hands of the printer, and indicated that these would be available for distribution before the next winter season. He also distributed copies of the Zone Map, the newest piece of literature produced by the Association.

In other business, it was decided to again sponsor a caravanette in some section of the zone next May, similar to the one carried out in the western part of the zone in 1976.

The Manager, Sylvia Clemens, advised that she had been able to obtain a better deal on the price of the meal for the annual meeting, so it was decided to reduce the price of tickets for this event to $6.50 per person. The annual meeting of B.R.T.A. will take place in Camrose on Friday, October 15.

Lakeshore-McKenzie

Mrs. Ellen Eaton

Doug Niemetz and Wendy Dobson of Edmonton spent this past weekend with Doug's parents, Charlie and Mickey Niemetz.

Charlie and Mickey Niemetz and Charlie's mom (Mrs. Pleasence Niemetz) of Lacombe, B.C., who is visiting there at present, motored to Lamont Monday evening to visit Mrs. John Herchak in the Lamont Nursing Home. Charlie and Mickey also visited Carl Blake of Tofield in the Lamont Hospital. On their way home, they stopped in Chipman for a visit with Bill and Mary Sharun.

WAGON TRAIN

John Houghton and son and daughter, John and Barbara, the only ones left of the wagon train that started out from Ontario in the early spring passed through Tofield on July 27th, after stopping at the Good farm east of Tofield. They stopped at the home of Lorne and Marg Berrecloth, north of Tofield in the McKenzie district on the evening of July 27th and stayed over until the morning of July 29th when they continued their journey into the Peace River Country.

The Lakeshore U.C.W. catered at the 40th wedding anniversary tea and open house in honor of George and Ida Hemetz, held in the Tofield Community Hall on Sunday. Quite a large gathering of relatives and friends attended, some from great distances, to wish them many more years together.

Missed out

Rich Rice of Kelowna hauled the racing car above all the way to Edmonton a couple of weeks ago, and checked out perfectly for the auto races. Then the day of the race, the vehicle developed trouble and had to be eliminated before it ever got into the running. After the meet, Mr. Rice came out to Camrose to visit with his sister, Mrs. Ross Shuman, and family, and make plans for a family re-union on the occasion of their parents' wedding anniversary. Just about the only part of the racing model above is the body, which has been mounted on a number of components specially designed for increasing racing speed and performance.

Kingman news

Mrs. J.A. Anderson

The Kingman 4-H Clothing Club did very well at the 4-H Jamboree held in Camrose on July 30 and 31st. Their entry in the parade placed 3rd. The girls themselves did very well in their different classes of competition.

Mr. and Mrs. George Chelmsen, Tracy and Cass of North Vancouver, B.C., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cox of Summerland, B. C., spent last week at the Olaf Heie home.

Mr and Mrs. Jake Jacobs of High Prairie were Thursday visitors at the Steve Krenzoski home.

Mrs. Morgan Bronsum spent a few days in St. Mary's Hospital last week.

Visitors with the John Maunders and Wyman Christenson, are Mr. and Mrs. J.J. Keefe and Mark of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Smith of McHenry, Ill. Mrs. Keefe and Mrs. Smith are sisters of Mrs. Christenson and Mrs. Maunder. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Davis were supper guests of the Wyman Christenson on Friday evening.

Chris Lennox, son of Richard and Shauna Lennox of Philadelphia, Penn. is spending a few days at the Morgan Bronsum home.

Mrs. Bill Simcoeau and her grandson Jon Peeters went to Portland, Oregon to visit her sisters. Jon then flew on to San Diego to join his parents there. Mrs. Simcoeau returned home on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Heie of Anoka, Minnesota recently spent two weeks visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Heie. While here they all spent a few days at Cold Lake.

There was a very good turnout at Ingvald Moan farm sale on Saturday.

Mrs. I.A. Anderson

A bridal shower was held on Saturday in Solem Lutheran Church for Maxine Roberts and Guy Cameron. Astrid Holte was the m.c. Donna Skoglund gave the devotion and Lillian Nordin two readings. Heidi and Tammy Skoglund sang and Laurel Bjorgum gave a piano solo.

Many out of town guests attended, including Maxine's parents, Mr and Mrs. Roberts of Oyen, as well as the local friends of the couple. Assisting with the opening of the gifts were Marlene Johnston, Norma Crocker, Laurel Bjorgum, and Valerie Fleming. Maxine and Guy thanked everyone. The wedding will take place on Aug. 21st at the United Church in Oyen.

Jeffrey Krenanoski, grandson of Mrs. Annie Konah, has been staying with Annie and Teddy this past week. Yvonne, Allan, and Kristie came on Sunday for the day.

Bobbie Konah spent the weekend with his parents the Jon Konahs.

Lawrence Urquhart of Morinville is visiting for a few days with the Steve Krenanoski's. Steve and Sharon are making good progress on the building of their new home.

Christopher Lennon of Philadelphia, Pa., celebrated his eighth birthday at the Morgan Bronnum home.

Janet Wolff and her fiance, Edwin Bruton, left the Bronnums on Tuesday to return to the States.

Last weekend a family gathering was held at the home of Cathy and Grant Bowick. Cathy's mother, Mrs. Mary Siebert of Provost, and four of Cathy's sisters and their husbands, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hung of Lloydminster, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weinhard of Machin, Mr. and Mrs. Wilf Keller of Camrose, and Mr. and Mrs. Al Trautman of Edmonton and their families were present. On Saturday they all took a trip to the Alberta Game Farm.

Recent visitors with Mabel Simonson were Mr. and Mrs. Henery Simonson and Mr. and Mrs. Simon Simonson.

Elizabeth Bjorgum is at home with her parents, the Orvel Bjorgums, for a few days while she is moving from Calgary to Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Alf Cunningham of Ardrossan and Mr. and Mrs. Bud Connel of Calgary were weekend visitors at the Robert Bowick home. On Sunday, Josie, Bud, and Carol took a trip to the Mervin Bowick home at Sherwood Park.

Mr. and Mrs. David Wooley of Edmonton spent Sunday afternoon with the Morgan Bronnums.

Mr. and Mrs. Thor Johnson have now left for Vernon, B.C., to reside. They sold their farm to Mr. and Mrs. Allan Neilson of Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Albin Palm and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Coykendall and family have been visitors at Vernon, B.C., with relatives.

Mr and Mrs. Wilfred Johnson, Kathy and Karen, and Mrs. John son's parents of Edmonton spent four days on a trip to the mountains.

Mr and Mrs. Selmer Olsenberg spent the weekend at Killam to attend the 70th anniversary of the town of Killam. Also attending from here were Mr and Mrs. Wes Ingram and Cornlee

Mrs. Rose Olson of Seattle, Washington, and Mr. and Mrs Talmege Rancier of Calgary were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs Selmer Olsenberg. Mrs. Olson and Mrs. Rancier are sisters of Selmer

Exchange 4-H'ers

Returning last year's visit of 4-H members from this area to Miles City, Montana, eleven 4-H members drove to Camrose last weekend to join the 4-H Jamboree Days program at the Fairgrounds. Pictured shortly before they left on the long trip back to Miles City are Kelly Price, Mike Zook, Stacy Meade, Burt Mulkey, Dan Herzog, Richard Bonine, Michelle Zeller, Martha Bonine, Cheryl Leidholt, Joni Herzog, and their leaders, Mrs. Ray Price and Helen and Buren Bonine, who are grandparents of the Bonine 4-Hers. The visitors were highly impressed with the program developed in Camrose, and delighted with their reception here.

Last rites held for John Fornal

John Fornal passed away on Monday, July 26, 1976 in the Viking General Hospital, at the age of 70.

Requiem mass was held in St. Mary's Catholic Church at Bruce on July 29 with Father John Adamyk officiating. Burial followed at the Bruce Cemetery. Prayer services were held at the Holy Heart of Mary Catholic Church in Viking on Wednesday. Monaghan Funeral Home was in charge of all arrangements.

The pallbearers were Stanley Bracko, Rudy Koppel, Leo Marcuoccha, Nick Jobar, Stanley Wronsten, and John Zarski.

John Fornal was born in Poland on August 13, 1897. He was united in marriage to Mary Pudala on November 15, 1922, and in 1928, John, Mary and two children came to Canada and settled in the Holden district. In 1935, John moved his family to the Bruce area where he resided until 1941 when he moved to the Tofield district near Viking. He lived there until the time of his passing.

He leaves to mourn his passing, his wife, Mary; three daughters, Mrs. Joe (Anne) Sager of Chilliwack B.C., Mrs. Joe (Emily) Lefarud and Mrs. Archie (Helen) Nearing, both of Viking; seven sons, Stan, Mike, Louis, Ted, Frank, and Eddy of Viking, and Joe of Holden; sixteen grandchildren; one brother, and three sisters in Poland.

He was predeceased by two sons, Anton in 1926 and Leo in 1948, and one brother in Poland in 1966.

FAIRY RING OF GRASS

Fairy Ring is the most common disease of grass that occurs during the growing season and is very persistent in all areas of the county this year. The disease is readily recognized by the rings it forms in the turf. All cultivated and many wild grasses are susceptible to it. The grass in the rings may be a dark green color or may be dead, or any combination of the two with or without the presence of mushrooms. Infected rings have been known to cover hundreds of acres in size although most of the Fairy Ring we see infects a circle of one to six feet in radius.

Fairy Ring is caused by a mushroom producing fungus. The disease kills the grass through the process of dehydration. Examination of the area under the ring shows a white powdery area, very dry to touch.

Fairy Ring can be controlled by thoroughly perforating the affected area to a depth of one foot with a potato fork or similar instrument and thoroughly soaking it for about a month and a half. Adequate nitrogen fertilization will help to inhibit the growth of the fungus and speed recovery of the grass. The killed out areas should be reseeded or returfed. This is the only sure / fire control method.

Some success in controlling Fairy Ring has also been reported to us through the use of:

1. Picking the mushrooms to prevent further spread of the disease by the mushroom spores.
2. Digging up the entire area under the ring and replacing the infected soil with fresh soil and then reseeding.
3. Any mercurial fungicide applied at heavy rates in the early stages.
4. Heavy rates of potassium permanganate followed by lots of watering.
5. Used dishwater with detergent in it will keep the area from drying out and is reported to have cleared up Fairy Ring in a year.
6. Captan is a very persistant soil fungicide and can help keep the fungus under control.

Any of you that might have had success controlling Fairy Ring with other methods please let us know and we'll pass it along.

Should you have any questions about Fairy Ring or other farm or yard problems contact us at 662-3555 or write Box 200 Ryley.

the Homemaker

Once again I am hearing many heartbreaking stories because no will was left to safeguard family members when death occurred. A repeat of this article seems appropriate.

YOUR WILL — AN ACT OF KINDNESS

A will should be made in contemplation of life. When set up properly it is the key to true enjoyment of your property while you are alive as it only takes effect upon your death.

It is wise to have a will, but some people need convincing as to its importance.

Without a will there is no personal direction as to disposal of the person's estate after death. If we die without a will, legal expenses will be incurred which might swallow up the little we do own.

A good will does three things:

1. It satisfies the owner that his wishes will be carried out.
2. It avoids legal expense and delay.
3. It overcomes resentment among the beneficiaries. Of these three the last is perhaps the most important.

Human nature being what it is, a family never really knows one another, until they share an estate. Parents do an uncommon act of kindness to their children, not only by designating how the bulk of the estate is to be shared, but by carefully stating who is to receive their smaller personal possessions.

There is always the emotional aspect of sharing parental belongings. Adults remember the contents of their parents home long after they move into pieces of their own. Some have a sentimental attachment for such things. Other recognize economic value. Still others could care less.

Meanwhile parents who do not define their wishes in straight forward terms, leave not only a legacy in property to be administered by strangers, but often a legacy of ill-will to drift among their grown children.

There is particular need for [illegible] in [illegible] a will of their own. It is mandatory in this age wherein husbands and wives are vulnerable to all the hazards of motor travel. If a woman doesn't have a will she should never drive with her husband. The legal complications following an accident where the husband and wife die together, can have phenomenal implications for survivors.

Think about it - an act of kindness.

AHMC symbol introduced

Above is the new symbol of the Alberta Home Mortgage Corporation, a Crown Corporation established June 1, 1976.

The symbol is intended to portray the unifying function of the corporation in its role as the leading institution carrying our government housing policies through strong financial support of both builder and home purchaser or renter

Three strong symbolic roofliner shapes represent configurations of the initial letters AHMC, forming a traditional house-shaped device. The close grouping of the elements, stabilized in this form by a surrounding outline, suggests unity of purpose and also security. ...security which may be interpreted both in the financial sense and in the sense of the security of home ownership.

In Bangladesh the hardship is often beyond bearing. The USC distributes milk 7 days a week to almost 25,000 children at 42 feeding stations. Only one dollar provides a child with milk for 30 days through the USC of Canada. 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa K1P 5B1.

Master Plan suggests a Holden 'Ice' delay

Among the recommendations contained in the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Board Five Year Master Plan, completed this spring by W.J. Prasel and Associates Consulting Engineers, is one that artificial ice not be installed in the Holden Complex until after the remaining debt on the Complex is retired.

The plan recommends that the arena-curling rink complex receive highest priority for capital recreation funds, with up to $92,500 of the required amount coming from the Major Cultural and Recreation Facility Development Grants, and the matching funds from the County of Beaver 3-mill program and the Holden and District Agricultural Society. It is suggested that the debt be retired in 4 or 5 years, and that installation of artificial ice be considered at this time if financially feasable.

Replacement of the old portion of the Holden Community Hall, or major renovations to it, is shown as a necessary project in either year 2 or 3 of the plan, at a total cost of approximately $40,000.

The report recommends using about $11,000 of the grant money, matched by clubs and the village, for landscaping and improvements to the ball diamonds, washrooms, picnic-camping area, and parking areas at the Recreation Grounds.

Other recommendations are for development of a senior citizens drop-in centre, installation of a movie screen at the Cultural Arts Centre (old theatre), landscaping and improvement of equipment at the playground, an asphalt pad and landscaping at the school grounds, opening of the school library to the general public, creation of a park area around the pond east of the school and the implementation of a village boulevards and parks beautification program.

Girl drowns

A sixteen year old Edmonton girl was a drowning victim at Miquelon Lake on Saturday afternoon.

Susanne Gione was snorkelling with an older brother when she disappeared from sight.

Forty volunteers aided RCMP and Park Wardens in trying to find the body. However, the body was not recovered until it was spotted by an RCMP plane from Edmonton.

Miss Gione had accompanied her family to Miquelon Lake for a family outing when the tragedy occurred.

Camrose Detachment of the RCMP are investigating.

Hail report

Another week with lots of smelling activity but very little hail to report.

On Friday, July 30th many isolated cells developed in the northern area with tops reaching 28,000 feet. The major activity occurred in the Caroline, Rocky Mountain House, Red Deer, Pigeon Lake, Ardrossan, Beaver and Big Valley areas. Six aircraft were smelling at one time and 78 cloud top and 51 cloud base flares. It was a seed day in the north. Six reports of pea size hail were received from the north and two reports of pea size hail were received from the southern area.

Cells developed over the mountain 20 miles south of Nordegg and 15 miles northwest of Banff on Saturday, July 31st. Cloud tops reached 30,000 feet. Cells dissipated as they left the mountains producing only rain showers in the Project Area. No seeding took place and no hail was reported.

On Sunday, August 1st cells developed in the Sundre and Lacombe areas early in the morning with tops to 22,000 feet. The Sundre cell tracked northeast dissipating south of Camrose. These cells were not seeded due to rapid dissipation. At noon a cell developed north of Torrington and was hour seeded as it tracked north. Tops reached 26,000 feet. The storm died south of Camrose. Another cell developed north of Torrington at about 3:00 p.m., still tops to 31,000 feet. This storm was seeded with both droppane and base flares and dissipated in the Bashaw area. It was a seed day in the north. Only four reports of shot size hail were received from the southern area.

Numerous storms developed on August 2nd in the Banff, Caroline and Alder Flats areas with cloud tops reaching 30,000 feet. Seeding was carried out on a small cell 65 miles southwest of Penhold. It was a no seed day in the northern area. No hail was reported.

On Tuesday, August 3rd an upper level disturbance passed through the area early in the morning setting off storm activity throughout the day and night. Aircraft were seeding on top and at cloud base from 8:00 a.m. until approximately 8:30 p.m. on all areas. It was a seed day in the north. Major areas of activity were Rocky Mountain House to Calgary, Three Hills to Drumheller, Red Deer to Edmonton, and Lacombe to Didsbury. Some cloud tops reached 39,000 feet. Only two reports of hail have been received.

Recreation Report

by Val Charteris

The deadline for senior citizens to register for the forthcoming trip to North Battleford is Monday. Register at the Regional Recreation Office.

The bicycle tour to Camp Lake, scheduled for August 16-20 has to be cancelled because of a lack of registrations.

COUNTY OF BEAVER — You're ENJAPPUNTING!

On August 6, 1976, the Executive Summer Staff of the County of Beaver pansied what was going to be a new and fun evening for teens and adults alike - a Bench Party at Camp Lake.

But What Happened? Where were all the people?

— Maybe it wasn't advertised enough.

Well, it was put on posters, in the paper for weeks, and on the radio.

— Maybe the weather didn't cooperate.

But she could you ask for - it was calm, warm, and just beautiful.

— Maybe it was too far away

No Way! Those who were too far away to travel home could have brought a sleeping bag and tent and made a holiday of it.

— Maybe no one had transportation.

Surely a bunch of people could have gotten together in car pools and come out.

— Well, maybe it was because no alcohol was allowed.

Yes, by George, I think that's it!

NEXT WEEK!

Master Plan suggests a Holden 'ice' delay

Among the recommendations contained in the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Board Five Year Master Plan, completed this spring by W J Prasel and Associates Consulting Engineers, is one that artificial ice not be installed in the Holden Complex until after the remaining debt on the Complex is retired.

The plan recommends that the areas-curling rink complex receive highest priority for capital recreation funds, with up to $92,500 of the required amount coming from the Major Cultural and Recreation Facility Development Grants, and the matching funds from the County of Beaver 3-mill program and the Holden and District Agricultural Society. It is suggested that the debt be retired in 4 or 5 years, and that installation of artificial ice be considered at this time if financially feasible.

Replacement of the old portion of the Holden Community Hall, or major renovations to it, is shown as a necessary project in either year 2 or 3 of the plan, at a total cost of approximately $40,000.

The report recommends using about $11,000 of the grant money, matched by clubs and the village, for landscaping and improvements to the ball diamonds, washrooms, picnic-camping area, and parking areas at the Recreation Grounds.

Other recommendations are for development of a senior citizens drop-in centre, installation of a movie screen at the Cultural Arts Centre (old theatre), landscaping and improvement of equipment at the playground, an asphalt pad and landscaping at the school grounds, opening of the school library to the general public, creation of a park area around the pond east of the school and the implementation of a village boulevards and parks beautification program.

Girl drowns

A sixteen year old Edmonton girl was a drowning victim at Miquelon Lake on Saturday afternoon.

Suzanne Giese was snorkelling with an older brother when she disappeared from sight.

Party volunteers aided RCMP and Park Wardens in trying to find the body. However, the body was not recovered until it was spotted by an RCMP plane from Edmonton.

Miss Giese had accompanied her family to Miquelon Lake for a family outing when the tragedy occurred.

Camrose Detachment of the RCMP are investigating.

Hail report

Another week with lots of seeding activity but very little hail to report.

On Friday, July 30th many isolated cells developed in the northern area with tops reaching 26,000 feet. The major activity occurred in the Caroline, Rocky Mountain House, Red Deer, Pigeon Lake, Delburne, Bashaw and Big Valley areas. Six aircraft were sending at one time utilizing 70 cloud top and 51 cloud base flares. It was a used day in the north. Six reports of pea size hail were received from the north and two reports of pea size hail were received from the southern area.

Cells developed over the mountains 25 miles south of Nordegg and 15 miles northwest of Banff on Saturday, July 31st. Cloud tops reached 30,000 feet. Cells dissipated as they left the mountains producing only rain showers in the Project Area. No seeding took place and no hail was reported.

On Sunday, August 1st cells developed in the Sundre and Lacombe areas early in the morning with tops to 22,000 feet. The Sundre cell tracked northeast dissipating south of Camrose. These cells were not seeded due to rapid dissipation. At noon a cell developed north of Torrington and two base seeded as it tracked north. Tops reached 26,000 feet. The storm died south of Camrose. Another cell developed north of Torrington about 6:00 p.m. with tops to 31,000 feet. This storm was seeded with both droppable and base flares and dissipated in the Bashaw area. It was a seed day in the north. Only four reports of shot size hail were received from the southern area.

Numerous storms developed on August 2nd in the Banff, Caroline and Alder Flats areas with cloud tops reaching 30,000 feet. Seeding was carried out on a small cell 65 miles southwest of Penhold. It was a no seed day in the northern area. No hail was reported.

On Tuesday, August 3rd an upper level disturbance passed through the area with the morning setting off storm activity throughout the day and night. Aircraft were working on top and at cloud base from 8:00 a.m. until approximately 8:30 p.m. in all areas. It was a seed day in the north. Major areas of activity were Rocky Mountain House to Calgary, Three Hills to Drumheller; Red Deer to Edmonton; and Lacombe to Didsbury. Some cloud tops reached 39,000 feet. Only two reports of hail have been received.

Recreation Report

by Val Charteris

The deadline for senior citizens to register for the forthcoming trip to North Battleford is Monday. Register at the Regional Recreation Office.

The bicycle tour to Camp Lake, scheduled for August 16-20 has to be cancelled because of a lack of registrations.

COUNTY OF BEAVER — You've DISAPPOINTING!

On August 4, 1976, the Recreation Summer Staff in the County of Beaver planned what was going to be a new and fun evening for teens and adults alike - a Beach Party at Camp Lake.

But What Happened? Where were all the people?

— Maybe it wasn't advertised enough.

Well, it was put on posters, in the paper for weeks, and on the radio.

— Maybe the weather didn't cooperate.

What else could you ask for - it was calm, warm, and just beautiful.

— Maybe it was too far away from anyone.

No Way! Those who were too far away to travel home could have brought a sleeping bag and tent and made a holiday of it.

— Maybe no one had transportation.

Surely a bunch of people could have gotten together in car pools and come out.

— Well, maybe it was because [illegible] was allowed.

Yes, by George, I think that's it! BUT WHY?

Around the town

Thirty-nine members of the Grande Prairie Senior Citizens Club will be visiting in this area on August 24 and 25. While in Tofield, they will be guests at the homes of Tofield Golden Club members.

A pleasant afternoon was spent at the home of Mrs. Olive Sutton recently when a group of neighbours met to meet and welcome Mrs. Daniel Tolliver to Tofield.

Charlie Morden, a former Tofield resident, passed away recently in Ontario.

Jim and Mary Yakaboski of Abbotsford, B.C., and David Yakaboski and daughter, Moira, of Edmonton, were recent visitors at the Onabko home. They also visited with Mrs. Kallal and Mrs. Margaret Dickson

Hans Hennigsen had his sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brunning of Hamburg, Germany visiting for the past five weeks. This was the Brunings first visit to Canada and they enjoyed it very much.

Playground Report

by Donna Friesen
Lynn Werner

Another summer at the Tofield playground has come to the halfway point with about 47 children registered.

We have completed 4 weeks of activities. We began with a Safety Week, with a special guest, policeman Constable Gregazi, who spoke to the kids about bike safety and demonstrated arm signals. He also showed them the police car and thrilled them with the siren.

Hobo Week ended with a dress-up day and a hobo supper at the golf course. Everybody ate the hearty mixture of stew, spaghetti, beans, soup and other interesting things.

The next exciting week was Christmas Week with a Christmas day party. The kids dressed up in their best clothes to decorate a Christmas tree with decorations they had made at the playground. This activity was followed by games, a sing-song, and hotdogs.

The fourth week was Indian Week with a Indian and birthday party combined. The kids collected wood to make a fire to roast marshmallows on and later enjoyed birthday cake and icecream.

We'd like to thank the bakery for the delicious birthday cake they made and Mrs. Charolette Brown for ice cream and cones. The kids loved them!

Children are still welcome to come and join for the remaining part of the summer. Have a fun and safe summer!

Tofield Garden Club had the best display in the show as Tofield hosted the Provincial Horticultural Show on Saturday and Sunday. Good crowds were on hand for both days and the show, along with entries in the Agricultural Fair was described as "terrific". Horticultural show is a hit

The Provincial Horticultural Show, held in Tofield on Saturday and Sunday, was a resounding success, drawing praise from exhibitors and visitors alike.

This year's show was hosted by the Tofield Garden Club, which was organized only a couple of years ago, and has approximately twenty-five members.

The show was staged in the Tofield Arena and provided visitors with a spectacular sight upon entering the arena. Displays of exhibits were placed in such a fashion that visitors were able to view everything with ease.

At the same time, the Tofield and District Agricultural Society hosted its annual Agricultural Fair which was also highly successful. Indoor and outdoor exhibits drew plenty of attention from visitors.

Entries for the horticultural show came from all over the province including such centers as Wainwright, Camrose, Lacombe, Stony Plain, Edmonton, Red Deer, Westlock, Manville, Metiskow, Wetaskiwin, Calgary, Delburne, Winterburn, and Tofield.

On Sunday afternoon, there was a special auction sale of produce which had been displayed during the two-day show.

There was a closed gymkhana held on Sunday afternoon by the Beaverhills Light Horse Association. Individual trophies, and the high-point trophy will be presented to winners at the club's annual pot-luck supper in November.

Following are the results of the different competitions in both the Horticultural Show and the Agricultural Fair.

Around the Town

The Tofield Golden Club is having an open house for members of the Grande Prairie Senior Citizens on Aug. 24th at 8 p.m. in the Community Hall. Anyone is invited to come and visit with former neighbors.

Mrs. Martha Roberts recently had a rather frightening experience. She had gone to the back of her lot to look at a metal shed she had just had built when she noticed a very long, thin black snake lying on a piece of plywood. It was at least 36 inches long and about half of its body was upright, weaving around, and it had a very ugly head. Mrs. Roberts wondered whether it could have come with the package the shed came in. When Mrs. Roberts hurried away to find a hoe to kill it with, it slithered away.

Seniors to visit

Senior citizens from Grande Prairie will be visiting in Tofield on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

During their two day stay in Tofield, they will be guests in the home of members of the Tofield Golden Club.

The Golden Club will be holding an open house in the Community Centre on Tuesday night at eight o'clock. An invitation is extended to members of the community to attend this open house and meet former friends and neighbours who moved to the northern community.

Ryley raises tax rate

The Village of Ryley, at a special meeting, adopted its mill rate for 1976 which will show an increase of five mills over the 1975 rate.

The new mill rate will cost the average homeowner about $12.50 more in taxes. The minutes of the meeting did not show the total mill rate.

At a regular meeting last month, council passed a by-law authorizing the use of the 1976 tax assessment roll for use in 1977.

Another by-law was passed which would permit the village to enter into agreements with other municipalities for shared services in the field of recreation.

Council accepted a proposal submitted by Block Bros. which proposes to annex and subdivide land directly north of the village for residential sites. This would also mean that the village lagoon would have to be moved. The matter was turned over to the Development Committee for study and a report to council at a future meeting.

Council agreed to look into a program of low-cost housing for senior citizens, providing that a local group would do the groundwork for obtaining such housing while the village would be prepared to provide the land for such a development.

Elston Solberg was appointed as weed inspector for the village.

Other routine business matters

Information for this news story was obtained from the minutes of a regular council meeting held on July 15, and a special council meeting held on July 23.

Around the town

Summer visitors with Bill and Irene Wiens were cousins Asta and Ivor Kyserlag and Dagny Ostberg, all from Sweden, as well as the Floyd Erickson and Florence Nelson families of Edmonton.

Bill and Hilda Herbert and family of St. Catharines have been visiting with Hilda's mother, Mrs. Henry Wiens, as well as other relatives and friends.

Rhonda Wiens has returned from a six week holiday to various points in the U.S. She travelled with her cousins, Bev and Rod Onby and Betty Jo, who spent a week with Bill and Irene Wiens on their return journey before continuing on to their home in Alaska.

Harry and Louise Block of Windsor, Ont. visited with Harry's sister, Mrs. Helen Burtis and family, also with the Wiens families of Tofield.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kostuik (Helen Thiessen) of Calgary visited with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thiessen during the weekend. Their sons, Steve and Bob, stayed to have a short holiday with their aunt and uncle.

George and Edna Purkiss of Gem, Alta. were recent visitors with Henry and Helen Thiessen and Mr. and Mrs. John Jansen.

Mrs. Pete Kec has returned from an 18 day holiday to Russia. She spent some time in Moscow, Kiev, and other large centers and was also able to visit friends and relatives in her "home" village. Annie says all the cities are beautiful and spotlessly clean but that all the cleaning is done by old ladies of 65 or 70, and although she enjoyed her trip and was glad to see relatives and old friends, she is very glad to be a Canadian.

Arnie and Doris Wiens (Hindsbrook) are the proud parents of a baby boy. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Abe Hindsbrook.

Rev. and Mrs. Henry Epp of Vancouver were in town last week visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pass of Edmonton were visitors to Tofield on Saturday, taking in the Tofield Fair as well.

Mr. and Mrs. Clive Gudmundson and girls of New Sarepta and Mrs. Keitha Bowes returned home on Wednesday from a trip spent visiting with Keitha's uncle and aunt at Chemainus and with Clive's sister and family in San Francisco, and also went to Disneyland and other places.

Visiting with Mrs. Annie McGinnis are Mr. and Mrs. Bob Tipper and Diane of Winnipeg. Mr. and Mrs. Buck Godwin and Karen were weekend visitors and took in the flower show.

CLEANING TIPS

If there's one thing that is assured about housework, it is that it is always with you. Let's look at some cleaning tips for the bathroom that will hopefully make the job easier.

Bathrooms harbor germs and must be kept clean and sanitary. Chlorine bleach is a good disinfectant. Do remember not to mix chlorine bleach with ammonia and toilet bowl cleaner. When mixed together, they release hazardous gases. You can sanitize your toilet bowl by pouring in one-half cup of chlorine bleach. Swish solution over all inside surfaces, let stand for ten minutes, flush.

How can you clean plastic shower curtains? These curtains attract soap film and mildew. Machine-wash plastic curtains in warm water on a gentle cycle. Use laundry detergent to loosen film and add chlorine bleach to kill mold or mildew. Hang from shower rod to dry, hand-smoothing wrinkles.

Calcification on shower doors is another problem. To clean them, lay shower door on flat surface. Dip old terry towels in warm vinegar (until vinegar is absorbed by towels but is not dripping wet) and then lay on the glass doors for 24-48 hours, or wrap with plastic to avoid vinegar evaporating. Follow by rubbing glass doors with chore girl to remove sediment build-up. (Check that chore girl does not scratch the glass. You might use one of the newer, less abrasive cleaning pads). If frame is aluminum, cover it with masking tape to prevent darkening.

Grout around tub tiles and bathroom ceramic walls and floors are target spots for soap film and mildew. Scrub discolored grout around tub tile with a toothbrush. Use a solution of three tablespoons bleach to one quart water. Soak five minutes before rinsing. For stubborn film on ceramic surfaces, use a cup of powdered water conditioner, in a pail of water. If the problem persists, mix together one-half cup conditioner, two tablespoons of mildly abrasive household cleanser and a cup of water. Scrub with a heavily bristled brush, rinse, then polish with a soft cloth. If you have a special cleaning problem, we will be glad to try to help you with it.

Ryley

Lena Reil

Mrs. Nancy Jame had a purpo surprise visit on Thursday from Spirit River friends.

The baseball game played in Ryley on Wednesday evening between Camrose and Ryley was won by the Ryley team.

On Sunday, Aug. 22nd, the Gideons will be holding services in the Ryley and Holden Lutheran Churches in place of the regular services.

Correction: Sunday School at Calvin United Church should have read 10:15 a.m not 10 a.m.

Heavy rains last evening will make it muddy for country people to come into the fair with their exhibits.

Saturday evening a reception was held in the Ryley Community Hall for Greg and Loralie Norton who were married in Bardo Lutheran Church at Tofield. Emcee was Floyd Taylor. A dance followed.

A ball tournament will be held in Ryley on August 22nd with four teams taking part: Holden, Round Hill, Tofield, and Ryley. The first game will begin at 10 a.m. Oyen was unable to come. The Ryley team won the league championship which they are rejoicing over.

Minisik district notes

Mrs. Ina Kimbrick

An empresario meeting was held at the Craft Centre on Tuesday afternoon to make plans for guests who will visit the centre on August 24th from Strathcona Hlaza in Edmonton.

Plans were also made to complete the painting of the interior of the centre which had been started sometime in early May Thursday Friday and Saturday nights were set for this, as well as the regular Monday when odd jobs are done.

The centre also plans a display table at the County Fair on Aug 20 and 21st, even though they are not eligible for competition, at which the recently completed quilt will be on display as well as many other crafts arising from work at the centre

Barbara and Albert Herricks are the proud grandparents of a second granddaughter, born on Aug. 5th to Keith and Colleen Herricks.

David Williams has been employed with a construction company in Wainwright, and is enjoying his summer at this.

Leonie Lembery returned home from Tofield Hospital on Tuesday after a weeks stay Her sister Gladys had to return on Monday for further treatment of her arthritis, which has caused much distress in recent weeks

Margaret Paterson attended a bridal shower at Deville for Joann Morrow, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Milton Morrow on Wednesday evening

Mrs. Lars Foss of Vancouver, B.C. spent the weekend with her sister and husband, the Alex Pearces. They all spent a few days at Rocky Mountain House with another sister, Mrs. Ed Zurk Mrs. Foss remained and will return to the Pearces on Wednesday for a few more days.

The August Ladies Club meeting was held at the local campsite on Wednesday afternoon with eight ladies present

No business was transacted but a relaxing afternoon was enjoyed under the lovely spruce trees. Mrs. Grace Gibson of Calgary, enjoyed an August birthday and a box of chocolates and birthday card will be sent to her Roll call for September will be "Solutions to Garden Problems". Lunch was served by Joyce Bowerman and Jean Ferguson.

Mr and Mrs. Douglas George and Valerie Cheshire of Edmonton and Bob, George of Innvik, N.W.T., were Saturday guests of Mrs. S. George

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Grummett and Debbie were hosts at a family dinner on Sunday, the occasion being Mrs Mary Gladue's birthday.

INTENDED FOR LAST WEEK

George and Jean Kleinschnitt attended the auction sale on Saturday of Ed and Jean Golpen of Entwistle. They stayed that evening in Drayton Valley On Sunday they drove to view the Bruneau Dam, later going to Wetaskiwen where they spent some time with George's sister and brother-in-law, Norma and David Hughes.

Jean Golpen (nee Barber), formerly lived in and went to school in our district, and now she and her husband moved on to live near Jean's mother, Mrs. (Barber) Anderson at Duncan, B.C

The ladies Thursday group who sold tickets on their recently completed quilt, had a most successful weekend on sales at Eatnpie Shopping Mall. It was a worthwhile effort, members felt

"CONGRATULATIONS"

Dear Sir:

I would like to congratulate the people of Tofield and in particular the members of the Tofield Horticultural Society for their splendid hosting of the Provincial Horticultural Show.

Your whole community appeared so involved.

As an exhibitor, I should like to express my appreciation to everyone who was so kind and helpful. I'm sure that this Provincial Show will be remembered as one of the grants.

Respectfully yours

Watching

If you're in Ryley and want to throw away a piece of garbage, you'll soon get the feeling that someone is watching you do something wrong. You'd be right! Ryley did a beautification job during the past summer, with one of the chores being to make the village's garbage cans look a bit more cheerful.

Tofield plans football squad

A meeting was held on Tuesday night to discuss the formation of a community tackle football team.

It was mutually agreed to form this team.

Directors were chosen as follows: President - Larry Watson, Sec.-Treasurer Irwin Weins, Project Coordinator - Ted White, Manager - Pat Donnan, Director - Vic Fairbrother: Head Coach - Larry Watson; Asst. Coaches - Brian Aubrey and Ted White.

In coordination to this body of directors is an executive comprising of high school boys.

They were formed last May after considerable interest from high school boys of the Tofield Community

Financing of the team is now No. 1 priority. Needed is approximately $4,000 - $4,500 to operate the club. A full set of thirty uniforms is needed. It was decided that a rental of $10 for each player be charged per season.

It was also decided that shares of $5 value would be sold as a sponsorship or a method of funding for the club. Shares will be available from the Tofield Sports Shop or any of the directors of the club. High school boys will also be canvasing the area for sponsorship. A share entitles the holder to a voting say at the meetings of the club. It will also give the holder a discount on home games.

Games for this season will be strictly on an exhibition basis with emphasis on getting into a league next fall.

If any business or private person wishes to support this community project please contact any of the directors listed. Sponsorship is greatly needed to make tackle football a reality this fall.

Theatre re-opens

The operators of the Tofield Theatre have announced their opening dates and feature attraction following a summer holiday.

The theatre will again open for business on September 1st. The feature attraction will be Grease.

Feature attraction for the fall season will be one of the more talked about shows in recent years. It has a one-word name, "Jaws".

Around the Town

Richard Kindley of Edmonton was the winner in the Golden Club's quilt raffle.

Rev. and Mrs. Wilfred Strom of Rhodesia will be speaking at both services at the Tofield Baptist Church on Sunday.

Mrs. Josephine Trotter and children were recent visitors in Tofield with the Francis families and other friends in the district.

Mr. and Mrs. Liel Fosheug, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mosby, and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Fosheug returned last week from a holiday trip to Eastern Canada.

Louis and Dorothy Shevchuk held a family reunion and dinner on Sunday, at home to celebrate their silver wedding anniversary. Members of the Shevchuk - Kallal families also gathered to welcome Louis' sister, Olga and husband, Edouard Pinet of Montreal, architect and chief planner of Canada's Expo '67.

A few neighbors surprised Louis and Dorothy Shevchuk at their home Thursday evening to help them celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary.

Visitors with Mr and Mrs. John Baergen are Eric and Inez Barbeau of Australia and their three children, Debra, Calvin and Allen. Mr. and Mrs. Barbeau are on their way to New Guinea as support workers in the mission field, where they will be doing building and [illegible]

Horse club organizing

A new horse club is being formed in the Ryley-Holden Area.

4-H clubs in Ryley and Holden are getting together to organize the new club which will be open for membership to anyone between the ages of ten and 21 years.

The organizational meeting of the club will be held in the Department of Agriculture Office in Ryley on Tuesday, September 14th at eight o'clock

Anyone interested in joining the club or getting more information is asked to call Bev Foss at 963-2777 or 963-2415, or Agnes Hiory at 963-2332.

Tofield engages an administrator

Neil Brodie of Taber will be the new Town Administrator for the Town of Tofield.

The decision to hire Mr. Brodie was made at Monday night's regular meeting of the Town Council. He will commence his new duties on September 7th.

Mr. Brodie has been the Municipal Administrator for the Town of Taber for the past year and one-half. He is married with two young daughters.

At a meeting on August 9th, council awarded a contract to Watson Tofield (1973) Ltd. for the construction of a four-unit maintenance garage at a value of $36,760.

There were two other bids submitted, with Watson's tender being the lowest.

Jack Lampitt was named to serve as Director of Disaster Services, replacing Don Siegle.

Council reviewed a draft copy of a proposed by-law to cover building permits, and instructed the secretary to prepare the final copy of the by-law for consideration at the next regular council meeting.

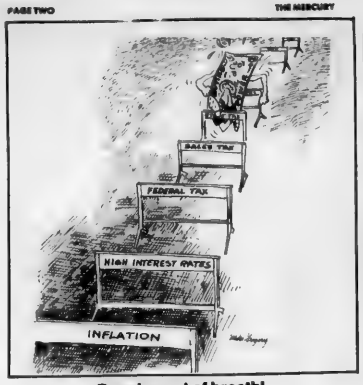
Vera Zeniuan was appointed to a position of clerk-typist in the Tofield office.

Information for the latter portion of this news story was taken from the unapproved minutes of the August 9th meeting.

During the first seven months of this year, building permits issued by the Town of Tofield have been valued at $2,835,410.

The two biggest permits issued were to Watson Tofield (1973) Ltd., one for $790,000 which is for construction of a senior citizens' lodge while the other for the four-stall maintenance garage.

Most of the balance was for residential construction with smaller amounts being used up for renovations to existing structures.



Running out of breath!

Rustlers

Something akin to the old days in the Old West were brought to mind over the week-end, by a report from Ontario that growers of many of the small fruit and vegetable crops are having very difficult times with "rustlers".

So audacious are the looters becoming that they'll even drive farm machinery through the fields, harvesting as they go, while others merely fill bushel baskets with produce and leave them over the fences to waiting accomplices. Some have actually threatened the farmer with physical violence should he try to prosecute them, while in a few cases which reached courts, and where convictions were obtained, the sentences have been so ridiculously low that it isn't worth the trouble, or the time taken to obtain a conviction, while at the same time proving to the criminal groups and observers of them that crime really does pay.

According to officials of the growers association, the level of theft, often on the basis of supermarket volumes, has grown so large as to seriously threaten the income of the farmers involved. They wouldn't mind the odd trespasser picking a few berries, or apples or peas, to eat, they say, but when it becomes a wholesale operation, for all practical purposes it eliminates any chance of profit from the year's work.

Nobody particularly approves of the old style rough justice meted out to cattle rustlers on the western plains, but by and large it was a system that seemed to work pretty effectively, and it would seem the time is approaching when society has to give more serious thought to something like this to guard against the "rustlers" of the market gardens and orchards.

It seems to be a sign of our times that there is increasing lack of respect for the property or the rights of others, with an increasing concern for our own rights and opportunities to expand our acquisitions.

Nobody should advocate or support lynch law, with all its attendant injustice, but unless and until our courts revert to stiffer penalties for such crimes as rustling and intimidation, there will be an increased public demand for reacting more violently outside the law.

Only a few days ago, Edmonton's police chief was expressing his serious concern over the seeming preoccupation of the courts with protecting every possible interest and privilege of the accused, while practically ignoring the problems faced by the aggrieved party. It's a situation which cries out for redress.

Off the record

A curious assist for promoting the use of seat belts comes with a recent news report from Ontario that body transplant material in that area is getting scarce since automobile seatbelts became compulsory last year.

Highway accidents had been a principle source of kidneys and other organs in the past, but a recent news report pointed out that fatalities had gone down by thirty percent, with an obvious drop off in the supply of these much needed internal organs.

This can hardly be construed as an argument against the use of seat belts, in order to improve the supply of transplant material. On the other hand, it does point out that we might all consider . . . ahead of time. . .we might all do something better with our carcases, when we're through with them, than have them occupy valuable land.

Probably the highest sacrifice any of us can make is to part with some portion of our body while we're still alive, to improve the lot of someone else. But we can do almost as much, in many instances, by parting with it after we're through with it. If you're interested, call your doctor.

Meantime, better buckle up. You'll reduce the supply of organs, all right, but also the need for them.

LETTER TO EDITOR
TOFIELD MERCURY
Open letter to County of Beaver Recreation Department (You're disappointing!)
Dear Sir:

Both the Tofield and Viking papers carried your column regarding proposed fun beach party at Camp Lake. The column implied that you had poor attendance due to there being no alcohol allowed. You ended the column with "But Why?" and suggested your disappointment with the County public.

May we ask you why?;

—Your programs are so devoid of decent adult activities? For example where are the tennis courts? Why are there no other summer activities besides baseball? There are many active adults who would welcome your guidance in a fitness program, lessons on golfing, tennis, curling, volleyball, basketball, badminton, handball, racketball, cross country skiing, back packing, fishing and so forth.

One would think these activities should come under your jurisdiction or are you waiting for someone else (like the Further Education Council) to provide them?

For your information these above-mentioned activities are considered recreational although one would never know it in the County of Beaver.

We hope you will provide some other activities for us — exclusive of alcoholic consumption.

Yours truly,
Allan Pawlowich
Blair Roth
Jim MacKay.

"NAME MISPELLED"

R.R. 4
Tofield, Alta.
August 23, 1976.

Dear Sir;

Very disappointed to see my name spelled wrong twice (and a different way each time) in your last issue of The Mercury.

I was proud to get 1st prize on "white layer cake" and "assorted cookies" at Tofield Fair - yet the names you printed hardly resemble mine. Where on earth did you ever pick them up?

Yours truly,
Mrs. Jos Lazoruk.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint

Canadian comment

OTTAWA — (SP) — It's always tougher to gather the news and gossip when Parliament is in recess.

While the House is sitting, newsmen can corner a minister to ask questions, and usually they get answers of a sort.

The form is to wait in the government lobby of the House of Commons as the daily Question Period is ending. Ministers have to leave the House, and must run the gauntlet of questing journalists.

With some ministers, you can wait all day for a phone call to their office to be returned, without hearing from even the lowliest staff member. They can't duck you after Question Period, though, and usually news is produced from the group sessions which develop.

With Parliament in recess, the newsman's only option is to wait outside cabinet as the meeting begins and ends, to try but nothing the minister who happens to be newsworthy that day. Sometimes he'll stop and answer, sometimes he won't.

That's why most stories out of Ottawa when Parliament is in recess come from press releases or carefully staged press conferences. You get the news the government wants you to get, largely during a recess. Not only is it tougher to get at the newsmakers, it's also tougher to develop issues in public because the opposition can't ask questions in Parliament. Most of the opposition members aren't even there.

The current Parliamentary recess was more than welcome to the Trudeau government, it was a vital political necessity. Liberal political fortunes haven't been lower since the 1956 Diefenbaker sweep election, and the government wanted to cool news from Ottawa.

With two important by-elections coming in the middle of October, the fund-strong government was crying for first aid and the blessed relief from the firing line which comes from a Parliamentary recess.

Not only does the flack diminish during recess, but the government has the opportunity to indulge in cosmetics like a cabinet shuffle - changing old faces for new, switching those who have blown it to lesser jobs or to the back benches, promoting the likely MPs to the grandeur of cabinet rank.

Odds are this year that the attitudes around Parliament Hill won't have changed too much by the time the next session of Parliament opens, in spite of the summer recess doldrums.

C.A. 'Chuck' MacLean, editor of The Canadian, has been named as the new president of the Canadian Community Newspaper Association.

Mr. MacLean was installed as the new president of the CCNA during a convention which is being held in Halifax, Nova Scotia. Mr. MacLean has held a number of offices with the CCNA and was 1st vice-president during the past year.

In a speech to convention delegates on Saturday, the Camrose newsman indicated that he expects to spend much of his time, as president, in keeping an eye on the development by Ottawa of policies relating to advertising.

"Although newspapers are by and large responsible, it is very easy to slip into a situation where representations being made by advertisers will not altogether stand up," he told more than 250 delegates during the annual meeting.

Mr. MacLean warned that more newspapers could, in the future, face prosecution under the statutes aimed at unfair practices in advertising.

Jr. categories draw well at Fair

Entries in "juniors" competitions at this year's Camrose Agricultural Fair showed both an increase in numbers as well as a gain in the calibre of entries.

Because of the keen competition in all classifications, individuals did not dominate in any competition as has been the case in some categories in recent years.

Swine

Trevor Brownlee of Hairy Hills picked up three top awards as he showed the best pair of bacon hogs, top 1976 gilt, and was the best showman.

Sheep

The Williams Family of Lacombe had three winners as Toby showed the best ewe lamb while Elaine was the top showman in the 8-12 years age group, and Dorothy was tops in the 13-18 years category.

Gary Hacking of Edmonton was the only other person to enter the western circle as he exhibited the best market ewe.

Beef Cattle

Don Rearwald of New Sarepta was the only competitor to have more than one first place showing as he had the best senior calf and was top showman in the 13-18 years age group.

Joseph Brown of Tofield showed the best junior calf while Lori Brown, a sister, led the way in the pee wee competition.

Danny Pochylko of Erskine had the top junior yearling while Doug Schneider of Bruderheim led the way in showmanship in the 8-12 years age g . up.

Dairy Cattle

Robert Kerr of Camrose picked up three wins as he had the top junior calf, as well as the best senior calf, and showed the best junior breeders' herd.

Shirley Congdon of Meeting Creek showed the grand champion in this competition and had the top two-year old heifer Kent Stan nard of South Edmonton exhibited the reserve champion, and was top showman in the 8-12 year category.

Ray Patrique of New Sarepta exhibited the best junior yearling, while Robert McGhee of Hay Lakes had the best senior yearling. Shelley McGhee was top showman in the 13-18 year category while Barb h Wilcox of Camrose RR topped the pee wee class.

Shorthorn

Kathy Solway of Camrose was the only triple winner as she had the best trail horse or pony, topped the 13-16 years showmanship competition, and was first in English equitation in the 8-16 years class.

Tim Vant of Millet was tops in Western equitation for boys 8-12 years and led the way in pleasure pony, 13 hands and under, for the 8-12 years class. Cindy Lawes of Wetaskiwin led 13-16 year girls in Western equitation, and topped the same age group in pleasure pony over 14.2 hands.

Joanne Dzeedy of Sedgewick was the top showman in the 8-12 year age group, while Jennifer Hirsch of Camrose led 8 and under girls in equitation, and Sandy Solway of Camrose showed the best light breed foal.

Jennifer Houghton of Camrose exhibited the best pony foal, while Karen Solway of Camrose topped a Western equitation class, and Michael Dzeedy of Sedgewick also led a Western equitation competition.

Barb Jacobson of Bawlf led the way in a pleasure pony competition, while Kent Strandquist of Stettler topped a boys' equitation class, and Donna Telford of Tofield led a pleasure pony competition.

New Citizenship Act gains assent

OTTAWA — Canada's new nationality law, Bill C-20, has received Royal Assent and will be ready to be implemented by early 1977.

The new Act was described by Secretary of State, J. Hugh Faulkner as as "equitable, logical and liberal piece of legislation, which effectively removes the inequities and inconsistencies of the Citizenship Act of 1947". Under the new Act, discrimination based on sex or country or origin is eliminated as is the possibility of arbitrary exercise of authority Mr Faulkner also stressed that the Act is a "new and unique Act, not just a revision of the old one, and is one that will make Canada a leader in the field of nationality law".

For example, a principle feature of the new Act is that citizenship now becomes a right upon satisfaction of certain conditions and cannot be arbitrarily withheld.

Another feature of the new Act is the reduction of the residency requirement from five to three years.

The Act also implements several recommendations of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women. They include the following — The residency requirement of 3 years applies equally to applicants of both sexes.

— Either parent may now apply for citizenship on behalf of a minor child. This includes adoptive parents. Under the former Act, in most cases, only the father could apply.

— For the next two years, a parent may apply for citizenship for children born abroad under the present Act to a Canadian mother. Such children are not now Canadian citizens unless their father was Canadian at the time of their birth.

— Women who did not acquire Canadian citizenship under the 1947 Act because of marriage to foreign nationals may automatically acquire it upon notifying the Minister. Previously these women had to complete the full citizenship application procedure — The rights of children born abroad, in or out of wedlock, are now protected. The right to citizenship will be automatic in the first generation and will be afforded to the second generation provided that by 28 years of age, the person has either resided in Canada for one year or has established "a substantial connection with Canada."

Other features of the new Act.

— The age of application for citizenship has been reduced from 21 to 18 years of age to correspond with the voting age

— The Minister and the Cabinet may forgive certain qualifications, reward people for special services to Canada or relieve cases of particular hardship.

Test sunflower as alternate to wheat

Fifteen Alberta and Saskatchewan farmers are taking part in a five-year experiment.

Their objective is to prove that oilseed sunflowers could be an alternative crop to wheat in some part of the two provinces.

Already one area has been found · · · around Weyburn in southeastern Saskatchewan · · · where sunflower yields have been favorable, compared to wheat, for two consecutive years.

Through an New Crop Development Fund, Agriculture Canada is paying half the $400,000 cost of the project. Also participating are the Alberta and Saskatchewan governments, who pay half the costs of producer incentives and insurance, the University of Saskatchewan, Cargill Grain Canada Ltd., the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool and Elanco Products Division, Eli Lilly and Company (Canada) Ltd.

The five-year project ends in 1978, but already results have been so promising that the companies involved are planning demonstration days this summer.

Canada's 10-year average sunflower yield is about 700 pounds an acre. The 1975 yields in the Weyburn district averaged more than 1,000 pounds an acre

During its first two years the sunflower project has · · · identified two Russian sunflower varieties that are higher in yields and oil content and earlier maturing than the now-popular variety Krasnodarets.

· · identified herbicides that give good control of smallweed and mustard as well as wild oats.

· · found that applying fertilizer one inch below seed and one inch to each side increases oil yield and results in earlier maturity.

· · showed the feasibility of sunflower · · planting rows of sunflowers 18 to 30 feet apart · · as an alternative to summerfallow

Sunfallow has two advantages over summerfallow · · it conserves moisture and returns enough in yield to cover costs. While wheat does not yield well after intensive sunflower production, it can be grown successfully after sunflowers.

Weed control is critical in sunflower production. Tillage destroys a large number of plants, so this year all test fields will be chemically treated to control grasses as well as broad-leaved weeds.

County Council briefs

UNAPPROVED MINUTES OF THE COUNTY OF BEAVER, AUG. 12th, 1976.

Present were: Cn. Armitage, Brinsard, Iwanick, Kaudelien, Krupinski, McIntosh and Sears.

Also present were: Robert Cron, Secretary-Treasurer; and Ronald G. Pepper, Asst. Secretary-Treasurer.

The meeting was called to order at 10:00 a.m. by the Reeve, Cr. Kaudelien.

Moved that the minutes of the regular meeting of July 8th, be accepted.

Cr. Iwanick advised that the Tofield Medical Clinic was not going to continue to service the Holden area from an office in Holden. He wondered if it would be possible to make arrangements with the doctors in Daysland to open an office in Holden. Moved that if the doctors in Tofield will not continue their office in Holden that the Daysland doctors be approached to service this area.

Moved that the Hospital Report to be accepted.

Mr. Weatherill suggested that, as we will be hosting the Regional Agricultural Service Board conference this year a location should be chosen. It would require providing dinner for the delegates. Moved that the Regional Agricultural Service Board conference be held in the Holden Community Hall.

Mr. Weatherill said he had discussed the Bardo Cemetery with the previous secretary. He suggested that if trees could be provided by the Cemetery Committee the County would plant them.

Moved that the Council concur in the recommendation.

Moved that the Financial Statement for July be accepted.

The Secretary-Treasurer advised that the 1976 tax notices would be out shortly but that no further grants would be received until our account for road improvement was submitted.

Cr. Kaudelien advised that he and the Secretary-Treasurer had attended a meeting with the Council of the Town of Tofield in regard to the Regional Recreation Board agreement.

A date has not been set for a meeting with the Council of the Town of Viking.

The Regional Land Fill site for the County of Beaver was discussed. It was reported that a committee had been set up to investigate the possibility of obtaining land.

The Secretary-Treasurer reported that A.A. Chomik had received a permit from the Department of Transportation to operate a machine shop in the County of Beaver adjacent to the Village of Holden.

Moved that a letter from the Department of Environment regarding coal testing be received and filed.

Moved that a letter from the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts and Counties regarding utility rate hearings be received and filed.

Moved that a letter from Jubilee Insurance Agencies Ltd. regarding life and accident insurance for volunteer firemen be recieved and filed.

Moved that correspondence from the Provincial Planning Branch advising that appeals would be heard on August 12th, regarding subdivisions in R.W. 35-51-20-W4 and that subdivisions had been refused on H.W. 19-51-19-W4 and N.E. 5-49-17-W4 be received and filed.

Moved that a copy of a letter written to Gordon Stromberg, M.L.A. from Hon. Hugh Horner, Minister of Transportation, regarding road grants be received and filed.

Moved that the Council has no objection to a proposal from Can Per Minerals Ltd. to pump water from the coal test holes.

Moved that a proposal from the A.S.T.A. for amending the County Act be received and filed.

Moved that the matter of amending the Municipal Election Act be received and filed.

A request was submitted from the Battle River Planning Commission regarding subdivisions in the S.E. 36-46-18-W4th and the S.W. 15-49-19-W4th.

Moved that we have objection to these subdivisions.

Moved that the Council has no objection to the request from Calgary Power Ltd. for the following power line construction: S.E. 34-50-18-W4; N.W. 34-50-20-W4; N.E. 1-51-20-W4; W½ N.W. 35-52-18-W4.

was submitted by the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts and Counties. Moved that we support the proposal.

A request was submitted from the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts and Counties for recommendations on "Pole Line Setback". Moved that there be no change in setback requirements as these change with circumstances but that we would request moving poles required by construction of Secondary Roads be at the expense of the power companies.

A request from the Department of Environment, Water Resources Branch for comments on an addition to the Round Hill Drainage Project was discussed. Moved that we have no objection to this addition provided it does not overload our present ditch.

Moved that we have no objection to pipeline crossing by Amax Petroleum Ltd. in 48-15-W4.

Moved that we have objection to a pipeline crossing by Northwesters Utilities Ltd. in 50-10-W4.

Moved that we have no objection to pipeline crossings by Reistaly Engineering Ltd. as requested in their letters of July 13th, and July 20th.

A request from the County of Flagstaff No. 29 for assistance in the upgrading of seed cleaning plants in Lougheed and Strome was presented. They suggested a meeting be held to discuss this proposal. Moved that we do not accept responsibility for the cost of upgrading seed cleaning plants in other jurisdictions but that we have no objection to a meeting to discuss the matter.

A request by Tom Chmil for the removal of a "Park Reserve Caveat" on Lot 6, Plan 7520508 in the N.W. 32-50-20-W4 was discussed. Moved that we will approve the removal of the caveat after the Provincial Planning Branch has established the amount required.

The fuel tenders for requirements for the period September 1st, 1976 to August 31st, 1977 were opened.

The only tenders received were from Imperial Oil Ltd., and Gulf Oil Canada Ltd.

They were as follows:

GASOLINE	IMPERIAL	GULF
Tofield	40.50	40.90
Ryley	41.00	40.90
Holden	41.00	40.90
Bruce	41.00	40.90
Viking	41.50	40.90
Kinsella	41.50	40.90

DIESEL FUEL	IMPERIAL	GULF
Tofield	39.00	40.50
Ryley	39.50	40.50
Holden	39.50	40.50
Bruce	39.50	40.50
Viking	40.00	40.50
Kinsella	40.00	40.50
Haight	39.50	40.50

Imperial Oil Ltd. also advised there would be an additional discount of .50 per gallon if they were awarded the total contract.

Moved that Imperial Oil Ltd. be awarded the tender for gasoline and diesel fuel for the period September 1st, 1976 to August 31st, 1977.

Mr. Arden Ryta and Mr. Fred Miller attended the meeting representing the Alberta Forestry Association. Dr. Neil Cannon, School Superintendent also attended.

The Alberta Forestry Association is planning to develop a project known as the Inlet Lake Environmental Study Centre north of Inlet Lake in the Blueknot Grazing area. This centre will be for the use of students in the City of Edmonton, the County of Strathcona and the County of Beaver. It will require the construction of an access road. It was suggested this road could be constructed by the County of Beaver in return for free use of the centre. Moved that Dr. Cannon be advised of the wish of the County of Beaver. In view of the cost and objectives of the centre Mr. Ryta and Mr. Miller retired.

Moved that due to financial restrictions we are unable to build the road at no charge, but that we will make our equipment available at Government rates for this project.

Moved that we have no objection to a request from Alberta Power Ltd. for a power line extension in S.E. 11-50-16-W4.

A request from Allan Sheng to erect a sign adjacent to Highway 14 at the west entrance to the Village of Ryley was discussed.

It was felt that this sign could obscure vision at its present location. Moved that we would have no objection to this sign if it was moved about 200 feet west.

Moved that we refuse the subdivision request in N.E. 27-49-17-W4 as the land classification is too high for residential use.

Moved that the request for a subdivision in the N.W. 25-51-20-W4 be approved.

Moved that we approve the request for a subdivision in the S.W. 9-51-16-W4.

Moved that we advertise for tenders for the purchase of the N.W. 15-48-17-W4.

Moved that the following Preliminary Agreements be approved: N.W. 31-48-11-W4, S.W. 6-49-11-W4; N.E. 31-48-11-W4, S.W. 4-49-11-W4, S.W. 5-49-11-W4; S.E. 6-49-11-W4; N.W. 18-48-13-W4.

Cr. Brinsard requested a committee be called to review damage to roads caused by oil rigs being hauled and also the damage caused by recreating traffic from Highway 26 due to construction. Moved that the following members be appointed to check for damaged roads: Cn. Kaudelien, Brinsard, McIntosh and Iwanick.

As there was no further business it was moved that the meeting adjourn.

Another Summer Come and Gone

The tents are all down, the camp piles out and the kids have gone home. Yes, camps are over for another year.

It was a summer of fun and it went fast, too fast, but, when you're having fun time always seems to fly by.

All together, we had a total of five camps - 7-11 year old boys, 7-11 year old girls, Day camps, Senior Citizens' Day Camps, and a 12 Year Old and Up camp. All these camps lasted for a week but still everyone wanted to stay longer.

We went on hikes (midnight bikes too), played rugby, baseball, dodgeball, Murder ball, flagwar swam like fish, canoed around the lake, had singsongs around the campfire and on one night slept out on the beach.

So, as you can see, we were busy, busy, busy!

The Senior Citizens came out in large numbers. They came to relax and relax but were kept too busy doing things they had not done in years, and enjoying every minute!

We also had a Bench Party at the Lake which was a total flop. Why? Because it was supposed to be a party without alcohol, but, as it turned out, it was a party with alcohol. I guess people just cannot have fun without booze or some other form of getting on Cloud No. 9!

The only thing that I can say is, Thank You to the leaders - Kevin, Gerry, Karen and especially Brian, our volunteer, and also, Thank You to those of you who made our camp a big success!

Churchill Port Authority Chairman

W. G. Winslow

SASKATOON — Transport Minister Otto Lang today announced the appointment of William G. Winslow as Chairman of the Churchill Port Authority. Mr. Lang made the announcement at a press conference in Saskatoon.

Mr. Winslow, 60, of Heward, Sask., has had a long and varied career in the grain business and held increasingly responsible positions during the 37 years he was with the United Grain Growers Limited, before retiring in 1974.

For the past two years, Mr. Winslow has served as consultant on the organization of a grain storage company in Ghana which he helped establish through the Canadian International Development Agency for the Bank of Ghana.

He received his early education in Heward, Sask. and attended Scott Collegiate in Regina. He joined the United Grain Growers in 1939 as an assistant agent for Lavinia, Man. He later served as an agent at Eden, Shortdale and Benito in Manitoba before being appointed travelling superintendent in 1948.

Mr. Winslow was promoted to divisional superintendent for Winnipeg in 1951 and for Saskatoon in 1954, where he served until 1965 when he became assistant manager for the western division in Calgary.

He was named assistant general manager of U.G.G. in 1968 and general manager in September 1969.

In 1970, he was a member of the Quoza Committee for the Canadian Wheat Board which designed a new grain quota system for western Canada.

Mr. Winslow was a member of a delegation which went to Russia in 1972 to study grain handling and transportation on behalf of the federal government.

Sheep stabilization prices have been set

The 1976 support price for lamb under the Agricultural Stabilization Act has been set at $46.15 per hundredweight.

This means that if the nationally weighted average price for "good" lambs falls below the support price, the government will pay producers a deficiency payment on all lambs sold for slaughter. This applies to slaughter lambs sold to packing plants, through livestock yards and for custom slaughter in inspected plants.

It is unlikely that Stabilization payments will be made on lambs this year. Sheep and lambs prices have been good - higher than the 1975 average of $54.

The $46.15 guaranteed support price is based on two factors. One is 90 per cent of the weighted average price during the previous five years for "good" lambs sold at Lethbridge, Winnipeg, and Toronto. This amounts to $35.93 per hundredweight.

The second factor is the difference between the average production costs for the previous five years and the estimated production costs for 1976. This has been calculated at $10.22 per hundredweight.

Last year's support price for lambs was $47.70 per hundredweight. The 1976 support price is lower because of lower feed costs.

Sheep is a named commodity in the Agricultural Stabilization Act as revised last year. Other named commodities are hogs, cattle, industrial milk and cream, corn, soybeans, and oats and barley outside the Wheat Board area.

In addition, other commodities may be designated for support as the need arises. The 1975 crops of pears, prune plums, sweet cherries and carrots have been designated for support payments this year.

Farmers get a better deal under the new Act. The old Act of 1958 was based on 80 per cent of the market price from the previous 10-year average and didn't consider production costs. Under the old Act, the lamb support price this year would have been only $27.37.

Fine show of cattle at fair

Sandau Charolais Farm of Erskine took the most wins in cattle showings at the Camrose Agricultural Fair last week, winning eight categories in the Charolais competitions. A fine exhibition of cattle was entered in the fair this year, several from quite a distance.

CHAROLAIS

Sandau Farms and Gotthold Reich had the Champion bull, and best bull of May 1 to Dec. 31, 1975. Sandau Farm also had Reserve Champion bull, Champion female, best bull of Jan. 1 to Apr. 30, 1975, best female of 1974, best female with calf at foot, and best intermediate female.

Gotthold Reich and Bonnie Bloom of Bashaw had the best bull of 1974. R. Wiese of Pembina Valley Charolais at Pibroch showed the Reserve Champion female and the best female of 1975.

ANGUS

Fred Hood of Prosway Angus Farm of Alix topped the Angus cattle showings with six wins. They had the Champion female, the Reserve Champion bull, the best bull of May 1 to Dec. 31, 1975, best bull of 1974, best female of 1974, and best breeder's herd.

Penesky Farms Ltd. of Bothe-Stettler showed the Reserve Champion female, best female with calf at foot, and best female of 1975.

Greenvale Farms and G. Reich of Stettler had the Champion bull and the best bull of Jan. 1 to Apr. 30, 1975.

HEREFORD

Wins in the Hereford categories were evenly split between Pleasant Hereford Farms of Willingdon, C.G. Dallas and Sons of Innisfail, and Bar-V Polled Hereford Ranch of Rimbey.

Pleasant Hereford Farms showed the Champion bull, best bull of May 1 to Dec. 31, 1975, and best breeders's herd.

C.G. Dallas and Sons had the Champion female, the best female with calf at foot, and the best bull of Jan. 1 to Apr. 30, 1975.

Bar-V Ranch won the categories of Reserve Champion female, best female of 1975, and the best bull of 1974.

Howard Brown of Tofield exhibited the best females of 1974.

Delegate Malone to U.N.

Arnold Malone, M.P., Battle River, will be a member of a Parliamentary delegation to the United Nations in November. The group will be at U.N. Headquarters in New York from the 8th to 12th of November, as Canadian participants and observers. Meetings have been arranged with the Canadian Ambassador to the U.N. and other meetings will be scheduled with diplomats from around the world.

The six Canadian M.P.s in the delegation will be observers to the General Assembly, will be received by the Secretary General of the U.N., and will be allowed to arrange meetings with staff members of the various departments. Such departments as the World Health Organization, Food and Agricultural Organization, the World Bank and others, will be of prime interest to the Canadian group.

PUBLIC FORUMS to review Trucking Regulations

A Select Committee of the Alberta Legislature will review intra-provincial trucking regulations in Alberta, and report its findings to the full Legislature. The Committee's primary object is to assess if regulations can promote a healthy trucking industry, providing the best service at reasonable cost.

Specific topics include: present service provided by the trucking industry; levels of service required, viability of the industry; rate regulations; control of entry; and control of routes. The Committee will not be considering vehicle size, weight and dimensions, or locations and conditions of roads.

Input is welcomed from the trucking industry, truck users, and the general public. For this purpose, forums will be held in a number of locations, including:

EDMONTON Board Room, Transportation Building
9630 - 106 Street
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 7, 9:00 A.M.
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 8, 9:00 A.M.
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 9, 9:00 A.M.

Individuals and groups wishing to make a presentation should notify the Chairman at least ONE WEEK PRIOR TO THE FORUM DATE, providing a copy of any written submission they have prepared. The Committee will attempt to set times aside for presentations.

For this purpose, or for more information write to

Ryley district news

Lena Rod

Rich Parlinger and fiancee of Edmonton visited with the Elmer Anderson's on Wednesday evening.

Morris and Irene Hoffin visited in Ryley with relatives and friends.

J. Houghton, Sr., son, Jon, and daughter, Barbara, finished their long journey from Toronto to Peace River. They arrived in Peace River on August 17 in the rain. Their main concern was to get James and Prince there in good shape. Only a small crowd turned out to welcome them at the end of their journey after such a long, trying journey.

Rev. and Mrs. Precht have moved to Brooks.

The Ryley Fair drew a nice crowd and many exhibits such as flower arrangements, vegetables, pillow, pickles, baking, sewing fancy work, crochet and knit articles, grain sheaves, ceramics, pets etc. The day ended with a self barbeque steak supper.

Merle and Marge Stoddard, (Marge is the daughter of Anna "Malina" Carter and Roy Carter of Coeur d' Alene, Idaho) visited with Mrs. Alma Adams on August 20.

The Malmes lived on the first farm north of Shoats which was there long before the elevator was ever thought of. The received information of the Malme's in the olden days when they lived at Illinois about 1881.

On August 19, Mrs. Eric Brix and children, along with Mrs. Wes Ingram of Victoria B.C. visited the Mrs. Nettie Rilland.

The day turned out lovely for the baseball tournament with Round Hill winning the last game over Holden 5 to 1.

Gail Kotchetnof returned last week from a tour of East Africa.

The Camrose Rifle and Revolver Club is rapidly finalizing plans for hosting the national black powder championships next month.

Arrangements have been made to bring in bleachers for fans and a public address system will be used to keep viewers aware of what is happening.

At least one hundred shooters are expected to be on hand for the two-day event which will be held on Saturday and Sunday, September 4 and 5.

The aggregate winner will receive the Lever Arms Trophy while one prize that will be highly sought after will be a Parker Hale 1853 Enfield rifle. In all, prizes for the two-day shoot will amount to one thousand dollars.

Hail report

August 19, 1976

Many storms occurred from Thursday, August 12th, through Monday, August 16th.

Storms started early afternoon Thursday August 12th north of Camrose, south of Stettler and southwest of Rocky. By late afternoon a line developed from Edmonton through Camrose, Hoadley to Delia with tops to 34,000'. It was a no seed day in the north. By late evening a line of storms developed from Rocky to Calgary and generally moved eastward. 28 hail reports were received from the north, 18 from the south. It was mostly pea size with some reports of golfball.

On Friday, August 13th scattered storms west of Calgary to Rocky developed with tops to 20,000' These were seeded both in the north and south. No reports of hail were received.

On Saturday, August 14th a storm west of Rocky reached tops to 35,000'. It was a no seed day in the north. Another storm west of, Sundre reached 37,000' A third system developed a line from Hall's through Daysland to east of Camrose with tops to 40,000' ½ hail reports of pea to grape size with some golfball were received from the north and 3 reports of pea size from the south.

Thunderstorms developed throughout the Project on Sunday, August 15th. They started from Drumheller to Hanna and by 9 p.m. they extended from Drumheller to Didsbury, Sundre to Rocky, Drayton Valley through Wetaskiwin to Bashaw. Tops reached 48,000 feet. Small hailstones were reported from Clive and Didsbury. It was a no seed day in the north. 110 reports of pea to grape hail were received from the north and 193 of pea to grape from the south. A few reports of golfball were received from both areas.

Storms occurred August 16th about noon near Irricana, Dogpound and Sylvan Lake and eventually formed a line from Rockyford to Rimbey with tops to 37,000' These were seeded in the south but not in the northern area.

Some hail was reported

Roadrunners set tourney

Camrose Roadrunners (midgets) will be hosting a four-team senior baseball tournament at the Cubs National Ball Stadium.

The Roadrunners have been experiencing some difficulty in finding a suitable competition with teams in their own age group. As a result, they have recently been playing exhibition contests with senior teams, winning three and losing three.

In addition to the host team, other entries in Sunday's day-long tournament will include Forestburg, Tofield, and Easyford.

Forestburg and Tofield will meet at 10:30 a.m. in the opening game while the Roadrunners will play Easyford at one o'clock.

The two losers will meet in a consolation playoff at 3:15 p.m. while the tournament finals have been scheduled for 5:30 p.m.

A concession booth will be operated throughout the day.

Progressive Farming

SWATHING CROPS

Every year a growing number of farmers are swathing crops earlier than it used to be the general practice

Among the advantages of earlier swathing are that it catches weed seeds before they shell out on the ground, it shortens the time that crops are exposed to the elements and natural shattering it results in swaths that are more securely anchored in the stubble (unless the stubble is very high) and most important of all, it hastens the time that the crop can be combined and safely stored in the bin.

WHEAT

—swath when the moisture content drops to 35 per cent (the kernels are in the firm dough stage and starting to turn yellow)

— Wheat intended for seed can be swathed at a moisture content of 25 per cent and left to dry until the moisture drops to at least 20 per cent. If combined above 16 percent, the grain should be artificially dried. To avoid germination damage, the drying temperature should not be allowed to go above 43 degree C

BARLEY

—Feed barley can also be swathed at the 35 per cent moisture level (when a kernel can be cut with the thumb nail without showing any water on the kernel) but malting and seed barley would be better left until the moisture content is down to at least 30 per cent (kernels are changing to a straw colour, are firm when pressed between the finger and thumb and no moisture appears) With malting barley, the whole field should be ripe, but not over ripe because of shattering and kernel damage during combining.

OATS

Oats can be swathed at a moisture content of 40 per cent (Early Dough) without any danger of shrinkage

FALL RYE

Fall Rye should be swathed when the moisture content is 45 per cent (milk stage) or it will shatter during swathing and combining

ALFALFA

A ripened crop is ready for swathing when it is a light gold with a slight greenish tinge and the green seeds are firm when rolled between the finger and thumb Research shows that swathing ripened at 35 per cent moisture has no adverse effect on the yield, colour, oil or protein content of the seed However, swathing at 45 percent seed moisture or above causes a 300 to 600 pound per acre drop in seed yield, increased shelling and results in a one per cent drop in the oil and protein content of the seed On the other hand delaying swathing until the seed moisture content drops to 20 per cent or less results in a fluffy swath, which is susceptable to blowing, and increased losses from shattering and pod damage.

Livestock Water Supply Program (ARDA 111)

ARDA 111 grants are now available to bona fide farmers intending to install or extend their water systems for the purpose of beginning or increasing livestock operations.

The grants will amount to 50 percent of the total cost of installing such equipment to a maximum of $500 per farm

Each individual farmer can only claim once for the maximum $500 grant. Farmers can apply more than once as long as the total eligible grant does not exceed $500.

Applicable items include cost of pumps, pump-houses, piping, livestock waterers, trenching for water lines, and in fact all costs incured in the water system where an extension of or initial installation of water lines to livestock is in evidence

Cost of well drilling or boring will be included in applicable bills if the well is drilled or bored on or before March 31, 1975 For wells drilled after this date, apply to PFRA in Vegreville, as these changes are now included in their program

Grants will be made for approved installations commenced on or after April 1, 1972 until such time as the program is terminated sometime this coming winter As this program is approaching termination, we urge all of you to complete planned livestock water supply installations as soon as possible to insure your eligibility for the grant The program could be terminated earlier than this winter if funds become unavailable.

WHY DO WE EAT?

Nutrition begins with food. All foods are made up of chemical elements. These elements, called nutrients, are the same chemical substances that make up the tissues of the human body. Some food nutrients are broken down in the body to release chemical energy that will be used to provide energy for the body's internal processes and external activity requirements. Some food nutrients are needed to produce the regulatory substances of the body, enzymes and hormones.

Unfortunately, it is only the desire to eat that is inherent. Choosing the right kinds, combinations and amounts of food to provide all the essential nutrients has to be learned.

What are the benefits of good nutritional practices in the selection of food? One benefit is a longer life span with delayed signs of aging. Good nutrition increases stature. There are lower maternal and infant death rates. A faster growth rate and earlier maturity are the result of good eating patterns. Mental development and alertness are improved and there is a greater emotional stability. Physical stamina increases resulting in greater work capacity and productivity. These are pretty good reasons for choosing food wisely.

Malnutrition is bad nutrition due to food choices that do not provide a balance of all nutrients needed by the body. It may be a deficiency or an excess of one or more nutrients.

How can we be sure we are eating a well balanced diet? Copies of a "Guide to Good Eating" are available. Remember too that moderation and variety are key words when planning a nutritious diet. Why do we eat???

for our body's sake!

Around the town

Mrs. Connie Hatherton of Surrey, B.C., is spending several weeks with her mother, Mrs. Francis Kaikal, and other members of the [illegible].

Mrs. Wes Ingram of Victoria has been here visiting with relatives in Tofield, Ryley, Kingman, and Edmonton for several days.

Rita Dickson has returned from Israel and is planning on attending university in Calgary this fall.

Mr and Mrs. Charlie Sears spent the weekend at Fort Mc Murray with Duane and Valerie Sears and their children, Shanna and Jeffrey.

Edouard and Olga Fleet (nee Shewchuck) of Montreal have been visiting with Olga's father, Mike Shewchuck, as well as with her brother and his family, this past week.

Mr and Mrs. W.R. Stephenson and Elsie of Edmonton called for Mr and Mrs. J.W. Robinson last Sunday and travelled for six hours south and east admiring the scenery. They ended up in Cameron where all enjoyed a delicious dinner. Mrs. Robinson surprised Mrs. Annie Lancaster at the Bethany Home Cameron and had an enjoyable visit. Annie is looking very well and apparently is happy there. We were certainly blessed with lovely weather. We must have travelled two hundred miles.

On Friday, Patricia Sears, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.J. Sears was married to Robert Greenwick of Lethbridge Rev McDiamold of Edmonton conducted the ceremony which took place at the bride's home.

Attending the family gathering were Mrs. McDiamold, Mrs. Mc-Cree of Camrose, Mrs. Theresa Ingram, Victoria, B.C., Mr and Mrs. Grosenick, Moose Jaw, Sask., Mr. and Mrs. K. Ross, Olds, Mrs. Carole Booth and baby daughter from Vancouver, and Mrs. Marsha Green of Lethbridge.

Annual Ryley Fair is a huge success

Ryley Community Hall was the site for the fair recently, sponsored by the Beaver Heritage and Agriculture Society.

All the entries were at the hall by noon on August 17 and almost five hundred entries were received in the categories of cut flowers, vegetables, fruits, baking, preserves, sewing, handicrafts, open hobbies, junior hobbies, and the crop show.

The exhibits were judged on the afternoon of Aug. 17 by Elsie Kewalych from Vegreville who judged baking and preserves; Karion Parlen, Vegreville, who judged sewing and junior activities; Y Bradley, Lamont, judged arts and crafts; and Grant Clifford, D.A. Smoky Lake, who judged the horticulture and crop show.

The exhibits were opened for public viewing at 1:00 p.m. on Aug. 18th. and the fair activities got underway.

Commencing at 1.30 was a children's pet show in which there were twelve entries consisting of dogs, cats, a calf, 2 sheep, 3 goats and a pet rock. A [illegible] tournament was enjoyed by many and races of all varieties were held. A self-barbeque steak supper began at 5:00 p.m. and was thoroughly enjoyed by all who stayed for such a delicious meal.

Following is a list of winners in the 87 classes of entries.:

Open House Plant Class: 1. Lea Williams; 2. Muriel Lyons; 3. Gail Hamill.

Wild Flower Arrangement: 1. Darlene Lesher; 2. Marie Wesmancout, 3. Bertha Wimmer.

Gladiolus: 1. Muriel Lyons; 2. Ann Wall. 3. Patsy Jeffrey.

Sweet Peas: 1. Lillian Godmundson. 2. Marie Westmancout; 3. Tessie Kolodychuk.

Golden Club hosts 37 senior citizens

Thirty-seven members of the Grande Prairie Senior Citizens Club paid a two-day visit to this area on Aug. 24th and 25th when they came to see the Alberta Game Farm.

Arriving in Tofield shortly after 4 p.m., they were greeted at the Community Hall before taking a short tour of Tofield and neighborhood, returning to the hall where they were greeted by members of the Golden Club. Dinner was served to more than 100 members of the Grande Prairie and Tofield Clubs, after which an open house was held.

Members of the Grande Prairie Club were guests in private homes during their visit here and met their hosts and hostesses during the evening.

On Wednesday, they visited the Alberta Game Farm and reported a very interesting trip. Unfortunately, the visit was cut short because of rain. On the way back to Tofield, a short stop was made to see the flowers at Bob and Lillian Beerenbrink's. Lunch was served in the Community Hall on their return to Tofield. An afternoon of whist, cribbage and [illegible] games was enjoyed after which a pot-luck supper that had been planned as a picnic at Beerenbrinks was held in the Community Hall because of the weather.

J. Lerebebone entertained during the evening with a very interesting illustrated talk on his family's trip to Africa and their stay there.

The visitors left for home at 8 a.m. Thursday, after a very enjoyable visit.

A hand-carved plaque, depicting a Trumpeter Swan, the official symbol of Grande Prairie, was presented to the Golden Club in appreciation of their hospitality.

Holden enrollment shows an increase

Pupils in grades one to twelve confirmed their registrations today (Thursday) at Holden [illegible].

Enrollment is up this year as a number of pupils from the Bruce area are now attending Holden since the closure of the Bruce School. A further increase will take place on the thirteenth of this month when Early Childhood Services (Kindergarten) open.

Twenty - seven teachers are working with these pupils. Teachers and their area of responsibility are as follows: Mary Lashuk, Grade One; Deborah Lawson, grade two, Pauline Holowachuk, grade three, Louise Lukawiecki, grade four; Ethel Brown, grade five, Marvin Tomashosky, grade six, John Emerson, grade seven, Science and Physical Education; Grace Appleby, grade eight, Language Arts, Arthur Micklitch, grade nine, Mathematics, Charles Mathews, grade nine, Science and Physical Education, Leonard Lesperer, Senior Opportunity Room, Wm. Glover, Pre-Vocational Class; Derek Burden, Social Studies, Joe Forest, Mathematics, Kenneth Saunder, French, Lyle Andrusiw, Chemistry-Biology, Mary Ann Sokolowsky, English, Beatrice Frederick, Business Education, Margaret Hallett, Junior Opportunity Room, Osnabld Berlie, Early Childhood Services (Kindergarten); Harriett Reddy, Resource Room (Reading); Eileen Hartman, Music, and Anne Slavik, Roving Librarian.

Supplementing the staff from Ryley are Randy Hess, Career Counselor; Victor Petruk, Industrial Arts and Sharon Krupiesiuichi, Home Economics.

Ryley 4-H holds Achievement Day

The Ryley 4-H Beef Club recently held their Achievement Day.

The judge Walter Melnyk from Chipman, placed the steers: Grand Champion, Karen Magnuson, and Reserve Champion, Ivan Mendakiel.

Following the show, Mike [illegible] was served to the following buyers: Tofield Meat Processors Ltd.; Schnell and Burris; United Foods; Crawfords of Camrose, Swifts Canadian, Lyons Ranch; Pete Sream; Don Campbell; and Charles Magnuson.

That evening a beef supper was served in the Ryley Community Hall, followed by the presentations of the trophies.

The trophy for the Grand Champion Steer, donated by the Ryley Motors, was won by Karen Magnuson and the Reserve Champion Trophy, donated by Ryalta Industries went to Ivan Mendakiel.

Marlene Magnuson was the judging trophy donated by Beery's Tire Centre. The second place trophy, donated by Central Agencies, was won by Cone Mendakiel.

First in showmanship, Terry Magnuson, was the Androwko Farm Sales award. Second showmanship donated by Tofield Tire and Battery, was won by Marlene Magnuson.

First grooming award, donated by Kalal Motors, was won by Marlene Magnuson with second grooming, donated by Crumps Hardware, going to Ricky Bestrud.

Peggy Bestrud was awarded the best gain trophy donated by Silver Seas Cafe, and second gain award, donated by Ryley Variety, was won by Don Hedtickson.

Karen Magnuson was presented with a show stick donated by the Chamber Association for the top [illegible] steer.

Marlene Magnuson was presented with the Ryley Barber and Beauty Parlor trophy for Senior Public Speaking. Darrell Magnuson received a trophy for Junior Public Speaking, donated by Ryley Beg Way.

Marlene Magnuson won the County Public Speaking and received the trophy donated by E. Hardy.

Efficiency winner was Marlene Magnuson who was awarded the Dodds Coal Company trophy.

First in Record Books, won by Marlene Magnuson, received the Royal Bank of Holden award. Second in records, went to Gene Mendakiel and third to Marlene Hedtickson.

Secret entrance

Appearances are deceiving, as it looks like the workman is making a secret entry way into a building. Actually, he's doing preliminary work as AGT prepares to build an extension to their present structure in Tofield.

Public ownership

Public ownership of railway beds in Alberta has been proposed by the province's deputy premier, Hon. Dr. Hugh Horner. In a speech last week in Calgary the sometimes controversial member told the Calgary Chamber of Commerce the scheme would be similar to the highway system, where "the government owns the roads and (private) industry owns the carriers."

It's an interesting point he makes, and it can be carried one step further, in that the government owns the airports, although they are used by large numbers of private planes, (as well as the government owned system.)

It's an entirely different concept, and one that takes a little getting used to, but there are some very interesting aspects of the whole situation.

Dr. Horner points out how the railroads in the first place were given land grants and subsidies to get established, and when it comes time to abandon certain lands, he feels these should be restored to the public domain, since they're no longer being used for the purpose originally intended.

Without compensation, incidentally, since the land cost the railway nothing in the first place.

Dr. Horner said the first test of such a concept may be along the right of way of the Northern Alberta Railway, jointly owned and operated by Canadian National and Canadian Pacific. It reaches into the sparsely populated northern Alberta hinterland, the target area for provincial industrial and agricultural developments.

A further indication of the deputy premier's feelings came in his declaration that the Crowsnest Pass rate structure must remain in force. "It would be utter stupidity to give up the only fair freight rate that we (in Western Canada) have ever received," he stated.

Certainly the suggestions made by Dr. Horner will provoke a good deal of comment, and open a number of discussions. If we're not mistaken, his brother Jack, well known Member of Parliament for Crowfoot, made some rather similar comments a short time in the federal field, but not being in the government, his statements wouldn't cause quite as many ripples as those of the deputy premier.

Inequities in the freight rate structure have annoyed Western Canadians for many years, and there are few who don't smart under the realization that shipping costs from Toronto to Vancouver are less than they are from Toronto to Edmonton, a distance a great deal shorter, but where there is no inland competition. Even American rates are a good deal more competitive, although it must be admitted the service is often a good deal less reliable, in the face of many carriers

Freight rates are important to all the Western provinces, and they're coming in for renewed attention. Dr. Horner's comments may throw some of the first glimpses of new light and reason into the whole picture

Canadian comment

OTTAWA — (SF) — Periodically there is an outcry from the House of Commons for the abolition of the Senate, because the appointed worthies in the Red Chamber are regarded by many of the elected members of Parliament as drones, sinecurists, and useless appendages to the system of government.

As Parliament was winding up for summer recess last month, though, the senators taught government a lesson. The peg upon which the lesson was hung happened to be Bill C-56, the government measure to disallow income tax deductions for businessmen who spend money in foreign media — universally known as the "Time-Readers Digest Bill."

The Senate Banking and Finance Committee - dominated as is the whole Senate by Liberal members - blocked the desires of cabinet on this bill by amending it to take away some of the teeth.

The most contentious point was the government's decree that to be substantially different, a publication must be 80 per cent different from any foreign publication. The 80 per cent edict had become known as the "Cullen rule", after Minister of Revenue Bud Cullen. The Senate didn't think it proper that Ministerial edict should prevail over Parliament, and it said so.

The Senate committee, and received, announce that the government would have the degree of Canadian content decided either by the courts, or by Parliament. Mr Cullen has promised to introduce legislation requiring 60 per cent Canadian content to have it approved by Parliament, and that satisfied the Senate.

One senior Liberal senator, who worked hard to force government concessions on the Time-Readers Digest Bill, claimed to me that the disagreement between government and Senate would never have occurred had the cabinet understood and respected the Parliamentary system.

"It's not proper that the country be governed by ministerial decree," said the senior senator. "Parliament must be supreme and deemed few of those in cabinet appreciate this."

He was, of course, dead to rights. Bill C-56 was one of those measures for which we can thank the Senate, and tote up one of the few instances when the Canadian system of checks and balances has operated as it should during the past eight years.

A few more like that and people will be talking and writing about how valuable the Senate is to the Canadian system.

Seatbelt fallacies proven to be wrong

When confronted with the question of seat belt usage, many people have what they feel are valid arguments for not using them.

"Safety Belts Can Cause Injury"

Injuries due to safety belt usage are slight in comparison to injuries sustained by unrestrained occupants. Where injuries have occurred, they can be related to incorrect adjustment of the lap belt by allowing the belt to slip off the pelvis and onto the abdomen area. Shoulder harnesses that are worn loosely can also contribute to injuries

"I'm A Careful Driver So I Don't Really Need A Seat Belt

Careful drivers do have accidents, and if not on the giving end, then on the receiving end. And accidents don't discriminate. They treat careful and careless people alike. So do seat belts. They can save a careless person's life or yours!

"If I Am Wearing A Seat Belt And My Vehicle Catches Fire Or Goes Into Water I Could Be Trapped

The number of accidents in which fire occurs is insignificant in comparison to the total number of accidents that occur. Less than 1 percent of accidents involve fire or submersion. Even so, the length of time that is required to undo a seat belt could not be a factor in whether or not you are able to get out of the car in time. The probability of an escape is greater if the occupant is belted and remains conscious. The likelihood of being knocked out when wearing a lap and shoulder belt now is greatly reduced, since you will be restrained from hitting your head on anything. How could you get out if you were unconscious?

"I Don't Wear A Seat Belt In The City Because The Severity Of The Accident Could Not Be As Great As When I Am On The Highway."

The majority of accidents occur at low speeds (30 m.p.h. or below). In Alberta 64 percent of all accidents resulting in injury or death occur in urban areas.

"I Can Restrain Myself By The Use Of Hands And Legs To Prevent Contact With Steering Wheel And Windboard"

No. Even at 15 m.p.h. the forces due to a collision are six or seven times the body weight and therefore cannot be resisted by muscular forces alone.

"Using Seat Belts Is An Infringement On My Individual Rights; I Can Do As I Please."

The statement that safety belts infringe upon an individual's rights is not correct because (1) injuries occurring to unbelted occupants place a heavy financial burden on all citizens by increasing medical and insurance costs that must be borne by the public in general (2) Fatalities and severe injuries cause immeasurable emotional stress on families and close friends. (3) If you are wearing safety belts, you are much more likely to retain control of your car if you are struck by another vehicle thus preventing a second accident from occurring

My Chances Of Survival Are Greater If I Am Thrown Clear Of The Car In A Crash"

About one-quarter of all passenger and driver deaths result from being "thrown clear". One study estimated that 80 percent of these deaths could have been prevented if the persons had stayed in the car. Studies clearly show that the chance of survival is greater if the occupant is not ejected. Motorcyclists suffer an extremely high rate of injury and deaths because they are "thrown clear" nearly every time. The world outside the car is very dangerous for a fast moving unprotected human body

An open house reception was held Sunday afternoon in the Holden Lutheran Church Parlor to honor Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacGregor.

The marriage of Mrs. Irene Smorlie and Mr MacGregor took place August 3rd in the Lutheran Manse at Ryley with Pastor Precht officiating. Many friends and neighbours from Holden, south Holden, and south Ryley district attended the occasion to wish this well known couple happiness in the years ahead. In charge of the guest book were Mrs. Olga Hurum and Mrs. Jean Grinde. A pleasant social afternoon was enjoyed and on behalf of the congregation of the Lutheran Church and friends, Charles Matthews presented the couple with a picture from the church congregation and a purse of money from friends, also other gifts from friends present. The family presented them with a gift of a plane trip to Minneapolis, U.S. to take at their convenience. Those of Mr. MacGregor's sons and their families and daughter, Shirley, were able to attend the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. MacGregor thanked all those present for their well-wishes and gifts. Lunch was served by the members of the Lutheran Ladies Aid.

Correcting an item in last week's new re the obituary of Mrs. Ole Chetney, this should have read, Mrs. Ole Chetney, not Mrs. Ole Smorlie, was Mrs. Ethel Brekstad's aunt - and Mrs. Chetney, not Smorlie had been keeping very well etc. - The grandma really messed up that news item. Sorry for the mistake

Several members of the Holden Senior Citizens Group took the trip last week from August 23rd to 28th to North Battleford, Sask. Those going on the trip from Holden were Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hurum, Mrs. Sena Pjallstrom, Mrs. George Giebelhaus, Mrs. Bertha Chetney, Mrs. Adolph Laube, Mrs. Harry Hrabec, and Mrs. Jack Keith.

George Giebelhaus has purchased the property owned by Steve Bilyk, the former Mrs. Mary Andrews' cottage, and plans to build a new modern residence there in the near future.

Judy and Gene Danilak and children of Leduc were weekend visitors with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Good, and visited also with her sister, Terry Lusk and family.

Mrs. K.oppel of Bruce, who had been visiting for a few days in Edmonton, returned home Wednesday of last week.

Diggings Exciting at Rocky Mountain Park

Calgary (June 22, 1976) - - You can't start preserving the past until you've found evidence of it. And the most important part of finding anything is knowing where to look.

Rocky Mountain House National Historic Park, west of Red Deer, is one of the best places to start looking for traces of western Canada's fur-trading past.

A look into this park is taking Parks Canada archaeologists back to a time when the beaver was king of beasts in Canada and fortunes were made and lost in a few hours of bargaining over Canadian beaver pelts in fur-trading houses in 18th Century Europe.

Even though Rocky Mountain House is one of the oldest fur-trading sites in Alberta, it is western Canada's youngest national historic park.

Bill Don Steer, project archaeologist, is grateful for the park's youth.

"Limited archaeology has been done here in the past and the opportunities for finding something new of the past are great," he said.

Digging for history began in earnest at Rocky Mountain House last summer and already the remains of two additional trading forts have been exposed.

Mr. Steer said that earlier archaeological parties had located two other posts and that the two found last summer were uncovered because of meticulous field work and thorough research into historical accounts of the area.

"Much of what we have discovered has proved the old accounts to be true and if we can rely on our preliminary findings, the four posts range in age from about 100 to 200 years," he said.

Last year's digging was a major attraction for over 20,000 visitors to the historic park and the digs planned for this summer promise to unearth more evidence of old Hudson's Bay and North West company buildings and many more artifacts from early fur-trading periods.

Mr. Steer has been on several digs sponsored by Parks Canada and other organizations across Canada. He said: "Once you start looking in an area, you always find something, but what we have found so far at Rocky Mountain House has been really exciting."

The purpose of the field work is to unravel the complex story of historical activity in the area and to identify what may have been as many as five or six fur-trading forts.

The first post there was built in 1799 and the last post abandoned in 1875.

The excavations have unearthed artifacts such as jewlery, tools, and other trade goods as well as building and palisade foundations.

"In 1799, the rival North West and Hudson's Bay companies established trading forts close to one another here, the north bank of the North Saskatchewan River near the present-day town of Rocky Mountain House.

"The North West Company fort was called Rocky Mountain House and the Hudson's Bay Company fort was named Acton House. Both forts were used up until the two companies merged in 1821," said Mr. Steer.

Historians believe it was the North West Company fort that continued to be used after the amalgamation and that Acton House was abandoned.

Mr. Steer said Rocky Mountain House was used on and off by the new company but deteriorated so badly during times of disuse that a new fort was built in 1835. This third fort was used continuously from 1835 to 1861.

Life at the fort was precarious. Returns on furs were not always good, supplying enough food for the men was difficult and hostile Indians threatened the fort.

There is even a report that a group of Blackfoot burned the fort shortly after it was abandoned.

"There was no fur-trading in the area for about three years after that But it seems that in 1864, the Hudson's Bay Company returned and built a temporary fort to house their operation until a permanent fort could be built.

"Historians think the company used the temporary structure until the permanent fort was finished in 1866. This last fort was the fifth in the series and lasted until 1875 when the Hudson's Bay Company gave up forts around Rocky Mountain House for good," said Mr. Steer.

The current excavations may establish whether the story happened exactly as the historians suppose and a crew of 20 workers will be kept busy looking for clues all summer.

The digging will go on at Rocky Mountain House National Historic Park until nearly all of the secrets hidden in the soil are exposed.

Yet, as Don Steer said, there is always something to find and perhaps the past will continue to hoard some small part of the story even though the archaeologists do have a pretty good idea where to look.

Legal or Illegal

Bracero is a Mexican-Spanish word used to designate laborers—mostly farm workers—formally admitted to the United States from Mexico by arrangement with immigration officials. "Wetbacks" enter illegally—often by swimming across boundary rivers, hence the term "wetback."

Prime example

Someone once said that there is no person who is absolutely useless, for if he serves no other purpose, he can always be held up as a horrible example.

It seems that the trend today is to seek out horrible examples, since that makes the run-of-the-mill seem quite acceptable by comparison.

So it is refreshing to know that we can look to our own province at times for some excellent examples for purposes of comparison.

A couple of these are the utility companies that serve Southern Alberta - Calgary Power and Canadian Western Natural Gas. Both are investor-owned utility firms, and both have outstanding track records both from the investors' and their customers' points of view. They are successful; they charge the lowest of rates; and still they offer service that is second to none anywhere in the world.

The same cannot be said for government-owned power companies. The horrible examples are to be seen in any of our neighboring provinces. They are inefficient: they lose all kinds of money; their service cannot hold a candle to that of Calgary Power.

Proof that the utility companies in Alberta are successful is the constant threat of the "pinkos" among politicians and their supporters that, given the chance, would have the government take over the power companies. There can be little doubt of what that would do to these successful ventures. Why these socialistically inclined fools should want to turn an efficient, viable and economic operation into a badly managed, slipshod, costly one-like those government operated ones in other parts of Canada - we will never be able to comprehend. How many horrible examples do these people need?

People may wonder what makes the operation of a company like Calgary Power so successful. How was this company able to carry the people of Alberta for seven years without having to have a rate increase when rates were going up almost everywhere else? How is it able to keep power rates so much lower than those of almost any other place in the world? How can the cost per kilowatt hour be lower today than it was in 1962? (Your bill may be higher because you are using more electrically operated appliances today than in 1962, but the rate is less.) How can the Alberta rate be just over half of that in Vancouver or Halifax less than half of the Los Angeles rates, and less than a quarter of the New York City rates?

The answer is a simple one. It is the efficiency of private enterprise.

There is little if any "empire building" in a private enterprise operation. The same cannot be said for government.

The worker in private enterprise is seeking to better himself and has the interest of the company at heart - while in government the name of the game is for the worker to protect himself from criticism or blame at all times - and this in itself, can be almost a fulltime job. (And why should he work any harder? He won't get paid any more and it is no simple matter that he will ever be fired!).

The private enterprise worker takes pride in his work and his company.

The private enterprise operation knows it has to make it on its own - there is no "fiscal fund" of taxation dollars for the company to dip into when it finds itself in financial trouble. "Sink or swim" can be a very effective incentive to ensure the efficiency of any operation.

How do these companies do it? The answer is simple: Incentive, efficiency and pride.

BIRCH LEAF MINER

If you are worrying about all the native pepper birch and weeping birch trees that have turned brown, or which have brown patches on them, you can stop worrying. They are unlikely to suffer any serious damage, and there is nothing that can be done for them at this time of year.

The discoloration was caused by the larvae of a wasp-like insect called the birch leaf miner. This insect lays its eggs close to the centre vein of the leaves when they first emerge in the spring. The tiny larvae live between the top and the bottom layers of the leaves and, depending upon their number gradually eat away the green tissue.

Early damage shows up in the form of small, brown patches on the affected leaves. As feeding progresses, the patches become larger, sometimes covering the whole leaf if there is a heavy infestation of larvae on the leaf. Several generations of birch leaf miners are produced in one season.

According to Herman Oosterhuis, in charge of Alberta Agriculture's tree planting programs, a healthy tree can normally lose most of its foliage without being seriously injured even if the young leaves are attacked early in the growing season. "However, repeated loss of foliage can weaken the tree and make it susceptible to attack by the other insects and diseases," he says.

In the case of a very light infestation, the situation may be brought under control by picking off the affected leaves, providing the larvae are still inside the leaves. However, the best method of controlling birch leaf miners on small trees is to spray the tree with a systemic insecticide like dimethoate (Cygon 2E). It should be first applied when the leaves come out in spring. If the tree is too large to spray, the insecticide can be painted on the bark of the trunk below the branches. Both types must be applied at least twice during the growing season, and the trees must be treated every year as long as there are birch leaf miners around.

Lakeshore-McKenzie

Mrs. Ellen Eaton

The Lakeshore UCW ladies held their August meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mary Everett with a good attendance. Next meeting to be held at a time and place to be announced.

TOUR TO SASKATCHEWAN

Mrs. Ellen Eaton of Lakeshore was one of some fifty senior citizens from the County of Beaver who went on the tour to Moose Battleford on Aug. 23rd, returning home on the evening of Aug. 26.

Those going from Tofield besides Ellen included Joe and Helen Murray, Mrs. Edith Lancaster, Miss Maggie Peterson, Mrs. Jean Osbun, Mrs. Myrtle Nettland, all of Tofield, Bill Ingram of Kingsmere; Mrs. Marie Mitchell and Jim Ingram, of Ketchemoot district.

Sunday visitors at the home of Carl and Mavis Jacobsen were their daughter and family, Clarice and Peter Anderson and little son, Leif of St. Albert, and Mrs. Effie Paulsen of McKenzie district.

Mrs. Mabel Jones is a patient in the Royal Alex Hospital in Edmonton where she underwent surgery on Friday. At last report she was improving.

Arnold Jones motored to Edmonton on Monday to visit his mother, Mrs. Mabel Jones, in the Royal Alex Hospital.

Ken and Rachel Ross and 2 girls, Carla and Tamary, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mrs. Ellen Eaton. Ken was helping his uncle, Mervin Ross, repair his barn.

Betty and Dale Jones of Spirit River were visitors at the home of Betty's parents, Glen, and Theone Jones, from Friday to Monday.

On Sunday, the annual Waterston family reunion picnic was held at the home of Glen and Theone Jones with some 50 people present, among whom were their daughter, Betty and Dale Jones, and Glen's brother and family, Arnold and Edna Jones and son, Kirby and their daughter, Patricia and her friend, Carol Brown. The rest were members of the Waterston family and were from Camrose, Edmonton, Brederheist, etc. The Watersons are aunts nurlan and cousins of Glen and Arnold Jones. Their mother, Mrs. Mabel Jones, was previously Mabel Waterston of Camrose. She was unable to attend due to illness.

Howard and Mae Ferguson motored to Whitecourt on Aug. 22nd to the home of their daughter, Donna and Frank Edwards and left later Sunday evening with Donna and Frank and their son, Robin, on a motor trip through B.C. to Vancouver and Victoria, going by way of the Yellowhead route and returning via the Transcanada route to Banff and Jasper and back to Whitecourt on Friday where Howard and Mae were overnight guests with Donna and Frank and family before returning home Saturday.

Henry reins last Wednesday and Thursday have once again delayed haying and harvesting but, have helped the gardens and late crops. The warm sunshine days this week so far should see the hay dried enough for baling.

Ministik district news

Mrs. Tim Rashford

Plans for the harvest dance on September 11th have been completed. Norman Pearice and his Western Travellers are supplying the music.

A bingo is planned for the Craft Centre on September 18th. The quilt, which tickets have been and are being sold on this last while, will be raffled that evening.

Margaret and Pat Paterson joined a birthday party at the Murray Miles home in Sherwood Park in honor of their daughter Linda's 21st birthday.

Mrs. Lars Foss, who has been visiting the Pearice family and other relatives in the area for the last two weeks, returned to her home in Vancouver on Saturday.

Ladies of the Arts classes and the Thursday sewing group entertained the potters and artists of Strathcona Place on Wednesday afternoon.

After a demonstration of primitive firing of pottery, art sketching, and playing cards, they were treated to supper at 5 p.m. At 7 p.m. they departed by bus to Edmonton and their respective homes.

The Thursday sewing group of the Crafts Centre will be meeting again on September 9th at 1 p.m. after taking the summer months off. Art classes will start soon on Tuesdays and Saturdays as well.

It's back to school in the Strathcona County on Wednesday, for the many pupils, teachers, bus drivers, and janitors. Ministik School was given a new coat of shingles during the summer vacation.

Recreation Report

by Laura Lee Alsbiid

A FUN TIME WAS HAD BY ALL!
(Senior Citizens' Tour)

By eleven o'clock Monday morning, everyone had been picked up and fifty senior citizens were on their way to North Battleford, Saskatchewan.

No one got bored riding on those school buses, because they were just too busy doing other things — like having bingo games, singsongs, jokes, or a lot of other fun activities.

We all had sore rear ends by the time we got to North Battleford at three in the afternoon, so, we were all glad to get our to our rooms and have a rest.

The next day, we got up early after a late night in the lounge and went to Duck Lake. There we visited the Museum which was filled with antiques and things from the Riel Rebellion.

After Duck Lake, we went to Batoche and saw the Museum there. Again, this Museum was about the Riel Rebellion.

It was a long and tiring day, and everyone was glad to get back to their motel rooms and have some sleep.

On Wednesday, we stayed in North Battleford and visited the Fort and the Western Development Museum.

That night we all went to the Pioneer Association Lodge where the senior citizens of North Battleford put on a dance and a lunch. All of us danced and ate quite a bit before going back to the Motel.

Well, it was Thursday, the last day, which came all too soon for most of us.

On our way back home, we went by way of Lloydminster and visited the Wildlife Museum, which was a change from antiques.

Now, everyone is at home thinking of what a good time each had, the new friends they acquired, and the country they saw. Also, hoping that next year there will be another trip for them to go on!

Ryley news

Lana Ball

Shirley Jensen of Edberg arrived home last week after her and a friend enjoyed a motor trip to several States in the U.S.A. She reports having a very nice holiday.

Several of the Ryley Rebels helped out the Tofield Lions to win the Camrose Roadrunner's baseball tournament on Sunday. Tofield defeated Forestburg in the first game by a score of 2-1. Elmon Seaburg was the winning pitcher, going the distance. Tofield defeated Stanhope Cubs 7-4 with Randy Strilchuk as the winning pitcher.

Miss Anne Goodall is a patient in the Tofield Hospital and is feeling much better.

Another patient in Tofield Hospital is Mrs. Dolly Sutton.

A heavy rain and hail storm was hard on many acres of crop last week, standing or in swaths.

Everyone is looking forward to the Art display coming up on September 18. All artists that are interested will be showing their paintings.

The children will be busy with their studies again this week. Many of them made holidays most useful by mowing lawns and helping in many different ways.

Mr. and Mrs. D.E. Shearer of Washington have been visiting with Alma Adams and others over the past week. Mrs. Shearer was the former Annie Hopgood and was an old time resident of Amisk Creek.

Little Leanne Heisler of Viking is spending a few days with her grandmother, Brenda Helgeland, in Ryley.

The Wilfred Helgeland family of Camrose visited in the Ryley district on Sunday.

Mrs. Ida Osland passed away in Viking on Saturday. Funeral was held Wednesday in Ryley.

INFLUENCE OF RAPE RESIDUE ON CROP PRODUCTION

Cereal and oilseed crops that are grown on land following rape may be damaged by toxins that is readily leached from the rape residue The most obvious effect of the toxin is a stunting of growth. Affected plants lack vigour, are short and are low yielding. Maturity is usually delayed and the stand is slightly reduced due to poorer germination The least obvious and possibly the only beneficial effect of toxic quantities of rape residue is a partial control of common root rot in the cereal crop that follows.

Damage is largely confined to the area beneath the windrow that is left by the combine Rape residue that is spread uniformly at harvest time usually is not toxic to the following crop. A second cereal crop on rape residue is not adversely affected.

Although seedling growth of all crops tested was stunted by an extract from rape residue, seedlings of some crops were more tolerant than others. Varieties within each cereal crop also vary in their susceptibility to the rape toxin (see list below). Varieties not mentioned are intermediate in reaction.

Losses in crops following rape can generally be avoided by using a good straw spreader on the combine.

Ministik district news

Mrs. Jim Reddick

Plans for the harvest dance on September 11th have been completed. Norman Pearce and his Western Travellers are supplying the music.

A bingo is planned for the Craik Centre on September 18th. The quilt, which tickets have been and are being sold on this last while, will be raffled that evening.

Margaret and Pat Paterson joined a birthday party at the Murray Miles home in Sherwood Park in honor of their daughter Linda's 21st birthday.

Mrs. Lars Pass, who has been visiting the Pearce family and other relatives in the area for the last two weeks, returned to her home in Vancouver on Saturday.

Ladies of the Arts classes and the Thursday sewing group entertained the posters and artists of Southcove Place on Wednesday afternoon.

After a demonstration of primitive firing of pottery, art sketching, and playing cards, they were treated to supper at 5 p.m. At 7 p.m. they departed by bus to Edmonton and their respective homes.

The Thursday sewing group of the Craik Centre will be meeting again on September 9th at 1 p.m. after taking the summer months off. Art classes will start soon on Tuesdays and Saturdays as well.

It's back to school in the Strathcona County on Wednesday, for the many pupils, teachers, bus drivers, and janitors. Ministik School was given a new coat of shingles during the summer vacation.

Recreation Report

by Laura Lee Aldahl

A FUN TIME WAS HAD BY ALL!
(Senior Citizens' Tour)

By eleven o'clock Monday morning, everyone had been picked up and fifty senior citizens were on their way to North Battleford, Saskatchewan.

No one got bored riding on those school buses, because they were just too busy doing other things - like having bingo games, singsongs, jokes, or a lot of other fun activities.

We all had new rear ends by the time we got to North Battleford at three in the afternoon, so, we were all glad to get out to our rooms and have a rest.

The next day, we got up early after a late night in the lounge and went to Duck Lake. There we visited the Museum which was filled with antiques and things from the Riel Rebellion.

After Duck Lake, we went to Batoche and saw the Museum there. Again, this Museum was about the Riel Rebellion.

It was a long and tiring day, and everyone was glad to get back to their motel rooms and have some sleep.

On Wednesday, we stayed in North Battleford and visited the Fort and the Western Development Museum.

That night we all went to the Pioneer Association Lodge where the senior citizens of North Battleford put on a dance and a lunch. All of us danced and ate quite a bit before going back to the Motel.

Well, it was Thursday, the last day, which came all too soon for most of us.

On our way back home, we went by way of Lloydminster and visited the Wildlife Museum, which was a change from antiques.

Now, everyone is at home thinking of what a good time each had, the new friends they acquired, and the country they saw. Also, hoping that next year there will be another trip for them to go on!

Ryley news

Lions Reil

Shirley Jensen of Edberg arrived home last week after her and a friend enjoyed a motor trip to several States in the U.S.A. She reports having a very nice holiday.

Several of the Ryley Rebels helped out the Tofield Lions to win the Camrose Roadrunner's baseball tournament on Sunday. Tofield defeated Forestburg in the first game by a score of 3-1. Elanor Seaberg was the winning pitcher, going the distance. Tofield defeated Bamford Cubs 7-4 with Randy Strilchuk as the winning pitcher.

Miss Anne Goodall is a patient in the Tofield Hospital and is feeling much better.

Another patient in Tofield Hospital is Mrs. Dolly Sutton.

A heavy rain and hail storm was hard on many acres of crop last week, standing or in swaths.

Everyone is looking forward to the Art display coming up on September 18. All artists that are interested will be showing their paintings.

The children will be busy with their studies again this week. Many of them made holidays most useful by mowing lawns and helping in many different ways.

Mr. and Mrs. D.E. Shower of Washington have been visiting with Edna Adams and others over the past week. Mrs. Shower was the former Annie Hoigaard and was an old time resident of Amisk.

Little Leanne Hunter of Viking is spending a few days with her grandmother, Brenda Hoigaard, in Ryley.

The Wilfred Hoigaard family of Camrose visited in the Ryley district on Sunday.

Mrs. Ida Oulund passed away in Viking on Sunday. Funeral was held Wednesday in Ryley.

INFLUENCE OF RAPE RESIDUE ON CROP PRODUCTION

Cereal and oilseed crops that are grown on land following rape, may be damaged by toxins that is readily leached from the rape residue. The toxic materials within of the toxins is a stunting of growth. Affected plants lack vigour, are short and are low yielding. Maturity is usually delayed and the stand is slightly reduced due to poorer germination. The best obvious and possibly the only beneficial effect of toxic quantities of rape residue is a partial control of common root rot in the cereal crop that follows.

Damage is largely confined to the area beneath the windrow that is left by the combine. Rape residue that is spread uniformly at harvest time usually is not toxic to the following crop. A second cereal crop on rape residue is not adversely affected.

Although seedling growth of all crops tested was stunted by an extract from rape residue, seedlings of some crops were more tolerant than others. Varieties within each cereal crop also vary in their susceptibility to the rape toxin (see list below). Varieties not mentioned are intermediate in resistance.

bine and by growing crops that are fairly tolerant to the toxin.

Fairly Resistant Crops (listed in decreasing order of resistance)
Fall Rye - Perlon, Sangaste, Cougar, Premier

Report from

Parliament Hill

Don Mazankowski M.P. Vegreville, last week called on Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan to take action in regulating the massive inflow of cheap foreign beef into Canada. In a letter to the Minister he cited Australian and New Zealand beef which was coming on to Canada at prices up to 2½ cents per pound less than the U.S. rate as the major factor in causing domestic prices to drop below the cost of producing. While touring his constituency Mr Mazankowski was shocked to find farmers being forced to sell their slaughter steers at $30-$31 per hundredweight. These low prices mean a loss to producers of up to $125 for every steer they sell. Mazankowski said that he could not expect the producers to take these losses much longer without the beef industry collapsing, thus resulting in domestic beef shortages, higher prices to consumers and, eventually, massive government relief.

The federal government has the clear authority and responsibility to take action on behalf of the beef producers, said the Vegreville M.P. The only step taken to date, an agreement reached with Australia and New Zealand to keep the Canada-U.S. price differential at 6 cents, is ineffective since it does nothing to limit the quantities of beef entering Canada. The question arises as to why there should be any price spread at all. In fact, this agreement was a give away by the Trade and Commerce department in order to provide an opening for further non-agricultural exports to Australia and New Zealand, and to perpetuate the cheap food approach by the Liberal government.

As a solution to the crisis in the beef industry Mr. Mazankowski suggested a Meat Import Law that would operate somewhat like the U.S. Import Law. The reason this is needed so badly is that our Canadian cattle and beef market is the only major market in the world without protection for the producer against offshore imports.

Failure to take such action will result in severe consequences. Exports of homeless cats have soared 60 percent this year, comparing directly with our slaughter business. For Mr. Whelan to suggest that imports have no effect on the fed cattle market is irresponsible.

Mr. Mazankowski noted that the textile industry is being heavily protected by the federal government from the effects of foreign imports. While not minimizing the need for this, he asserted that the beef industry, which constitutes a greater percentage of the Canadian economy, should also be given protection. It is all too typical of the attitude of the federal government towards the agricultural industry that, in 1973 when beef prices were high, Mr. Whelan rushed in and took action to lower them. But now, when prices are abnormally low, Mr. Whelan has failed to take similar action on behalf of the producers.

On October 15th, 1975 Mr. Whelan said in a speech that "farmers have an assurance they will not be left holding the bag if the bottom drops out of the market for a product" in light of the current situation in the Canadian beef market, surely Mr. Mazankowski, the Minister must take immediate action in order to make good this assurance

Cirrhosis: Killer Disease

Increasing consumption of alcohol has made cirrhosis of the liver the fastest-rising killer of Canadians over 25 years of age, according to Dr Wolfgang Schmidt, medical studies director at Ontario's Addiction Research Foundation. Deaths attributed to cirrhosis of the liver have doubled in Canada during the last 20 years, and in some provinces the rate of cirrhosis mortality has increased three to four times, he told an alcohol and drug conference in Toronto this week. The cirrhosis mortality rate is highest for the 35 year - 49 year age group and lowest for those more than 65 years old, writes Robert Sarkissian, Dr. Schmidt and chairman of The liver accounts for 5.6 percent of deaths of males between 40 years - 49 years. And more will die from the disease, as alcohol consumption is projected to rise 70 percent to four gallons per adult per year during the next decade Dr. Schmidt is urging the province of Ontario to adopt a taxation policy that would reduce the price of alcohol to disposable income, as a way to reduce alcohol consumption. Conference delegates were also told that drunk drivers are involved in 54 percent of fatal automobile crashes in Canada, which kill about 3,000 people and cause about $360 million damage annually

Former resident passes

A former resident of Tofield, Charlie Morden of Elizabeth Bay, Ontario, passed away, July 22, at the age of 92 years.

He served in the First World War. While there, he learned of the promise of big money for those who went farming in the west.

He acquired land west of Tofield and resided there until 1943. He rented his farm while he was on guard duty with the Armed Forces at Bowden. When he was discharged, he sold his farm and returned to his old home.

He often recalled cutting railroad ties for Canadian Northern at 25 cents per hour for 10 hours a day. Also, shovelling wheat into box cars for 39 cents a bushel.

After his wife passed away, he resided with his sister, Mrs. Lillie Williams. He made many trips alone in his car, always to arrive back for the July 1st., Sport's Day. His last trip was made in 1973. When he took his last driver's test, he made over 90 percent. A good mark for 92 years. On may 20, the Morden family had a reunion, where over thirty-five relatives attended.

Holden playground ends for the year

Members of the Holden Playground announce that the winner of their raffle, a set of stainless steel silverware, was Miss Corinne Keller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hank Keller.

Proceeds from this raffle paid for the prize, a trip to the Holden Hutterite Colony, and for an end of the summer party for the children of the playground.

This year, the attendance was great with 31 children fully registered and about 10 passing through for about a week at a time.

The playground lasted from July 12 to August 20. Activities ranged from arts and crafts to swimming in Holden's wading pool. Special events included: a trip to Camp Lake; two hobo suppers; a trip to Holden Hutterite Colony. A raffle; Pinter contest; popcorn roasting; a trip to Holden Agriculture Fair, and an end of the summer party.

Awards were given as follows: Jamie Lemke; Doug Fjellstrom; Robert Fjellstrom, Diane Emerson; Ashley Emerson; Scotty Powers, Heidi Declaire, Jody Declaire, Carla Schaang; Becky Laube; Grant Laube; Pam Scherger; Ionne Scherger; Lori Keller; Shannon Keller; Corinne Keller; Karen Swatish; Brenda Hanz, Kelly Ann Story; Robin Kellin, Shelly Lush; Karen Lush; Cindy Chomic, Penny Chomic; Craid Chomic; Linda Olson, Sherry Olson, Debbie Tkacryk, Robin Kasprick, Kim Dubue; Jackie Dubue; Tanya Dubue, Carey Brisbois; Rhonda Fjellstrom, Penny Chamberlain.

We hope that everyone had a good time this summer at the playground and hope that the program will be continued again next summer.

Miss Darlene Shevchook, Senior Leader
Miss Kathy Heikfritch, Junior Leader

Hidden faces

Using black powder means a lot of white smoke. Such was the case during the opening ceremonies at the national shoot in Camrose on the weekend as three of the spectators appear to have lost their hands as Mayor Swanson, Gordon Stromberg, and Constables Fred Pedlar and Jack Carson fire shots to officially open the two-day shoot.

Tofield High will honour its graduates

The annual graduation of the grade twelve class at Tofield High School will be held this Saturday evening.

The theme of this year's graduating class is "Morning has Broken".

The evening will commence with a banquet in honour of the graduates in the Tofield Community Centre, starting at 6.30 p.m. This banquet is by invitation only.

The public is invited to attend the graduation exercises which will commence at eight o'clock. The exercises will also be held in the Community Centre.

Also graduation photographs have been taken, the annual graduation dance will be held.

Gun Club hosts 'national shoot'

Eighty-nine shooters took part as the Camrose Rifle and Revolver Club hosted the national black powder shoot at the outdoor range on Saturday and Sunday.

The two-day shoot was run off in rather casual fashion with little pressure being put on the shooters as they were able to shoot in different events at their own convenience.

Ron Smith of Wimbourne was the big winner as he emerged as the grand aggregate winner and also took the special pistol that was offered as one of the major prizes.

The leasure prize, a Parker Hale 1853 Enfield rifle, donated by Safari Arms, was won by Alex McRae of Calgary.

Gwynneth Jorgensen of Camrose had the best ladies' costume while Peter Scott of Calgary had the best costume for (illegible)

Brief opening ceremonies were held Saturday morning as Mayor Rudy Swanson extended a welcome on behalf of the city and Gordon Stromberg, MLA performed a similar task on behalf of the province.

Mercury's entries make best showing

The Mercury has just made its "best ever" showing in national competitions against other weekly newspapers of comparable size.

In addition to the Mercury's showing, one of The Mercury's readers, Lois Hammond of Edmonton, did exceptionally well in a contest for readers.

Mrs. Hammond entered an essay competition on what your weekly newspaper means to you. With over 500 entries from all across the country, Mrs. Hammond received an honourable mention for her entry.

The winning essay did come from Alberta, being submitted by Geoff Tagg of Formost. The contest was sponsored by Dominion Textiles. In all, three of The Mercury's readers submitted entries. The Mercury finished eighth in competition with sixteen other entries in the national better newspaper competition. This was the paper's highest ever standing in competition in the category for papers having a circulation between 1,500 - 2,499 subscribers.

In competition for "best front page" The Mercury finished in second place, being beaten only by a paper from Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. In an area of competition for columns and local features, The Mercury tied for top spot.

In the only other competition in which the Mercury entered, the placing was not quite as good.

There were fifty-nine (59) entries from all across Canada in the best newspaper pictures" competition, with entries being accepted from weekly newspapers of any size circulation. In this competition, The Mercury's entry managed to finish 47th.

Mercury editor, Ed Clinton, said yesterday that he "was delighted at The Mercury's fine showing against the best weeklies in the country in our circulation category".

Mr Clinton added that "The Mercury's improvement was a tribute to its readers, many of whom submit the news that its printed in the paper. Our regular correspondents and readers who send in stories are the test of a weekly newspaper's strength, and we feel that our paper to be a strong one".

Mr Clinton also pointed out that the confidence of the papers advertisers means a lot to the continued improvement of the paper. "It is a fact that the amount of space being used by our advertisers determines the size of the paper, and the more pages we are able to print, the more news we can use, and we've grown in size by quite a considerable margin in just the last year or so".

The newspaper's publishers are not planning on resting on their laurels, as plans are already being made to improve the paper's weaker areas in the near future.

Get it while you can

With the comment "you better hurry cause it may not last" the Alberta Beef Council draws attention to the fact that Alberta's average retail price for beef has fallen by four cents, during 1976, from $1.36 last year to $1.32 this year.

Even more surprising is the fact that during the summer months, when prices usually rise because of the barbecue season and the increased demand, prices fell drastically, from the $1.34 per pound level in June, to $1.26 only one month later in July. Not since 1973 have Alberta's beef prices sunk to $1.26.

Even the $1.36 figure is only eight percent above the low price quoted, and that's over a three year period . . . not really much of an increase when you consider there are few workers off the farms whose wages haven't increased well over twenty percent over the same period. It also underscores the hollowness of the complaints over the high price of meat . . . actually, the price has been dropping, both in real terms and in relative terms.

Going back to the early seventies, higher cattle prices persuaded cattlemen to increase herds, to the extent surpluses developed. Excess product means lower prices, and lower prices mean benefits to consumers. But in the meantime, producers are cataloguing demonstrable losses of from $50 to $150 per animal, depending on a variety of contributing factors. Reacting to these losses, producers have been forced to cut back on herds, so 1977 will probably see a shorter supply of beef, and accordingly, prices will rise.

All this brings to mind the argument raised recently by MP for the Vegreville riding, Don Mazankowski in a letter to Agriculture Minister Hon. Eugene Whelan, urging that action be taken to curb the inflow of ultra-cheap beef into this country from Australia and New Zealand. Also faced with cattle surpluses, those countries are dumping beef into this country at 25 cents a pound lower than U.S. prices.

We can't help thinking if there were more beef producers living in the Golden Triangle, stretching from Toronto through Ottawa to Montreal, there'd be a lot more concern about the shellacking the cattleman is taking, and the need for some protection.

We can't help thinking of the protection given the textile industry, so it can remain uncompetitive among world markets. Or the sort of government action that allows an $8,000 American car to sell for $11,000 in this country. (A Camrose owner actually "priced" his car on both sides of the line within a short period of time.)

But we're also reminded of some of the foggy notions that Ottawa tries to employ in attempting some of its protection measures. Such as the recent, highly controversial Bill C-58, sometimes known as The Reader's Digest Bill, or Curran's Formula, wherein the Curran formula of eighty percent Canadian content was to be applied to determine whether or not advertisements by Canadian businesses in foreign-owned publications would qualify for tax purposes as business deductions against income.

As Battle River MP Arnold Malone rightfully put it, the government was right to be imposing controls, against the widespread acquisition of Canadian publications by foreign owners, but the measure was ridiculous. As Mr. Malone put it, the content could be utter drivel but if it were Canadian drivel, it would qualify for tax relief.

Canadian comment

OTTAWA — (SP) — The delight at National Defence Headquarters over purchase of those 18 Lockheed long-range patrol aircraft which we will be getting in 1980 and 1981 has created considerable optimism about other new equipment purchases now on the planning board.

Negotiations are well along for acquiring 128 West German-made leopard tanks, at roughly $840,000 each for the Canadian contingent with the NATO forces in Europe. That one, promises Defence Minister James Richardson, won't create the problems we went through with the Lockheed purchase.

It's debatable whether Canada needs tanks, which are useful in NATO but not in Canada, but we have been told at no uncertain terms that a beefed-up NATO contribution is necessary if Canada is to make any trade sales with the European Economic Community. That being the case I guess the tank purchase is justified. It will also make our ground forces in Europe much more effective and do wonders for Army morale.

There are two other major equipment purchases being discussed, both of which could be dangerous if the wrong decisions are made. Richardson and his senior staff agree that Canada is soon going to need a new fighter aircraft. Canada's requirement is for something that can zip to high altitudes quickly to meet Soviet aircraft which habitually fly through our area of responsibility off the East Coast. The Soviets make these forays to test Canadian response reflexes. They sky off as soon as a Canadian interceptor spots them and says in effect, "Okay you've played your game, now buzz off."

Most strongly favored aircraft to replace the F-101 Voodoo aircraft now performing this task, is the McDonnell Douglas F-15 Eagle, which is an expensive machine. With spares, training and weapons, it would come to roughly $18 million dollars a copy. Lots of glamor for the flyboys but hardly cost-effective.

Instead, we could buy F-4 Phantoms, either new or used from the U.S., and do the job for less than a quarter of the price. One hopes we'll choose the cheaper option rather than blowing the bundle on too much machinery.

Much the same choice faces the defense planners in their search for new ships. There is nothing on the drawing board to replace Canada's aging destroyer escort fleet. The last ships into service were those four expensive, sophisticated DDH-280 destroyers.

We don't need an updated version of those, which would cost more than 100 million apiece at today's prices, nor do we need ships to carry part of the load in maintaining our 200-mile off-shore jurisdiction. We should be looking at perhaps 20 smaller ships with less complex equipment, and we should be planning the purchase of military ice-breakers for the [illegible]

Handicapped children

Dear Sir

I am researching stories by parents of severely handicapped children who are severely mentally, physically, or emotionally handicapped, or who have a multiple range of disabilities, and who will always require the care and supervision of others. My goal is to incorporate these family studies into a book.

I am a parent of a seventeen year old daughter who is multiple handicapped. I have been actively involved over the years with many aspects of working toward the betterment of services and life quality of the handicapped. I feel I have some understanding of the challenges involved in caring for a severely handicapped person over a period of years.

I am trying to reach as many parents as possible and request your assistance in helping me contact them through your newspaper. It is important to tell the "whole" story as it is lived in all parts of Alberta.

I hope to contact parents whose children are young, and those whose children have reached adulthood. those whose children have remained at home as well as those whose children are in special schools, residences or institutions.

I plan to gather the material through a one-to-two hour taped interview with the parents, either separately or together if they wish. I will use their commentary as a basis for my book. The material will, of course, be used anonymously with no mention of the child's or parents' name.

The project will not be possible without the cooperation of parents. I would therefore, greatly appreciate it if anyone who would like to become involved with it, would contact me as soon as possible.

I'd prefer to "Travel Alberta" in search of these interviews before the snow flies.

Mazankowski invited to U.S.

Don Mazankowski, Member for Vegreville, goes to the United States September 12 as the express invitation of the American Ambassador to Canada, His Excellency Thomas Enders.

The purpose of the visit is to observe at first hand some of the political campaigning in the United States. The group, of which Mr. Mazankowski is a member, will be comprised of other M.P.s and representatives of the national party organizations.

The participants, ten in all, will depart Ottawa Sunday, September 12th and spend the 13th, 14th and 15th in Washington. The State Department is arranging interviews with elected and organizational political figures during that period. Mr. Mazankowski will also pursue particular interests pertaining to the Canadian political spectrum and meet with officials in order to obtain an insight into American policies and procedures relating to his own Parliamentary responsibilities. This would encompass American budgetary and expenditure procedures as well as current American agriculture policies.

The group will be with political campaigns outside of Washington from the 16th to the 21st. It has been confirmed that the members of the group will travel with two Congressional and / or Senatorial campaign organizations. There is a possibility they may also be able to join the Presidential campaigns during this period.

Mr. Mazankowski and other participants will return to Washington on September 21st for final appointments, with the group returning to Ottawa Wednesday, September 22nd.

Edna Palmer heads travel association

... MAIL BALLOT FOR V.P.

Edna Palmer of Killam was elected president of the Battle River Tourist Association when the group held its nomination meeting on August 23. She was elected by acclamation, when John Gust of Bashaw, declined to contest the office. Mr. Gust is president this year.

Elected first vice president, also by acclamation, is Bob Rutan, of Forestburg.

A mail ballot is being conducted for the office of second vice-president, with two nominees contesting the office. The two are Mrs. Ethel Middleton of Stettler, and Hal Wolke, of Sherwood Park. Mrs. Middleton is postmaster at Stettler, had been chairman of the tourism committee of the Chamber of Commerce at Stettler, has regularly attended monthly meetings of the BRTA, and also [illegible]

Mr Wolke is a sales representative of a well known business office supply firm, and recently completed a good deal of detailed work in gathering the information, and then publishing a pamphlet to assist Citizen Band radio fans travelling the Battle River Zone. Zone 5. He, too, has been attending meetings for several months.

The new officers will be installed when the group holds its annual meeting Friday, October 15, in Camrose

The group's next monthly meeting will be held September 16 in Stettler at the Royal Canadian Legion, at 6:30.

Representing the area from south of Highway 12 to north of Highway 14, from the Saskatchewan boundary to Wainwright, and from Wetaskiwin west to the Beaver Dam, running from nearly Rimbey on the south, to the North Saskatchewan River on the north, the zone has been busy in a number of ways in recent weeks, working towards increasing tourists in the area, and improving opportunities for tourists.

The group offered the position of membership salesman to Bill Fowler, and after consideration, he accepted the post. Mr. Fowler will be expected to travel all over the area, increasing the number of members, both to build interest, and funds. Meeting a few days earlier, the group had agreed to increase membership fees for the first time since the organization was formed nearly ten years ago. The increase, ten percent, will apply to all categories. Questioned over the necessity to increase rates, Manager Sylvia Clemens pointed to the increase postal rates as of September 1, 1976, a twelve percent increase in paper costs on the same date, and an increase in addressing charges only a month earlier as some of the reasons.

Pursuing retention of the Alberta Game Farm as a tourist attraction in this area, the BRTA sent a delegation of six to talk with the Hon. Robert Dowling, urging the government "to take whatever steps are necessary to prevent the Alberta Game Farm from leaving the Province of Alberta". Members of the delegation included Mr and Mrs. Les Evans, Les Dutton, of Killam, Bill Fowler and Manager Mrs. S. Clemens, both of Camrose

The possibility of the government buying the farm should be a last resort, the delegation suggested, and the minister wryly agreed with this position. He pointed out, however, that of all the issues which have come before the present government, none has generated more response from the public than the Alberta Game Farm.

In another area, the group received a letter from the Hon. A. Adair, Minister of Recreation, Parks and Wildlife, following a brief presented by the tourist association. The minister informed the group that plans call for a dumping station to be constructed at Big Knife Provincial Park this summer. The lack of one had presented a problem to numerous tourists with trailers equipped with holding tanks for waste water and sewage.

Banff girl still missing

Tara Jane White, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff White of Banff, has been missing since July 1 when she was last seen walking across a field near the Cromdale Trail in northeast Calgary.

Tara is described as being five feet one inch tall and weighing 105 pounds. She has a slim build and has brown hair, dark complexion, and hazel eyes. She sometimes wears glasses. When last seen she was wearing blue jeans, a white blouse, a tan corduroy jacket, and was probably carrying an orange pack.

Tara, who had been attending the University of Calgary during the past year, was on her way to the Calgary bus depot when last seen. She was on her way to her summer job at Lake Louise. She never arrived there.

Anyone knowing the girl's whereabouts is urged to contact the RCMP or phone 762-3500 in Banff.

BUYING HAY SUPPLIES

1. When buying hay by the bale, be conscious of the weight. For example, $2 - bale for either 60, 65, or 80 lb. bales is $140, $67, and $50 per ton respectively.

2. Generally, top grade hays are better buys than low quality hays due to increased acceptability and nutritive value. For example, good quality Alfalfa at $80 per ton is a better buy than average Timothy at $70 per ton.

3. Consider the following check list to evaluate quality:

a) Type of Forage- For example, order of quality best to worst - Alfalfa, Bromegrass, Timothy, Crested Wheat Grass, Oat Hay, Prairie Hay, Slough Hay, Straw.

b) Leaf-Stem Ratio- Although leaves are very nutritious, most stems are low in quality. Also, as hay matures, stems become more abundant and result in low quality hay.

c) Moisture Content - How hay that feels moist or warm when you push your hand into the center of a bale is too wet and should be avoided due to risk of mold or moisture.

d) Mold, Must or Dust - Hay that shows any sign of mold or must when shaken, observed or smelt should not be considered.

e) Color - Color gives some indication of how mature hay is and how quickly and well it was processed without weathering. The greener the better

f) Weeds - Weeds are often of poor palatability and contain a low level of nutrients.

The Alberta Grain Commission's Feed and Forage Exchange has many thousands of tons of hay in various parts of the province listed for sale

Since much of this hay is still standing in the field or is in bale stooks, anybody who is going to require additional hay this winter should contact the exchange immediately. Otherwise much of the hay is likely to deteriorate from overmaturity and weathering.

Following is a list of the Feed and Forage Exchange telephone numbers:

Calgary - 261-6479; Medicine Hat - 527-7555; Edmonton 427-7331; Grande Prairie - 532-1426; Lethbridge - 328 7721; Red Deer-343-5303. Vermilion - 853-5313; Fairview- 835-2228.

Early stages of reclamation in the Forestburg coal mine area have distressed numbers of visitors to the area, and the rugged hillside above grows some indication of why many people who have seen the area at close hand are shocked. ALL EARS!

The subject this week is corn. Good corn has plump kernels that are not too large and cover the cob well. Corn should be cooked and eaten right away. If you keep it longer the sugar in the plump kernels starts to turn to starch and you lose the tenderness and sweet flavor that makes it taste so good.

Agriculture Canada sent the following corn recipe which sounds especially good.

COTTAGE CORN PUDDING

3 beaten eggs
2 cups creamed cottage cheese
1 43-ounce can corn cream added OR 1½ c. cooked fresh corn kernels
1½ c. corn liquid
3 tbsp. skim milk powder
3 tablespoons flour
1½ tsp. salt
Dash pepper
1 tbsp. sugar
½ c. grated process cheese.

Combine eggs and cottage cheese. Drain corn reserving ½ cup liquid.

Combine skim milk powder and flour and blend in liquid. Add with corn to cottage cheese mixture. Blend in salt, pepper and sugar. Pour into greased 1½-quart baking dish. Bake at 350 degree F. until set (50 to 65 min.) Sprinkle with cheese and return to oven for 5 minutes. 6 servings.

Hail report

September 2, 1976

During the past week the Project Area has experienced very favorable harvest weather with the exception of some wind and showers on Thursday, August 26th and Wednesday, September 1st.

On September 1st small storms developed near Lake Louise during the evening and by 1 a.m. of the 2nd formed a line from Elnora to Calgary with some tops as high as 35,000 feet. Only rain was reported.

On September 10th we will have completed the third year of our five year program. During this period farmers have diligently forwarded hail reports to us.

In 1975 we received 1,294 hail reports from the north half of the target area for the months of June, July and August as compared to 2,040 in 1975 and 1,761 in 1974. This year's figure is 76 percent of the average reports received from 1957 to 1975.

In the southern area we received 1,077 reports in 1976 compared to 1,032 in 1975 and 1,302 in 1974.

The number of hail days is less this year than the long-time average. We had 35 hail days in the north during June, July and August in 1976 as compared to 42 in 1975 and 41 in 1974. In the southern area we had 37 hail days for the same period in 1976 compared to 46 in 1975 and 33 in 1974. The long-time average is both areas is 39 hail days.

Seeding methods were changed slightly in 1976; that is we seeded earlier in the life history of the storm. During 1974 and 1975 we used approximately 4,450 flares each year. In 1976, however, we used 6,430 for the three month period.

WARBLE NUMBERS UP

Did you know that the number of warble infested cattle in Alberta was up last year compared with the previous year?

Although government inspections of provincial auction markets last spring showed that only ½ per cent of the cattle moving through these markets had warbles, a survey done on slaughtered animals during the same period showed that 25 to 30 per cent of them were infested. This is an increase of ½ to 10 per cent over 1973.

A possible explanation for the discrepancy in these two sets of figures is that cattle designated for slaughter in the fall are not being treated. The result, of course, is thousands of dollars worth of losses to the sellers because the packers always bid low on warble infested cattle to compensate for trim and hole losses.

It is true that a 5 per cent infestation on Nov 1 1976 is almost the same as on 1975, but it should be remembered that the infestations are in individual locations in the province varies all the way from less than one per cent to 19 per cent. Although there is no clear cut reason for this variation, it seems that some areas have accepted warble removal better than others. Some farmers seem to be using the present depressed cattle prices as an excuse for not treating. However, it would seem more logical when prices are low to try to get every cent back from the initial investment in feed and labor. This can only be done by making sure that the cattle gain at the highest possible rate and fetch the best possible price

The office received more reports of infested cattle being sold at markets last spring than the total of the last three years. The north east portion of the province, which includes the County of Beaver, also had the highest overall percentage of infested cattle being sold.

With such a large percentage of slaughtered cattle infested with warbles, and 19 per cent of the cattle inspected at some auction markets being infested, it is imperative that an intensive farm warble control program be carried out in Alberta this fall

— The time to treat is September, October and November. With the exception of Co-Ral, systemics cannot be used in December, January or February — The systemics which are approved for use on beef cattle and milking dairy cattle weighing over 300 pounds are: Ruelene, Negavon, Epco Tribiolorfon, Tigwion and Co-Ral.

— Pregnant cows and cows suckling calves and the calves can be treated, providing the calves weigh over 300 pounds.

— Milking dairy cows should not be treated until next spring and then only with Rotenone

— Systemics should not be used on cattle under stress (castration, dehorning, etc.)

— Cattle which have been treated with a systemic should be watched closely for 24 hours after treatment. This is the period that side effects are likely to show up

— Cattle must be given water and allowed to exercise after treatment

FRESH VEGETABLES

Vegetables are attractive accessories to a meal. They can tribute to many color, texture and flavor combinations. As well, vegetables provide valuable minerals as well as bulk in the diet. Right now your garden vegetables should be at their peak. This week I'm including a few recipes for different ways to cook vegetables.

Scalloped Cabbage

6 wedges cabbage, cooked
½ cup cream sauce
¼ cup dry bread crumbs
¼ cup grated parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons butter, melted

Arrange cooked cabbage one layer deep in a greased baking dish, pour on sauce. Toss crumbs and cheese in melted butter and sprinkle over top. Bake uncovered at 375 degrees F., until heated and lightly browned (about 20 min.) 6 Servings.

SKILLET CORN

4 ears of corn (3 cups kernels)
6 slices bacon
One-third cup chopped green pepper
One-third cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
Green pepper rings.

Cut raw kernels from cob. Fry bacon until crisp, remove from pan, drain and crumble. Add corn green pepper and onion to drippings, cover and cook gently until tender (8 to 10 minutes). Season with salt and pepper. Garnish with crumbled bacon and green pepper rings. 6 Servings.

NEW FOUNDLAND CAN PAY ITS WAY
13 Dinsbeshaw Street,
St. John's, Newfoundland.
August 2, 1976.

The Editors
Dear Sir:

On April Fool's Day 1949, the late Hon. Louis St. Laurent announced, with great eclat, that Newfoundland had joined the Canadian Confederacy. Only a short time before, in a National Referendum, the people of Newfoundland had voted by a margin of about 4 percent to join Canada. Before the Referendum was held, Mr. St. Laurent said he would accept the decision of the Referendum if there was a "significant majority" in favour of the move. Approximately 48 percent of Newfoundlanders claimed that joining Canada was a fraud, a delusion and a snare and they were being led down the garden path by a demagogue. Now is the time to prove them liars.

Much was made of the benefits that would accrue to Newfoundland by jumping in fortunes with Canada. Little was said of the assets Newfoundland was bringing to the Confederacy. These have all been whittled away in the intervening years, much after the same manner in which Hitler whittled away at Europe until he came to Poland. The reason the whittling has been so successful is the lack of interest and understanding by Ottawa and the Canadian Public. No one would listen to our side of any controversy or dispute. Poland in our case is Churchill Falls. We produce nearly 5,600 megawatts of electric energy there and the bulk of it is sold to Quebec. Now we are asking for the return of 800 of those megawatts but Quebec would sooner sell them to New York.

One of the claims of those who supported our entry into the Confederacy was that we would never be able to support ourselves. They forgot that "never" is a long day. The power generated at Churchill Falls sold at current rates would come so close to paying our way that we would be able to do away with quite a few of the taxes with which we are saddled today. Instead, we are tied to a bad contract that still has 65 years to run. Quebec is paying us something in the order of 3 mills per megawatt for this power and selling it at forty odd. That, if there is any justice in Canada, is barefaced robbery. We are not demanding the return of all the power. We are asking for enough to develop our potential, but Quebec will not accede to our request. Instead that Province wants to sell it abroad at a greater profit.

Well, Canada, what about it?

Sincerely yours,
T.E. Parlong.

Rabies warning has been issued

Anyone visiting a certain area in Germany during the latter half of August may have come in contact with "rabies" and should see their doctor immediately.

A pony in a riding stable at Grainau, Germany, died from rabies on the night of August 24th. The pony had been at the stable since August 15th.

A campground was located directly across from the stable. Anyone staying at that campground from August 15 to 26 might have come in contact with the infection, and should contact their doctor right away.

Tofield graduates feted at ceremony

By Grace Phillips

The 1976 graduates of the Tofield School were honored at a banquet and program held in the Tofield Community Centre on Saturday.

Bob Garneau, master of ceremonies began the proceedings by thanking Verley Astley for the decorations on the walls which proclaimed and illustrated the graduation theme, "Morning Has Broken."

Preceding the banquet served by the Tofield Mennonite Young Women's Association, Dick Thiessen said grace. During the banquet Everett Norris' band supplied music with Mrs. Norris as soloist.

Following the banquet, Mr. Garneau thanked the ladies for the delicious banquet and called on Vernon Walker for the toast to the grads. Mr. Walker commended the grads for their hard work and perseverance in completing high school. He enjoined the class to choose vocations which, apart from cautary considerations, would bring them lasting satisfaction. In accepting the toast on behalf of the grads, Rosemary Shewchuk expressed gratitude to the parents, teachers, and classmates who had made graduation possible.

Blair Wiens in proposing the toast to the parents spoke of the invaluable contribution made by the parents to the careers of the grads. On behalf of the parents, Mrs. Irene Wiens thanked the grads for giving the rewarding experience to the parents of having their hopes for their children come true on this very special occasion.

Mrs. Wiens said that the parents were aware that many difficulties had been encountered and surmounted by the grads; these experiences would be of value in the new day that had now arrived. She wished the grads the best that God and the world has to offer, and reminded them that the parent child bond would not be weakened in the coming years.

Elsa Heitberg in proposing the toast to the school said that Tofield School had been a home away from home. She thanked all those who had helped the grads to prepare for their future, the County [illegible] Committee and the staff.

Charlie Sears, in accepting the toast to the school said that the School Committee was proud of doing its job well, and that the Tofield School was doing an excellent job. He wished the grads success in their careers.

Debby Krzewski proposed the toast to the teachers saying that every teacher in some special way had contributed to the grads' achievements.

In response to Debby's toast, Floyd Irwin said that the teachers attended this occasion with sad hearts, as this class will be missed in High School, but with satisfied minds because of the achievements of these excellent students.

Dr. W.H. Freebury, Mayor Tofield, brought greetings and congratulations from the town to the graduates. He also praised the parents and teachers for getting the grads to this stage in their lives.

Dr. Neil Gannon, Superintendent of Schools, reminded the grads that their theme "Morning has Broken" should create enthusiasm for their new way of life for success, satisfaction, and happiness do not come unearned. He extended his best wishes for success in the years ahead.

Kindergarten set for a new season

by Lyna Gates

The first general meeting of parents of kindergarten children was held on Sept. 9 in the Tofield School Library.

The meeting was chaired by Mrs. Lin Hubbard, and she and Mrs. Jane Walls, kindergarten teacher, answered a number of questions regarding the program.

Parental involvement is a vital part of the program with parents assisting with supervision, craft activities, musical activities and field trips. It is also hoped that parents will take an active part in the curriculum, suggesting ideas for field trips and classroom activities.

Meetings will be held on the fir- at Thursday of each month at 8:40 p.m., in the school library, and will feature speakers on various topics. These meetings are open to any interested person.

Schedules for noon-hour supervision will be mailed to parents near the end of September.

Any questions regarding the program may be directed to Mrs. Lin Hubbard at 662-2767. The advisory council consists of Phyllis Wood, 662-2212; Nelly Young, 662-3840; Judy Hastings, 662-3267; Sharon Winder, 662-2259; Bev Carlisle, 663-3421; Ruby Beburan, 662-4967; Lynn Gates, 662-2517; and Liz Hubbard, chairwoman, 662-2767.

Over the past summer, four girls from the Tofield Skating Club attended the Sherwood Park summer Skating School.

Laura MacNutt passed her Bronze Free Style test and will [illegible] Alberta in the fall. Kelley Heigh passed her Figure 1 test and will begin Junior Bronze dances this season. Elaine McMann and Linda Jensen both passed their Preliminary Figure tests and Elaine completed three Preliminary dances while Linda completed two.

Linda Jensen will be coaching for the Skating Club this fall along with the professional instructor, Wendy Bradshaw. Wendy is a well qualified instructor who has completed the Fifth Figure Silver Free Style and Silver Dance Classes in C.P.S.A. program.

Ed Donnan will again be instructing Power Skating and he has also been to Sherwood Park this summer for special instruction.

A fading dream!

Record growth

Albertans should be highly gratified to hear of new records in the tourist business, reported by Bob Dowling, minister of business development and tourism.

It might be logical to wonder how we've managed to do that, but then when Mr. Dowling reports more people and tourist dollars flowed into Alberta during the twelve months ended June 31 than ever before, it's not too hard to comprehend.

Even for a cabinet minister, it's a pretty significant achievement to squeeze 31 days into June, and anyone who can turn a trick like that would surely have no trouble chalking up records in many lines, not just the tourist business.

All kidding aside, it's fascinating to learn that Alberta played host last year to more visitors than did Hawaii. Unfortunately, visitors to the Polynesian Isle spent more time there than did Alberta's visitors, which tends to indicate that many of ours were "just passing through" on their way to the Olympics, or home from some of the American bicentennial celebrations. However, it's more than a little reassuring to learn that tourism is bringing to Alberta almost as much money as affluent Albertans spend on trips to Hawaii, Europe and other destinations.

Emphasis of the department now is on keeping Albertans at home, to see our own marvellous scenery, and enjoy the holidays which abound here, if we go looking for them. Just for instance, anyone who's been in the badlands area near Big Knife Park in the past few days facets a rapturous panorama of amazingly beautiful color with the brightly hued leaves, blooms and berries.

Perhaps Mr. Dowling was thinking of the poet's query "What is so rare as a day in June" when he sought to add another day to the month, and certainly June is the most appropriate month to extend. If he could only rewrite the old bit of doggerel, "Thirty days hath September, Also April and November, . . ." we'd be able to urge tourists to visit Alberta, the only province with 31 days in June.

Mitch'll be missed

The weekend resignation of Mitchell Sharp comes as a surprise, at least to the larger share of the public, and many of the insiders, if not to all members of the government. Several courses were open to the minister, who has, over a period of many years, been front and center in a number of governments.

Mr. Sharp will be missed by the House of Commons, because he was generally recognized as one of the more thoughtful ministers, who behaved in a reasonable and gentlemanly way. His counsel was part of the government decision-making process over many years, and on many occasions he has carried heavy loads of responsibility, in senior positions. One which comes quickly to mind, and which must have been extremely distasteful at the time, was the load he had to carry in reporting to then Prime Minister Lester Pearson that the government had actually been defeated in the House of Commons on a money bill, while the Prime Minister was on a government mission away down south.

But his loss underscores the number of resignations which have characterized the Trudeau government of late, in the loss of John Turner, Jean Marchand, and now Mitchell Sharp. All were front bench members, important members in the party structure, and their loss points to serious weakening of the Trudeau administration if not to serious disaffection for it.

There's no doubt Mr Trudeau is carrying heavy responsibilty at this time, but there is a good deal of doubt as to whether he's working in the most effective manner to overcome the country's problems. Or, for that matter, whether he even realizes what the most serious problems are. Quite possibly, Canadians generally could not agree on what really are our most serious problems, and it's probable that your viewpoint in this respect depends in large measure on where you live, and what income bracket you're in.

One thing most of us would agree on however, is that we didn't bless him with so many capable people at the last election that he can readily stand the loss of men with the political stature of Mitchell Sharp.

OTTAWA — (SF) — Game plan Election '78, already seems to be surfacing from the East Block, working headquarters of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's [illegible]

Most of the news reports we saw from that meeting between Mr Trudeau and the provincial premiers in June had to do with the provinces balking over Ottawa's announced intention to hold down federal spending on cost sharing programs. The opposition attempted to hammer the government in the House of Commons on that one too, but didn't get very far. Arguing with the federal position that the cost of social programs should expand no faster than the gross national product of the country in a pretty futile occupation because the available facts indicate that the feds are right.

But as the federal-provincial conference closed we were treated to the old question of the constitution again. Mr. Trudeau told us that only a French speaking prime minister could bring the constitution home to Canada from London and he said he wants to do it before the next election. He would be said right on election on the issue, so vital I say he should consider the patriation of the constitution a[illegible]

He talked of ending the last vestiges of colonialism, and if necessary, doing the deed without agreement from the provinces.

Personally I can't see the constitution as such a blazing issue. I can't think of the last time the British Parliament tried dictating to Canada. At present, the British are even beginning to mumble about how our constitution is cluttering up their files and they'd be glad to be rid of it.

Mr. Trudeau is clearly aiming at a confrontation with Quebec's Premier Robert Bourassa on the constitution issue. He says that he and his Quebec Liberal members speak with just as much authority on behalf of the people of Quebec as does the Bourassa government, and the federal Liberal caucus has formed a committee to hammer out a separate Quebec position on [illegible]

Yes sir the constitution is to be the big issue for election, '78. Personally, I'm not impressed, but I suppose if you were a Liberal you'd certainly choose the constitution as issue ahead of things like the Lockheed Orion bungling, the Sky Shops Affair, botched wage and price controls, the growth of government spending, and the unemployment insurance [illegible]

Men's Basketball

I would like to get a Men's Basketball League going in the County of Beaver -- are you interested?

This would be open to anyone out of school and interested in playing on a recreational basketball team.

If you get a minimum of eight, or preferably ten, men together, contact me at the Recreation Office in Ryley.

The registration fee will be $5 per person (which includes insurance).

Come On Guys, Let's Get Together And See Some Action This Fall.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE

Are there any women who would be interested in forming a Recreational Athletic Team in the County? Be it volleyball, basketball, or whatever?

If so, please contact me as soon as possible and we will see what we can arrange.

FALL AND WINTER PROGRAMS

The following programs will be offered this fall and winter, sponsored by the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Department. If you would like further classes or know of instructors who would be willing to teach PLEASE let me know.

Cross Country Skiing, Social Dancing, General Crafts, Pedal Pushers, Curling, Children's Gymnastics, Badminton, Keep Fit, Instructors Keep Fit Course, Children's Drama, Wheel Throwing, Basketry, Cake Decorating, Hand Building, Macrame, Swimming, and Canasta.

Watch the paper for further details on times and places. Also, be watching for the Booklet which contains activities put on by Lakeland College, Further Education, and Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Department. COME ON PEOPLE, LET'S GET INVOLVED!

Dear Senior Citizens:

Are you interested in visiting Fort Edmonton and the Provincial Archives Museum in Edmonton? The Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Department is planning two one-day tours to these sites.

The first tour will take place Friday, October 22, for citizens from Kinsella, Viking, Bruce, and Holden.

The second tour will take place Friday, October 29, from Ryley and Tofield.

The buses will leave around 10:00 a.m. or 11:00 a.m. each morning.

Each tour will take approximately one and one-half hours. The fee is $1 to cover gas costs. Meals and entrance fees will be your responsibility.

If you are interested or have further questions please contact: Val Charteris at Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Department, Box 5, Ryley, Alberta or Phone [illegible]

HOW TO RAISE KIDS WITHOUT TEARS AND TANTRUMS

"Teenagers don't have to rebel, toddlers don't have to whine. Parents can raise responsible children without resorting to the extremes of either Permissive or permissiveness." Sounds, good?

Everyone blames parents for the troubles of youth and for the troubles that young people happen to be causing society. Who is helping parents? How can they become more effective in raising children?

It is said that children are blamed, but not trained. With this in mind, we are planning an effective parenting training course in the County this fall. The preliminary meeting is October 6 at 7:30 p.m. in Holden. This meeting will be your chance to find out what the program is about and to suggest ideas and topics of concern to you.

The Parenting Course will be November 3, 10, 17, 24, and December 1 and 8. You may register by calling our office or your further education coordinator, [illegible]

Urea production to hit 1.2 million tons

Technology and rising costs are changing fertilizer manufacturing. While commercial fertilizers have been used by Canadian farmers for almost fifty years, two new nitrogen fertilizers - anhydrous ammonia and urea - gained acceptance in the 1970's. In the future, urea (46-0-0) will be the cheapest and most available dry nitrogen fertilizer.

Short Takes

History's Charge

Alfred Tennyson wrote his "The Charge of the Light Brigade" in late 1854. The charge took place during the Crimean War at Balaklava in the Russian Crimea on Oct. 25, 1854.

Legal or Illegal

Bracero is a Mexican-Spanish word used to designate laborers—mostly farm workers—formally admitted to the United States from Mexico by arrangement with immigration officials. "Wetbacks" enter illegally—often by swimming across boundary rivers, hence the term "wetback."

Tides Vary

High tide does not always come at the same hour. Each tide is about 50 minutes later than the preceding tide and each afternoon tide about 50 minutes later than the afternoon before.

"Two Bits"

The colloquial term "two bits" was used to describe the U S quarter-dollar piece authorized in 1792. The World Almanac says the term was derived from the colonial six-penny "bit," which was equal to one Spanish real. A quarter was equal to two Spanish bits.

Industry prairie grain producers have become familiar with anhydrous ammonia as a nitrogen fertilizer It is not only the highest analysis nitrogen fertilizer on the market (it contains 82 per cent nitrogen), but is also the source of nitrogen for nearly all other commercial fertilizers. Ammonia is made by reacting natural gas with nitrogen from the atmosphere. Many fertilizer plants produce ammonia for anhydrous ammonia fertilizer (82-0-0), but most of the ammonia is needed to manufacture other nitrogen fertilizers.

Urea (46-0-0) contains 46 per cent nitrogen. A ton of urea contains more nitrogen than any other dry fertilizer. Fertilizer plants produce one ton of urea by combining 0.6 tons of ammonia with 0.8 tons of carbon dioxide.

New fertilizer plants now under construction in Alberta will concentrate on producing anhydrous ammonia and urea. While anhydrous ammonia is the cheapest nitrogen fertilizer to produce, it is the most expensive to handle, distribute and retail. The next least costly nitrogen fertilizer is urea. Huge production facilities will allow urea to be the lowest priced dry nitrogen fertilizer. By 1977, Western Canada's urea production capacity will have increased from 215,000 tons per year to 1.2 million tons per year.

Ammonium nitrate (34-0-0) has over the years been the most acceptable source of nitrogen for a wide range of applications. Supplies of this product will remain static due to it's high cost of production. More anhydrous ammonia will be available, and despite the high cost of retail facilities, it will still be cheaper than urea. It is also likely ammonium nitrate will cost more than anhydrous ammonia.

Urea is generally a better broadcast fertilizer than a drill-in fertilizer. It produces better results on annual crops than on grasslands. Research has shown that urea can seem readily be substituted for 34-0-0 as a drill-in fertilizer on heavier textured soils than on lighter soils. It can be substituted for ammonium nitrate as a broadcast fertilizer on most soils. On grasslands, urea performs better if it rains soon after application.

Urea is not recommended in three situations.

1) As a drill-in fertilizer for annual crops on lighter soils

2) As a drill-in fertilizer on soils nearly adequately supplied with nitrogen - eg. summerfallow

3) As a broadcast fertilizer for grasslands subject to worm dry weather or light rainfall.

A further recommendation is that urea (46-0-0) and ammonium nitrate (34-0-0), or fertilizers containing ammonium nitrate such as 28-13-0, should not be mixed together in either bulk storage facilities or application equipment. If mixed, the fertilizer will absorb moisture from the air and form a wet solution which can damage equipment

The supply of natural gas is limited. As the resource becomes more scarce, prices will rise and directly influence nitrogen fertilizer prices. It makes sense to produce and use the cheapest dry nitrogen fertilizer

Holden and district new items

Mrs. G.H Taylor

Mrs. Amanda (Jack) Coates, the former Amanda Sorgen and member of a pioneer family of north Holden, passed away Thursday of last week in Armstrong, B.C. The funeral service was held on Sept. 6th and cremation followed. Mrs. Coates and family resided in various places around the Holden and Bruce district before her husband passed away. Mrs. Coates was for several years manager of the old A.G.T. telephone office in Holden.

Mrs. Ethel Pleasing has been visiting with relatives and friends for several days in B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Carlson and G.H Taylor were business visitors last week in Tofield.

Lay Gibson and Lars Rikland of Vimia Lodge in Viking were Wednesday afternoon visitors the past week with Mrs. Beth Campbell. While Mr. and Mrs. Nick Laskoski were away on their recent holiday trip to Australia, also stopping at Honolulu, Mr. Gibson looked after the farm for them. Nick phoned him from Australia on their arrival there.Mr. Gibson had his son David and wife of B.C., visit with him for four days on their way home from visiting relatives of Mrs. Gibson's around Grande Prairie.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Carlson visited friends at the Parkland Nursing Home in Viking the past Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Daniluk and Mrs. Henry Daniluk have been spending a week's holiday in Jasper and Banff Parks, also at Lake Louise and other points in the mountain area. They enjoyed good weather during their trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Brian Taylor and family of St. Albert were Saturday visitors with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Tayley. Brian just returned early Friday morning from a three day business trip to Inuvik and Tuktoyaktuk, in the Arctic Circle. He says the trees already have their fall colors and the days are starting to shorten.

Mrs. Adolph Laube returned home at the end of the week from a two week trip to California, going there with her sister on a tour.

Mrs. Art Minchau of the Bruce district passed away suddenly on Sept. 5th after suffering a heart attack. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 8th, at the Bruce Lutheran Church.

Mr. Hjalter of Vimia Lodge, father of Mrs. Joan Grinde, is at present a patient in Tofield Hospital. Mrs. Hjalter is staying with relatives in Tofield.

In the recently held gymkhana in Viking, the horse pulling contest was a very interesting event. After a lengthy period of successful pulls the judges declared a draw between two finalists, the Wayne Lusk team sponsored by Jim Lusk of Good's Transport of Holden and the George Jamieson team sponsored by Ken Walker of the Alberta Gas Trunk Line. The third entry was the Earle Davis team sponsored by the Vantage Builders of Vegreville.

The Ken Campbell family of Leduc were Sunday guests with Marjorie's mother, Mrs. Beth Campbell, and took her back to Leduc with them for a couple of days, on business.

Surprise Saturday afternoon visitors with Mrs. Beth Campbell were two daughters and a son-in-law of a former resident of Holden, Mrs. Miriam Campbell, the former Miriam Kenney who lived in Holden a number of years ago. After the death of her mother she was adopted by Mrs. Bristie, Sr. She and some of her family live on a farm in the Rosalind district, where she taught school for several years before her marriage.

Mrs. Mary Zazak was a hospital patient for a few days last week having a check-up and tests.

MARY EBERHART PASSES

A former pioneer resident of the Holden district Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Eberhart of Angus McGregor Nursing Home in Edmonton, passed away on September 10th at the age of 80 years.

She is survived by four sons, Ernest of Vermilion, Ezra of Holden, Daniel of Edmonton, and Clayton of Fort McMurray; five daughters, Miss Ruby Eberhart of Allehabad, India, Mrs. Francis (Sophie) Bowsher, Mrs. Albert (Alvira) Beattaher, Miss Eva Eberhart, all of Edmonton, and Mrs. Douglas (Ilene) Henkel of Duffield, three brothers, John A. Giebelhaus of Sherwood Park, formerly of Holden, Henry Giebelhaus of Bruce, and Christian Giebelhaus of Camrose; eight sisters, Miss Emma Giebelhaus, Miss Margaret Giebelhaus, Mrs. Christina Nicholson, Miss Minnie Giebelhaus of Edmonton, Mrs. Katherine Desmagnon of Lacombe, Mrs. Clara Haight, of Wenatchee, Wash., Mrs. Pauline Makonik of Rich Valley, and Mrs. Helen Bowmer of Sheboygan, Wisconsin. She was predeceased by her husband, John Frederick, and two infant daughters.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, September 14th, at the Evangelical Church in north Holden with Rev. J. McKinstry officiating. Interment was in the church cemetery

Testing control for Canada thistle

A weevil with an appetite for Canada thistle could be the answer to controlling the weed.

Female weevils of a species introduced from Europe lay their eggs in the leaves of Canada thistle. The larvae bore through the leaves into the stems and mine up and down the stem, killing the plant.

The weevils were first introduced into Canada in 1967 on thistle patches on an Ontario farm. This year, scientists from Agriculture Canada's Regina, Sask., Research Station, found that the weevils had wiped out Canada thistle at the test site and for almost 500 yards beyond it, as they destroy their food source in one spot, the weevils move on to patches farther afield Scientists found weevils in thistle two miles from the original test site. Researchers are now fairly sure that destruction of Canada thistle at the original release site is primarily due to the weevils.

This method of biological control of Canada thistle is being tested in Saskatchewan and Alberta. Three years after weevil releases in Saskatchewan their population had increased by 10 times. However, it is still too soon to estimate their impact on Canada thistle stands on the Prairies. It took eight years for significant results to show in Ontario.

Before the weevils were first released in Canada, their taste preferences were tested. They seemed to have no liking for any other plant except Canada thistle. Had they attacked other plants, they would not have been released

Biological control of Canada thistle will probably only work on pastures and other uncultivated land

Cropping removes the weevils along with their food supply and doesn't allow the insect's population to build up to the size necessary for thistle destruction.

But if the number of thistles in an area is reduced, fewer seeds will be produced to infest cultivated land.

as there could have been danger to valuable crops after the weevils had killed all the Canada thistle in an area. The Ontario evidence that the weevils are moving on to find new thistle patches proves that their specialized taste will keep them within bounds.

Enrolment at Camrose Lutheran College is expected to set another new record this year, reports Leroy Johnson, although the figures will not be complete for a few days. Mr. Johnson has been transferred to the post of Director of Public Relations.

Last year's enrolment of 401, which set a record, is expected this year to surge past the 450 mark, he said late last week.

Several changes have been made at the College to accommodate the new high number of students, most notable of which is a comprehensive renovation of Old Main. Students who attended classes there several years ago look with amazement as they visit the old centre these days, and can't believe the changes being wrought, as the old building takes on a completely new look inside.

All of the classroom building is being devoted to classrooms, which requires major structural changes in that area, and the offices have all been moved to Old Main. Greatly increased space has been provided for the library, and a new stairway entrance has been cut through the floor of the second level to provide rapid access to it.

Final rites held for Karen Larsen

(Karen) Sofie Larsen was born May 27, 1891 at Hyllinge, Denmark to Rasmus and Sidse Johansen. She was baptised and confirmed into the Lutheran faith.

In the spring of 1916, she immigrated to Souel, Dakota, U.S.A., and was joined in marriage on October 17, 1916 to Johannes, John Larsen. To this union seven daughters were born. In 1925, they immigrated to Alberta. They farmed in the Holden, Bawlf, and Camrose areas until retiring to Camrose in 1955. In the spring of 1960, they moved to Stoney Creek Lodge, moving to the Bethany Nursing Home in 1963 where she resided until the time of her passing, on July 24, 1976.

She leaves to mourn her passing, seven daughers, Elisabeth, Mrs. Jens N. Christensen, Wennington Springs, South Dakota, Lors, Mrs. Lawrence Jacobsen, Fort Saskatchewan, Helen Larsen, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Valborg, Mrs. Elmer Westergaard, Dickson, Gudrun, Mrs. James Adolf, Camrose, Ebba, Mrs. Calvin Larsen, Spruce Veiw, Esther, Mrs. Henry Lambert Wiefield; six sons-in-law; nineteen grandchildren, and eleven great-grandchildren. She also leaves one sister, Valborg, Mrs. Jens Chemists of Copenhagen, Denmark; two sister-in-laws, and a number of nieces and nephews in Denmark and the U.S.A. She was predeceased by her husband in 1961, one grandson, and one great-grandson

Funeral services were conducted on August 2, at the Messiah Lutheran Church, Camrose, with Pastor A. Severson officiating. Interment followed in the Camrose Cemetery with Burgar Funeral Home handling all arrangements.

The pallbearers were Chris Peshen, Orville Pederson, Bernard Petersen, Carl C. Sorensen, Carl Sorensen, and Albert Vos.

Frank and Mary Banack mark 64th wedding anniversary

On August 22nd, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Banack of Round Hill celebrated their 64th wedding anniversary. Above is a picture of [illegible] taken exactly 40 years ago, in September 1936.

Frank Banack and Mary Holwa were married on Aug. 18, 1912, at St. Stanislaus Church with Father Kaliway officiating. To this union were born 17 children, Stanley, Anne, Edward, Casmer (deceased), Helen, Josie, Mary (deceased), Louis, Anthony (deceased), Mickey, Alex, Rudy, Frances, Frank, Joseph, Adam, and William, who is presently operating the family farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Banack, who are now 86 and 82 respectively, retired from farming in 1957 and moved into Round Hill where they still keep their own house and grow a beautiful garden every year.

Approximately 150 relatives and friends joined the couple at the family farm, which was their homestead, on Aug. 22nd to make it a very happy occasion.

Avadex* BW this fall can mean earlier seeding next spring.

Avadex* BW is the preemergent herbicide by Monsanto that controls wild oats in wheat, barley, rapeseed, flax, mustard, or sugar beets. And Avadex* BW granules can be applied in the fall. That way, you can get more time next spring for planting, and a better chance of getting your seed in early. Give the idea some consideration. You've got till soil freeze-up time to decide.

Always read and carefully follow the Avadex* BW label instructions

Hail suppression works, says board

A report issued by the Alberta Weather Modification Board indicates that hail suppression by cloud seeding reduced the amount of hail that fell during the summer in central Alberta.

The reports says many of the small potential hail storms that were seeded dissipated with little or no hail falling. While some crops sustained 100 per cent damage from the large storms that extended from Calgary to Red Deer in early July, many farmers felt that cloud seeding was responsible for the relatively small area where damage occurred compared with the intensity and size of the storms.

This season represents the third of a five-year experimental hail suppression program being carried out by the Alberta Weather Modification Board in central Alberta. The chairman of the board, Gordon Sterling, says seeding techniques were slightly changed this year on the basis of information obtained from radar and other sources during the first two years of the program.

The main change entailed dropping the flares into the top of the shelf (base) cloud of hail producing clouds rather than into the growing cloud towers of the storm as was done in previous years. The idea here is to get the silver iodide into the cloud towers earlier in their development.

In the case of imbedded clouds, and in the case of some high clouds, the seeding is done below the shelf cloud by burning the silver iodide flare on the trailing edge of the aircraft's wings as it flies in the periferry of the updraft of the clouds.

"Our pilots and our meteorologists, when flying, have observed a change in the cloud structure on numerous occasions shortly after the clouds have been seeded," Mr. Sterling says.

Apparently, this change is particularly noticeable during the top seeding of clouds in the smaller storms.

According to Mr. Sterling, the weather modification board has developed an experiment to determine whether or not there is visual effect following cloud seeding from below the clouds. The same phenomena as noted above may also be true for [illegible] clouds.

The Research Council of Alberta's (RCA) atmospheric sciences division has done a considerable amount of research on this subject during the first two years of the weather modification program. Studies on hailswath length, although not statistically significant, showed that hailswaths are shorter on hail seeding days than on non-hail seeding days.

RCA has also studied the impact energy of seeded versus non-seeded storms. The scientists found little difference in the two on the basis of the 1974 data, but the 1975 data showed more impact energy in non-seeded storms than in seeded storms.

Although RCA is not prepared to draw any conclusions at this time from the studies, if the present trend continues, it will probably be possible to measure the differences between seeded and non-seeded storms by the end of the five-year program or shortly afterwards.

Preserve Cut Flowers

Cut flowers can retain their fresh appearance for nearly a week when properly handled. In fact, some long-lasting varieties may last up to two weeks.

Alberta Agriculture's horticultural specialist, Arlene Chesney, says proper conditioning or 'hardening' following cutting, and the after care, are the secrets to a long life for cut flowers.

The first step is to cut the stems with a sharp knife or shears. It make little difference whether the cut is straight across the stem or slanting, but it is important to make the cut just above a side branch to encourage more blooms on the plant.

Next, strip off the foliage from the lower four to six inches of the stem so that no foliage will be submersed in the water in the vase. Removal of this excess foliage not only provides more room in the vase but it also reduces the amount of bacteria and fungi that will be carried into it. The subsequent growth of these organisms shortens the life of cut flowers.

The third step is to remove another one to two inches from the stem of each flower. This procedure ensures the rapid absorption of water. Then put the stems into a pail containing about four inches of warm water (43 degree C). The two critical points in this step are that the pail or other container be scrupulously cleaned and that the water be warm.

Containers, especially those which have previously been used for plants, should be thoroughly scrubbed inside to remove all traces of plant residue that may harbor bacteria or fungi. Multiplication and growth of these organisms can clog the water conducting channels in the stems causing the flowers to wilt rapidly.

Warm rather than cold water is recommended because it travels up the stems faster and more easily. You can add some commercial flower preservative to the water if it is easily obtainable from your local florist or garden centre.

A preservative definitely lengthens the life of cut flowers.

The final step in conditioning cut flowers is to place the container in a cool, shaded area for at least two hours so that the flowers and stems will absorb water rapidly, and, thereby, regain their former freshness and crispness. This process can be hastened by wrapping the exposed stems and the flowers in a piece of plastic or paper to reduce water loss through evaporation.

IS WHOLE WHEAT BREAD FATTENING?

Answer: To describe any food as fattening is misleading. For, it is not any single food which is guilty of causing a gain in weight. It is the total amount of all foods eaten, which add extra pounds if they provide more calories than the individual needs for normal activity and well-being. Practically any food CAN help to add those extra pounds, if you eat enough of it. But bread is not a guilty food, any more than grapefruit, eggs, skim milk or sardines may be guilty. An average slice of whole wheat bread contains about 75 calories - - the same as one large orange, one egg, one glass of skim milk, or a one-inch cube of cheese. In fact, the one slice of bread contains less calories and more of the essential nutrient, fibre, than a serving of canned peaches, four medium sardines or a serving of lemon sherbet.

Progressive Farming

DOLLARS AND SENSE FOR THE CATTLE FEEDER

The cow business includes commercial cow-calf herds on farms and ranches, growing stockers, feeders and feedlotting, rearing of purebreds, exotics, A.I. bull studs, and dairying. Although the product for ultimate market is different in each case, the objective of the business is the same - to operate profitably.

Before embarking on a feeding programme, or feedlot expansion, the cattle feeder wants to know if it has profit potential. Two things are generally known at the beginning of any feeding period:

The asking price of feeders.

Feed prices.

By using standard beech-snatt feeding data, which is readily available from many sources, including feed manufacturers, research stations, and livestock and extension personnel in the Department of Agriculture, coupled with feeding results from his own enterprise in previous years (hopefully the records have been kept, analyzed, and evaluated), the feeder can figure his major costs for the coming year by following the procedure outlined in the cattle feeding worksheet (see accompanying fact sheet). The feeder can calculate the necessary selling price to cover all costs. By comparing this price with the expected future selling price, he can estimate his profit prospects. This is where a great deal of risk and uncertainty creeps in.

The feeder will be selling his finished cattle at some time in the future, and must often the selling price is extremely difficult to predict. Therefore, he should be persuaded to withstand cost, less sustained by his participation as a cattle feeder. The experts financial depth. Information now available through Canfax and Cattlefax is extremely valuable, enabling feeders to plan their feeding programmes with a great deal more fact and logic than was previously possible. Moreover, the advent of trading in Live Beef Futures, available through the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, permits greater stability, particularly to younger feeders who do not have a lot of financial depth which would enable them to otherwise withstand some of the risk.

In summary, before embarking on a project, evaluate its prospects. Determine on paper whether or not there is potential for profit. The right feeding programme followed on a large scale can make a man rich in the right year: the wrong feeding programme and the wrong year can break him just as quickly. But feeding programmes can be selected to fit many feed, labor, or capital situations. The feeder needs to select the one which will best fit his own situation and then keep a sharp eye on the market.

MANAGEMENT CONSIDERATIONS

Margins and Feeding Profits - Feeding operations give rise to profits of two sorts. One is the return from converting feed, labor and other resources into meat. The other is the gain from selling the original weight of the steer at a higher price than the purchase price of the same weight. Most of the profit' quick returns in feeding come from the "Margin profit", but important gains are also made from "Feeding Profits."

Know How and Risks - Cattle feeders claim that men who are viewed make most of their money the day the cattle are bought. While some men are poor buyers, they are good enough as feeders so they can "feed themselves out of the hole". Others make most of their money in selling. The man who can do all three is co-ordinated a cattle feeding "wizard". Some people say that cattle feeding is only legal gambling - "If your wife won't let you play poker, you can always feed cattle." While there are usual risks from disease, fire and theft, price risks are especially great. Risks vary with the weight, grade and kind of cattle, and the feeding programme. Usually the risk is least with light cattle and greatest with heavy animals. When times are good, heavy animals give big profits, but they also give big losses from negative margins with falling prices. Plainer grades of cattle fed for a short time usually involve the smallest risk because less money is tied up in the animals and they are fed more cheaply.

To be a good cattle feeder one needs to watch:

a) The feed situation and supply of cattle on feed.

b) What the other fellow is buying.

c) National and international demand for feed and meat.

d) Selling price to break even on steers and feed.

e) Time to buy and when to sell.

He must also always be aware that many feed considerations can be substituted one for the other, and what he is really after is the combination of feeds that will give the lowest cost of producing 100 lbs. of gain.

Last rites are held for John Baergen

JOHN GERHARD BAERGEN

John Gerhard Baergen was born in Priedensdorf Tauride, Russia on December 21, 1927 to Gerhard and Margaret Baergen.

He and his family emigrated to Canada in 1926 settling in Sedalia. At the age of 20 he was baptized and joined the General Conference Mennonite Church.

He was married November 5, 1932 to Agnes Regehr. In 1936 they moved to Ryley and then to Tofield in 1943. Here he farmed until his retirement in 1972. He played an active part in church activities, especially in the area of music serving as song leader for many years. In later years, together with his wife, he enjoyed his lovely yard and garden. He continued to take an active interest in farming by assisting John and Allen in Grande Prairie as time and health permitted.

The Baergens had 4 daughters and 1 son, later 4 son-in-laws, one daughter-in-law, 6 grandsons and 5 granddaughters.

He passed away on September 7th.

He leaves to mourn, his wife, Agnes, 4 daughters and their husbands, Henry and Evelyn Rempel, Chilliwack, B.C., Donald and Rita Schmidt, Lanham, Maryland, Cornelius and Anne Hildebrandt, Grande Prairie, Allen and Louise Heidebrecht, Wembley; and one son and his wife, John and Lorraine Baergen, Grande Prairie; 11 grandchildren, five sisters, Sarah Hochstgal of Calgary, Anna Wiens of Three Hills, Margaret Wiens of Herschel, Sask., Agnes Pauttecker of Winnipeg, Man., Helen Reinhoff of Aldergrove, B.C., five brothers, Gerhard of Saskatoon, Sask., Henry of Kelowna, B.C., Abe of Tofield, Neil of Sundre, John of Edmonton; and a stepbrother, Ben Petenon of Wetaskiwin. He was predeceased by his mother in 1973, his father in 1964, and a brother, Peter in 1944.

Funeral services were held Sept. 11th from the Tofield Mennonite Church with Rev. John Unrau officiating. Interment was in the Tofield cemetery.

Mrs. Jim Roddick

The annual weiner roast, formerly sponsored by the Community Club or Community League in the past, is this year being taken care of by the Teen Groups. It will be held at the Clifford Horricks farm on Friday evening at 8.30 p.m.

Phyllis Davenport and chum, Diane, spent the weekend at the Davenport home, also taking in the harvest dance.

The harvest dance held on Saturday was a most successful affair under the convenorship of Margaret Jenke. The hall was decorated in a fall decor complete with sheaves of grain and ducks of every type in flight.

Supper was served at 11 p.m. The Western Travellers headed by Norman Pearce provided the music and played to a capacity crowd.

Saturday evening is bingo night at the Craft Centre sponsored by the senior citizens and arts and crafts groups.

It begins at 8.30 and lunch will be served. The quilt that the Thursday group made and have been selling tickets on will be raffled.

Carol George of Calgary spent the weekend with her grandmother, George, Edna and Gloria Ferguson and Dolly Roddick.

Gladys Swabey is home again after a months stay in Tofield Hospital.

The September meeting of the Community League was held on Wednesday evening. Plans had been completed for the harvest dance, and plans made for a masquerade dance for October 30th. Prizes are being awarded for the different categories of dress. Some plans were discussed for preparation of the local skating rink.

The September Ladies Club meeting was held on Wednesday afternoon at the hall.

Plans were made for a variety bingo to be held on Oct. 22nd with Margaret Paterson and Barbara Horricks as convenors.

Mrs. A. Ferguson was once again chosen as convenor for the annual banner to be held on November 5th. Vouchers from Woodwards stores will be raffled.

Mrs. Ferguson enjoyed a September birthday and received a box of chocolates and a birthday card. Roll call was answered by garden problems.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Sarah Klemschrock and Dolly Roddick. Roll call for October will be a prized possession.

Commence services will be conducted by supervising pastor, Rev. George Rodgers of Sherwood Park, on Sunday at the United Church.

Mrs. Fred Montelier and daughter, Marion, and Mrs. Marthe Lauber of Tofield, were Thursday afternoon guests of Mrs. E. George. They also visited at the Craft Centre to see the Thursday group at work.

Arthur Gerhard Pedersen passed away peacefully at his home in Ryley at the age of 61 yrs.

He leaves to mourn his passing, his wife, Faye; one son, Larry, one step-daughter, Myrna Landrie of Calgary, and one grandson, Cory, also three sisters and three brothers.

Six of his nephews were pallbearers. Funeral services were held at the Bethel Lutheran Church in Ryley. Pastor Dave Larsen of Viking officiated. Hoveland Funeral Home of Camrose was in charge of all arrangements.

Doris Gardinski was most fortunate to have friends from Tofield help her get her potatoes up and into the cellar before the rain.

Mrs. Marie Richardson and daughter of Billings, Montana, drove to Ryley district to spend a few days with Marie's uncle, Serge Helgeland and family. They also got to see some of their other relatives before returning back to Billings.

Elenor Solberg is attending U of A in Edmonton this year and Craig Solberg is attending Camrose Lutheran College.

Audrey Knudsllen will be holding a shower at her home for Cheryl Pollock on Friday evening.

Larry and Mary Ann Kuzmiruk and their children Charlene and Tanya of Winnipeg were here to visit Bill and Mary Onda. They flew in their Grumman Tiger Aeroplane. Mary and Bill Onda flew with Ann to Calgary for a day. Larry and Barbra Onda, Tod and Dawn, John and Norma Onda. Tony and three new grandsons Michael were down for the week and all had a very nice time with their friends.

Mrs. Dagny Jolaas, Mrs. Emma Rail, and Ezra and Lena Rail and granddaughter Leanne Rail were guests with Harold and Clara Vergette on Tuesday evening.

Culture grant aids Overture Concerts

The Camrose Overture Series has been awarded a grant of $2,700 by the Alberta Government Department of Culture. The Hon. Horst Schmid, Minister of Culture, commended the Camrose group for the "high calibre" of the performing arts series it has been sponsoring in Camrose.

The grant will help bring to Camrose Audiences another season of concerts which the committee expects will prove outstanding, so that continued enthusiastic interest is expected from the public. Indeed, one member of the planning committee expressed the feeling it will be perhaps the most outstanding series ever brought to the Camrose district.

Also remarkable is the fact that ticket prices will remain at the same modest level maintained two years ago, when the first increase in nearly twenty years was established. The Series works on the pre-sold audience concept, with membership entitling members to attend every concert in the season. On this basis, budgets can be worked out in advance, and concerts booked with security. At the same time, it enables reductions in ticket prices, since there is no need to make a profit on some concerts to cover possible losses on others.

The Edmonton Symphony Orchestra will again open this year's season on October 15 at 8:15 p.m. This and all other concerts will take place in the Convocation Center of Camrose Lutheran College.

The second concert of the series will feature the Canadian Opera Company in a full production of Verdi's celebrated masterpiece La Traviata. The reading scenes will be performed in the original Italian, members of the Overture Series will be supplied with a summary of the plot of La Traviata.

On December 9 the Series resumes with duo-pianists Ivo and Dorigny, who will close the first segment of the 1976-77 season.

The executive of the Series have been unable to schedule a suitable concert in January but will continue to attempt to do so. Storyteller Phillip Hannon, who translated his Camrose audience last year with his rendition of A Christmas Carol, will return to Camrose on February 10 with a program of excerpts from the plays of Shakespeare. The Mac Frampton Jazz Trioastvirote will join the series on March 8. On March 30 the Pacific Lutheran University Choir will provide an evening of Slavonic cultural entertainment and the Series closes on April 5 with the renowned Canadian Brass in performance.

SEPTIC TANK WARNING!

WATCH THOSE FUMES

If you live on a farm, acreage, in a rural municipality. If you live part of the year in a summer cottage. If you rely on a septic tank as part of your sewage system and are planning to clean it before winter sets in, a strong word of 'caution'. Deadly gases are present in a septic tank!

TAKE NO CHANCES!

Ideally, you can contract a commercial septic tank cleaning company in your area who has the necessary safety equipment and qualified experienced staff to do the job.

However should you decide to do the job yourself consider

- Checking with a safety supply firm for the renting of equipment and the information for the proper use.
- Should you decide to improvise with your own equipment and do your own cleaning, you should be extremely careful about spillage and about thoroughly cleansing and sanitizing your body, your clothing and your equipment afterwards.

REMEMBER, YOU ARE DEALING WITH VERY TOXIC, DEADLY MIXTURES OF CHEMICALS AND GASES . . . THIS IS MOST IMPORTANT!

- Never enter a septic tank unless it has been opened for at least 12 hours after being pumped out!
- Even then, it is strongly advisable to take safety measures and wear a gas mask!

Bloodsuckers are a concern

The regular meeting of the Beaver Regional Recreation and Parks Board was held on August 25 with Dennis Cooper in the chair.

The Board was told that bloodsuckers were causing a problem at Sauerwild Lake as they were killing ducks and other birds. A report on the problem is expected from Wildlife. In the meantime, no swimming was to be allowed in the lake.

Members discussed briefly, various methods for keeping motor boats from entering the swimming area at Camp Lake.

Reports on agreement, regulations have not been discussed by local councils. A special meeting was held on Wednesday (yesterday) by Governing Authorities to examine administration.

Other routine business matters were handled.

Information for this news item was taken from the unapproved minutes of the Board's meeting.

Hail report

A small storm developed south-east of Sandre on Tuesday, September 7th and produced pea and shot hail near Cremona and Dogwood.

A hail-type cloud can develop very quickly; within an hour. We must be ready to need when hail clouds develop.

Our Meteorologist prepares a forecast each day so that the controller may alert pilots and others to have the necessary equipment in readiness to need.

We use a radiosonde which is merely a small radio transmitter carried aloft by a balloon and is capable of transmitting from the ground to 45,000 feet such meteorological data as temperature, relative humidity, pressure and wind speeds. We obtain the foregoing information from three fixed stations at Red Deer, Calgary and Rocky Mountain House. We also have a mobile radiosonde which we direct into storm paths to obtain air mass data on the storm as it approaches and passes overhead. The information from the mobile radiosonde is used to improve the forecast and our knowledge of how thunderstorms produce hail.

The forecast is prepared from the radiosonde information and similar information of surface and upper air masses across the continent and the Pacific Ocean, received from the Canadian Meteorological Centre in Montreal and the U.S. Weather Bureau in Washington.

The vertical temperature and moisture are key factors in preparing the forecast. When the air is hot and moist at the surface and cool aloft the hot moist air rises and creates updrafts capable of producing hailstones. All of the information, that is, temperature, relative humidity, pressure and windspeeds are fed into our computer each morning to develop a cloud model to assist our Meteorologist with the forecast.

Graduates . . .

Barry Wiens was the pianist for the processional of the grads and for the singing of "O Canada". The invocation was given by Rev. John Schmidt.

Bob Garneau, recalling the Sneve-e-chee by which this class had raised $2000 for UNICEF and the trip to Jamaica which he and four of the grads had taken a year ago, said the class of '76 would always be special to him. He regarded them as sensitive, humanistic students for whom he wished the best possible future.

Ronald Koop, in giving the salutatorian address, said that the grads were prepared to enter society as useful, open-minded citizens, able to accept other people even though they held different opinions.

One goal - graduation - had been reached; other goals were now in view. He encouraged the grade eleven students to follow the prom theme "Take it to the Limit"

Harry Wilkie, Tofield representative to the School Committee made the Committee's traditional gift to the school. This was "The Pool", a picture by Tom Thomson, the most famous of the Canadian "Group of Seven."

Dwayne Tiede, on behalf of the grads, called on Al Pollock, to accept it on behalf of the school. In accepting the picture, Mr. Pollock reminded the grads that work was not just a necessary evil, not just drudgery, but a thing of value for the satisfaction it brings to the doer when he cares about the product he delivers. He, too, spoke of how the graduating class was already missed in school, and wished them the best in the future.

Debbie Walker, the valedictorian for the class of '76, recalled memories of happenings in elementary and junior high grades, saying that all previous experiences had helped to train the graduates in co-operation, initiative, perseverance, and belief in themselves.

She said how pleased she was to see the familiar faces in the audience of the bus drivers, teachers, neighbors, and friends. She was particularly pleased to see Mr. Lyslo, the guest speaker, and former French teacher in Tofield.

Although this might well be the last time the class of '76 was together, Debbie hoped that they would be able to keep in touch with each other even though they had now entered the world of experience "where margin fades forever and forever" as the group moves on with optimism and courage.

Bob Garneau then presented the grade 12 awards to the students as several had been unable to attend Awards Day at the school.

Debbie Walker was the winner of the award for the highest marks in Grade 12. Runners up were Charlene Good and Michael Warner.

The award for the highest average in the three years of High School was also won by Debbie Walker, followed by Charlene Good and Michael Warner. G. R. Garneau donated the award.

Miss Elaine Zimmerman announced the winner of the humanist award for the greatest contribution to the school. To Francis Damberger, the winner, Mrs. Dorothy Clark presented the plaque and book donated by the United Church Women. Runners-up for the humanist award were Wendy MacNutt and Debbie Williams.

The student -of-the-Year Award, donated by the Tofield Students' Union was also won by Francis Damberger on the basis of his contribution to the academic humanistic and athletic fields of school life. Runners-up were Dwayne Tiede and Debbie Walker.

The Alberta Teachers' Association award for the Grade 12 final examinations was presented on Thursday, Sept. 16, 1976 and to Debbie Walker by Bob Garneau, president of the ATA sublocal in Tofield.

Robert Lyslo, guest speaker for the evening, in his inimitable manner, recalled several amusing anecdotes from his days in the Tofield School.

He felt that, considering the difficulties and pressures to be faced by the grads, advice was difficult to give. Nevertheless, he urged them to strive for goals beyond the materialistic, to reach for the quality of life, rather quantities of possessions. He wished them every success as they pursued their various careers. He played a tape-recorded version of the theme song, "Morning Has Broken."

Mr. Pollock thanked Mrs. Phillips and Mr. Langpit for their contributions to the graduation activities. He, assisted by Karen Jacobsen, president of the T.S.U., and J.C. Lmpitt, vice-principal gave out graduation pins and diplomas, and read a message of congratulations from R. K. Taylor who is teaching in Australia.

VOL. 68—No. 6 Thursday, Sept. 23, 1976 PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT TOFIELD, ALBERTA

Mercury second

Advertising manager for The Mercury, Dan Barr was delighted last Friday to accept a certificate won by The Mercury for second best editorial page in its class in the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association Chairman of the competitions commitee, Oliver Holdge, right, of Bow Island presented the certificate in Mr. Barr, among nine papers competing in the circulation grouping between 1,500 and 3,000 circulations.

Mercury places in competitions

For the second time in recent weeks, The Mercury's efforts to show improvement have been rewarded.

And for only the second time in its history, The Mercury has received an award from the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association.

During the latter part of last week, weekly newspaper editors from all over Alberta met in Edmonton for the AWNA's annual convention.

During this convention, competitions are held and the winners announced.

The Mercury was awarded second place in "Best Editorial Page" competition for newspapers having a circulation of 1,500 - 2,500 subscribers.

This was The Mercury's best-ever showing in a provincial competition and follows on the heels of a second place finish by the paper in a national competition for "Best Front Page" for papers between 1,500 - 2,499 subscribers.

The showing in the provincial level was the paper's best showing, as the previous best, was only the second time the paper had been a winner.

Back in 1969, The Mercury placed third in competition for "Best Front Page" for newspapers in the 1,000 - 2,000 circulation category.

In the 1969 competitions, The Mercury had a circulation of 1,400 subscribers. At the present time, the paper's circulation has passed the 1,800 figure, and is still growing.

Next year (1977) will be an important year in the history of the paper, as it will be celebrating its 60th anniversary.

Tofield loses out in football match

Beaver Football club of Tofield has been accepted into the Whitland Football League, and had their first-ever game on Saturday.

Other teams in the league are Wainwright, Sedgewick, Vermilion, Lloydminster, and Grande Centre. This is a nine-man high school football league for all teams except Tofield, who is fielding a community team composed of registered junior and senior high school players.

While the local club has received good response from the community for financial assistance, more money is still needed, and fund raising projects are being planned.

The first such project will be a slave auction planned for Saturday, October 9th. A time and place for the sale will be announced shortly.

Tofield played its first game on Saturday, and made an excellent showing before their home fans before losing 13-8 to Grande Centre. At one point in the game, Tofield had an 8-6 lead, but, finally fell before more experienced opponents.

Tofield stars in the game were Barry Jones and Doug Nachtigal while Grande Centre's stars were Brad Belcourt and Paul Graham.

The next home game is scheduled for Saturday with Vermilion coming to town to supply the opposition. Game time has been set for two o'clock.

Following is the balance of the schedule for the Tofield team:

Sept. 25: Vermilion at Tofield
Oct. 2: Tofield at Lloydminster
Oct. 6: Wainwright at Tofield
Oct. 15: Sedgewick at Tofield
Oct. 16: Tofield at Wainwright
Oct. 23: Tofield at Sedgewick.

Lions arranging community calendar

Al Pollock, who is this year's Community Calendar chairman, has announced that the Tofield Lion's Club will be canvassing the Town of Tofield between now and the end of the month in an effort to sell the 1977 Community Calendar.

Last year, approximately 275 calendars were sold, but, this year, the total is expected to rise to 400 since rural residents will be able to place orders at MacLeods, Super A, and Dykeman's Confectionery.

Gabe Pittet and Ed Pammerts are in charge of soliciting advertisements from local merchants, and Ed Regehr will be contacting community organizations who may want their meeting dates set out in the calendar.

Curt Hasling is in charge of obtaining a photograph for the front of the calendar which, this year, will appear in full color.

Anyone who is missed during the canvass is urged to contact a member of the Lions Club so that their family can be included in this year's calendar.

PTA sets 1st meet

By Doris Brown

The Tofield Parent-Teacher Association will meet on Tuesday at 8 p.m., in the Tofield School Library.

This will be the first meeting of the PTA during the 1976-77 school term, and all interested persons are urged to attend.

A video-taped film "The Three R's" will be shown. This is the very controversial, education film that was shown on the W-5 television program last winter and again recently.

Following the showing of the film, group discussions will be held with everyone having the opportunity to voice their opinion.

A suggestion box will be made available for suggestions and ideas for future meetings.

New dress for The Mercury

Readers hardly have to be told this week's issue of The Mercury comes with a far bigger and far more readable typeface. Nobody who has become accustomed to the tiny wee type we've used for some time could possibly miss the change.

We at The Mercury weren't happy with the size of the type, either, and you might wonder why we'd stay with it. It sounds hard to believe, but it took literally months of effort to track down and then obtain this new type face, and make it compatible with our machinery.

In the process, we managed to add some other new typefaces, also, to provide one of the most varied and most complete ranges available. This includes a new group of types for headings, with all the complexities that can introduce. Added to modern computers, the possibilities seem endless, but so do the opportunities for error.

So when we can figure out what it is we're trying to do, and work that out with the computer, we'll continue to improve your favorite newspaper.

Now-if only somebody could teach that computer how to hyphenate the English language . . . .

Graduates . . .

Barry Wrenn was the pianist for the processional of the grads and for the singing of "O Canada". The invocation was given by Rev. John Hannah.

Bob Garneau, recalling the Sixty-six then by which this class had raised $,000 for UNICEF and the trip to Jamaica which he and four of the grads had taken a year ago, said the class of '76 would always be special to him. He regarded them as inventive, fantastic students for whom he wished the best possible future.

Ronald Koop, in giving the salutatorian address, said that the grads were prepared to enter society as useful, open-minded citizens, able to accept other people even though they held different opinions.

One goal graduation had been reached, other goals were now in view. He encouraged the grads eleven students to follow the prom theme "Take it to the Limit".

Harry Wilkie, Tofield's representative to the School Committee made the Commerce's traditional gift to the school. This was "The Pool", a picture by Tom Thomson, the most famous of the Canadian "Group of Seven."

Dwayne Tiede, on behalf of the grads, called on Al Pollock, to accept it on behalf of the school. In accepting the picture, Mr. Pollock reminded the grads that work was not just a necessary evil, not just drudgery, but a thing of value for the satisfaction it brings to the doer when he cares about the product he delivers. He, too, spoke of how the graduating class was already massed as school, and wished them the best in the future.

Debbie Walker, the valedictorian for the class of '76, recalled memories of happenings in elementary and junior high grades, saying that all previous experiences helped to train the graduates in co-operation, initiative, perseverance, and belief in themselves.

She said how pleased she was to see the familiar faces in the audience of the bus drivers, teachers, neighbors, and friends. She was particularly pleased to see Mr. Lyzio, the guest speaker, and former French teacher in Tofield.

Although this night will be the last time the class of '76 was together, Debbie hoped that they would be able to keep in touch with each other even though they had now entered the world of experience "whose margin fades forever and forever" as the group moves on with optimism and courage.

Bob Garneau then presented the grade 12 awards to the students as several had been unable to attend Awards Day at the school.

Debbie Walker was the winner of the award for the highest marks in Grade 12. Runners up were Charlene Good and Michael Warson.

The award for the highest average in the three years of High School was also won by Debbie Walker, followed by Charlene Good and Michael Warson. G E Garneau donated the award.

Miss Elaine Zimmerman announced the winner of the heimaat award for the greatest contribution to the school. To France Dansberger, the winner, Mrs. Dorothy Clark presented the plaque and book donated by the United Church Women. Runners-up for the heimaat award were Wendy MacNutt and Debbie Walker.

The student -of-the-Year Award, donated by the Tofield Students' Union was also won by Francis Dansberger on the basis of his contribution to the academic humanistic and athletic fields of school life. Runners-up were Dwayne Tiede and Debbie Walker.

The Alberta Teachers' Association award for the Grade 12 final examinations was presented to Debbie Walker by Bob Garneau, president of the ATA subunit in Tofield.

Robert Lyzio, guest speaker for the evening, in his inimitable manner, recalled several amusing anecdotes from his days in the Tofield School.

He felt that, considering the difficulties and pressures to be faced by the grads, advice was difficult to give. Nevertheless, he urged them to strive for goals beyond the materialistic, to reach for the quality of life, rather quantities of possessions. He wished them every success as they pursued their various careers. He played a tape-recorded version of the theme song, "Morning Has Broken."

Mr Pollock thanked Mrs. Phillips and Mr Lamplit for their contributions to the graduation activities. He, assisted by Karen Jacobsen, president of the T.S.U., and J.C. Lamplit, vice-principal gave out graduation pins and diplomas, and read a message of congratulations from R. K. Taylor who is teaching in Australia.

Mercury second

Advertising manager for The Mercury, Dan Barr was delighted last Friday to accept a certificate won by The Mercury for second best editorial page in its class in the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association. Chairman of the competitions committee, Oliver Hidlige, right, of Bow Island presented the certificate to Mr. Barr, among nine papers competing in the circulation grouping between 1,500 and 3,000 circulations.

Tofield loses out in football match

Beaver Football club of Tofield has been accepted into the Whitland Football League, and had their first-ever game on Saturday.

Other teams in the league are Wainwright, Sedgewick, Vermilion, Lloydminster, and Grande Centre. This is a nine-man high school football league for all teams except Tofield, who is fielding a community team composed of registered junior and senior high school players.

While the local club has received good response from the community for financial assistance, more money is still needed, and fund raising projects are being planned.

The first such project will be a slave auction planned for Saturday, October 9th. A time and place for the sale will be announced shortly.

Tofield played its first game on Saturday, and made an excellent showing before their home fans before losing 12-6 to Grande Centre. At one point in the game, Tofield had an 8-6 lead, but, finally fell before more experienced opponents.

Tofield stars in the game were Barry Jones and Doug Nachtigal while Grande Centre's stars were Brad Belcourt and Paul Graham.

The next home game is scheduled for Saturday with Vermilion coming to town to supply the opposition. Game time has been set for two o'clock.

Following is the balance of the schedule for the Tofield Beavers:

Sept. 25: Vermilion at Tofield

Oct. 2: Tofield at Lloydminster

Oct. 6: Wainwright at Tofield

Oct. 13: Sedgewick at Tofield

Oct. 16: Tofield at Wainwright

Oct. 23: Tofield at Sedgewick.

Lions arranging community calendar

Al Pollock, who is this year's Community Calendar chairman, has announced that the Tofield Lion's Club will be canvassing the Town of Tofield between now and the end of the month in an effort to sell the 1977 Community Calendar.

Last year, approximately 375 calendars were sold, but, this year, the total is expected to rise to 400 since rural residents will be able to place orders at MacLeods, Super A, and Dykeman's Confectionery.

Gabe Pitlet and Ed Panmerts are in charge of soliciting advertisements from local merchants, and Ed Regular will be contacting community organizations who may want their meeting dates set out in the calendar.

Curt Hasting is in charge of obtaining a photograph for the front of the calendar which, this year, will appear in full colour.

Anyone who is missed during the canvass is urged to contact a member of the Lions Club so that their family can be included in this year's calendar.

Mercury places in competitions

For the second time in recent weeks, The Mercury's efforts to show improvement have been rewarded.

And for only the second time in its history, The Mercury has received an award from the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association.

During the latter part of last week, weekly newspaper editors from all over Alberta met in Edmonton for the AWNA's annual convention.

During this convention, competitions are held and the winners announced.

The Mercury was awarded second place in "Best Editorial Page" competition for newspapers having a circulation of 1,500 - 3,000 subscribers.

This was The Mercury's best-ever showing in a provincial competition and follows on the heels of a second place finish by the paper in a national competition for "Best Front Page" for papers between 1,500 - 3,000 subscribers.

The showing in the provincial level was the paper's best showing, as the previous best was only the second time the paper had been a winner.

Back in 1969, The Mercury placed third in competition for "Best Front Page" for newspapers in the 1,000 - 2,000 circulation category.

In the 1969 competitions, The Mercury had a circulation of 1,400 subscribers. At the present time, the paper's circulation has passed the 1,800 figure, and is still growing.

Next year (1977) will be an important year in the history of the paper, as it will be celebrating its 80th anniversary.

PTA sets 1st meet

By Doris Brown

The Tofield Parent-Teacher Association will meet on Tuesday at 8 p.m., in the Tofield School Library.

This will be the first meeting of the PTA during the 1976-77 school term, and all interested persons are urged to attend.

A video-taped film "The Three R's" will be shown. This is the very controversial, education film that was shown on the W-5 television program last winter and again recently.

Following the showing of the film, group discussions will be held with everyone having the opportunity to voice their opinions.

A suggestion box will be made available for suggestions and ideas for future meetings.

Winning votes

Joe Clark doesn't always win votes with every thing he says or does, and some things must lose almost as much as they gain, if not more.

But one thing likely to have gained him a good deal of support in most quarters was his recent comment when visiting Canada's NATO forces in Lahr, Germany, that the moment he was elected Prime Minister would be the moment he would move to improve the lot of Canada's armed forces, from a money and materiel point of view.

Thousands of Canadians have watched with dismay over the several years that Trudeau has been in power as he slowly but symstematically chopped and slashed at the base of the military, pausing only when the European nations in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization complained that Canada was failing behind in its commitments, and could no longer be taken seriously.

That and several other experiences in the same vein have been embarassing to many Canadians, and they would be delighted to hear Joe Clark declare himself so forthrightly, especially since he was in front of the troops. It might be supposed this would be the special reason for making the announcement at this time, and it would not really be generally noticed by other Canadians. But let it not be overlooked that the military has a long memory, and if he were given the opportunity, as the head of the Canadian government, and failed to live up to it, there would be no mistaking the general protest and outrage which would follow.

Outpricing the market

We were dismayed over last weekend to hear one of the senior members of a leading business organization in this country point specifically to how Canadian workers are pricing themselves out of jobs.

The specific reference at hand was that of a major Calgary industrial firm which recently made the decision to establish a huge new expansion branchplant in the southern United States.

Not because so much of their market has moved to the southern states, although some of it has. Not because material is so much easier to obtain there. Not because manufacturing their product is so much easier there.

None of those. But entirely because it's so much cheaper. Not only are wages much lower, but the productivity per worker is much higher. And the one doubles the effect of the other.

The really upsetting factor involved is the realization of what will happen whenever there is a slowdown in market. The parent Canadian plant will obviously be the first unit to shut down, partially, of course, because, being an older plant, it will not be quite as functional as the newer one

But far more important will be the cost factor. And while it's lovely now to have the high wages, and the excellent standard of living, it's much harder learning to cut back.

Historically, Canada has often been protected longer from the effects of recession hitting the States, but it seems to be felt worse here, and takes longer to get the economy moving again. Pricing ourselves out of the market has to be one of the worst ways of lifting ourselves up by our bootstraps.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint

Canadian comment

OTTAWA — (CP) — In 1969 the Trudeau Government brought in a series of Parliamentary reforms, designed to speed up the legislative process and handle national business more efficiently.

We're still hearing complaints about those reforms, and charges that Parliament has been emasculated by them. But cabinet still claims it takes too long to get legislation through the system. During the marathon session of Parliament which began Sept. 30, 1974, and will end this fall, just before the new session begins, 102 of the 119 government bills introduced have been passed by both the Commons and the Senate, but there was little organization or predictable time-table management about those two years of operation.

John Reid, the young liberal MP from Kenora-Rainy River, has been chairing a subcommittee of the Procedural and Organization Committee, and has been trying to package yet another Parliamentary reform. His ideas show considerable promise because he attacked the task - aiming at creating order without lowering the amount of work MPs accomplish, and without destroying the philosophy behind the Parliamentary system.

For openers Reid would like to see Parliament operate for a fixed 150 sitting days per year, ending the dragging out of sessions which has become the rule rather than the exception.

Reid would also have the House of Commons not sit every sixth week, so that MPs would be able to visit their constituencies and catch up with committee work. His dilemma will be coming up with additional new rules which will keep both government and opposition happy.

Prime Minister Trudeau's view of democracy is a government responsible to the people "from time to time" - in other words, a cabinet free to do as it pleases between elections.

That's not the way the Parliamentary system works. Opposition parties must have the right to hold up legislation which they consider bad until public opinion has a chance to crystallize. Bad legislation should be either defeated because public opposition has become apparent, or amended to effect compromises.

Mr. Trudeau is not one who likes to compromise, and he may prove to be the toughest hurdle for Mr. Reid in his search for Parliamentary reform.

Tofield, Alta.

Gentlemen:

Now that the Town of Tofield has a fire alarm on the fire hall, and the expense will be covered by our taxes, it would be terrific if the bell could be activated at 9:00 p.m. daily as a service to parents with school children. Here's hoping . . .

BOUQUET TO COACH

Dear Sir;

I have just come from Tofield's first community football game, and I must say I was greatly impressed.

I take my hat off to Larry Watson, head coach of the team, for having the desire and drive in the formation of the team.

Our town needs people like Larry who will stick with an idea and see to it that it is carried out to the end.

From watching the game, you can tell the boys are eager, and tackle football was needed in this community.

As a parent and an interested spectator I was proud of what took place and if the community and other parents want their boys to be interested in more than driving the streets, I suggest you come out and see the team in action.

Yours truly
A fan of the Beaver Football team.

Lakeshore-McKenzie

Mrs. Ellen Eaton

Ron and Gail MacAdam of the McKenzie District are receiving congratulations from their relatives and friends on the birth of their baby daughter, Michele Gail, on September 13 at the Royal Alex. Hospital. Gail and baby returned to their home on the weekend.

Visiting at the home of Arnold and Deanna Nelson and family on Sept. 11, and 12th were Deanna's uncle Pete and Vivian Blanchette of Maidstone, Sask.

Howard and Mae Ferguson and their daughter, Doris and Howard Brown and family, attended the Arabian Horse Show in Edmonton on Sept. 10th.

Barry Goodair of Lloydminster, Sask., was a guest on Friday and Saturday at the home of his sister, Deanna and Arnold Nelson. He also visited his sister, Gail and Ron MacAdam, and made the acquaintance of her new niece Michele Gail, before returning home.

Friday visitors at the home of Rod and Isabel Rudecki were Isabel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kyle of Camrose.

On Sept. 16th some fifteen ladies, mostly from this district or who at one time resided here, met at the home of Mrs. Lillian Fairholme in Tofield in a combined birthday celebration to celebrate the birthdays of Lillian, Isabel Rudecki and Barbara Gengleen. Although their birthdays fall on separate days, their friends decided on one day to celebrate all at one time, because of the harvesting.

A muffin and coffee party and sale will be held at the home of Mrs. Vi Goeglien in Tofield on Tuesday morning from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., sponsored by the Lakeshore UCW.

Nelson Ferguson and his friend, Ken-Al Olson, both of Edmonton, spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of Nelson's parents, Howard and Mae Ferguson

Howard and Mae Ferguson were Monday forenoon visitors at the home of Howard's sister, Mickey and Charlie Niemetz.

Mrs. Ellen Eaton attended the wedding of her great-niece, Bonnie Raitray, to Charles Babineau at the United Church in Vegreville on Saturday afternoon, and later the reception in the Lavoy Community Hall, followed by a dance in the evening. After the dance, Ellen went home with her niece, Grace and Floyd Hubbard, for the night and until after dinner on Sunday. Floyd and Grace's son and his wife, Dan and Dell Hubbard of Red Deer (who were also overnight guests there), brought Ellen home on Sunday on their way back to Red Deer.

Hastings Lake

Lynn Gates

The Ladies' Group met on Thursday at the home of Mrs. H. Simpson. Plans for the annual turkey supper, to be held on October 16, were finalized at that time. The next meeting will be held on Oct. 21 at L. Tiedemann's.

Mrs. Edith Saire has had her sister, Mrs. Ellen Hammond of Leamington, Ontario, as a recent guest. Mrs. Hammond spent much of the two week visit travelling to several towns where she taught school in past years.

Registrations are still being taken for yoga classes beginning in October. For further information, please phone D. Muir at 662-3743.

RYLEY COUPLE CELEBRATED 50th WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

On Sunday the day was beautiful and the guests/ones coming on the train suited the occasion as Ben and Ruth Jacobson's 50th anniversary was celebrated in the Ryley Community Hall. Seated at the table with the honoured couple were Ruth's mother, Ben's two sisters, a niece and Mrs. Shultz, a sister-in-law of Ruth's.

A lovely three-tiered wedding cake and a Norwegian wedding cake "Kranse Kaka"

Ruth's brother, Sherty Shultz, acted as emcee for the event. The daughters of Bob and Edna Hammer sang a number accompanied by their eldest brother on the accordion.

Martha Lillo, Berghild Sundie and Arnold Bugge played a couple of old-time pieces on the accordion, guitar and violin. Four ladies sang a number of old songs, accompanied by Janet Johnson on the piano.

Mr. Batiuk, M.L.A. congratulated the couple and he as well as emcee read greetings to the couple from Don Mazankowski, M.P., Pierre Trudeau, Premier Lougheed, Lt. Governor Ralph Steinhauer, and Joe Clark.

Mrs. Ethel Pepper congratulated the couple and read a lovely poem. Ethel, along with Mrs. Marvin Jacobson presented Ben and Ruth with the gifts.

The wedding cake was made by Mrs. Helen Jacobson and the "Kranse Kaka" was made by a niece.

Ruth and Ben gave a warm thank-you to all who attended and made the day just perfect for them.

Curtis Penner was celebrating his birthday that day so everyone sang happy birthday with Janet Johnson at the piano. Ladies served a most delicious lunch and after visiting for some time everyone congratulated the couple before leaving.

Young and old alike are truly enjoying the opening of the indoor swimming pool.

Albert and Gladys Lysle of B.C. are visiting relatives in Tofield and Ryley Districts. They visited with Albert's brother, Pete, in Kilkam Nursing Home on Monday.

Susan Kasl is a patient in the Tofield Hospital.

Nick Kushnir is also a patient in the hospital.

Mrs. Nancy James visited her daughter Sharon and family at Devon recently.

A well known senior citizen, Frank Kertzman, passed away, Sept. 16 in the Tofield Hospital at the age of 87 years. He is survived by his wife, Florence, two sons and two daughters; one brother of Prince George, B.C.; eight grand-children; and twelve great-grand-children.

Funeral services were held in the Tofield United Church on Sept. 18. Interment was in the Tofield cemetery. Haveland Funeral Home of Camrose was in charge of arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Boerg of B.C., were recent visitors with Elmer Andersen, and other friends.

Lawrence and Anne Andersen and son, Jeffery of Calgary, spent a couple of days with Lawrence's folks, and calling on other relatives.

Eileen Owen of Edmonton spent the weekend with her mother and dad and Keith.

A lovely shower was held on Friday evening at the George Knudsion residence for Cheryl Pollock of Edmonton whose marriage to Kevin McLean will take place in Edmonton on Sept. 25.

Thirty ladies attended. Cheryl Pollock is the eldest daughter of George and Jeanne Pollock of Edmonton. Everyone joined in singing "For she's a jolly good fellow".

Seated with Cheryl were Carol Lyals, Roxanne Pollock, Joan Jones, and Annette Short. Annette took care of the listing of gifts and Cheryl, Carol and Roxanne opened them. A couple of games were played with Ellen Sutton in charge. Mrs. Elvera Reti read a couple of poems suitable for the occasion. Gifts were passed around for everyone to see and lunch was served.

CLBI opens 45th year

Six Ambassador Teams of the Canadian Lutheran Bible Institute travelled extensively over the summer months in Bible Camps, Deeper Life Conferences and congregational ministries, reaching points east to New Brunswick, west to Vancouver, north to Yellowknife and south to Chicago, concluding on August 27th. The faculty has returned from summer studies. Pastor Blumenster at Regent College, Vancouver. Pastor Haveland at Winston College, Wheaton, Ill., Miss Lindstrom from summer ministries in Western Canada.

As part of the preparation for the new school year which opened yesterday the faculty participated in a Study Conference of the Fellowship of Lutheran Bible Institutes, along with sister schools in Los Angeles, Seattle, Hawaii, Omaha and Mission, held in Seattle, August 31 - September 3rd.

There is again a good registration of students for the new school year, and an excellent attendance of at least ninety students, reports President Arnold Hagen. Included among the registrants are three students from Australia, Janus and Norway, in addition to students from Canada and also the United States, which will give the school again an international character. Registration of students started Tuesday, September 7th, beginning at 9:00 a.m., and the Orientation of students was held today.

The opening service took place in the school auditorium last evening, when Pastor Vernon Raaflaub, a member of Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod was installed by Board Chairman, Dr. G. Loken of Calgary. Five students who are entering the service of three Lutheran Synods as parish workers and visitors were sent on their way in a Service of Commendation and Blessing. The message for the occasion was brought by Dr. George Rode, president of the Alberta - B.C. District of Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod, and President Arnold Hagen shared information on the ministry and challenges of the school.

Maple Leaf -- Forever

Orchids held by Queen's University technician - researcher J.C. "Jack" Webb and maple leaf used in Gulf Oil Canada television commercial (inset photo, top right) appear just as they were when picked because of a plant preservation process he developed. Currently being licensed by the university for preparation of leaves and flowers for educational and museum teaching and display purposes, the preservative solution will soon be marked for use by amateur gardeners, florists and the worldwide artificial flower industry. In the Gulf Canada commercial, the cutting of a maple leaf symbolized the gradual decline in Canada's reserves of crude oil and natural gas, and the need for additional exploration and development of new reserves -- represented later in the commercial by a fresh green leaf.

Holden and district new items

Mrs G H Taylor

Robert Tiedemann and a friend from Edmonton spent a few days last week visiting with his parents, Mr and Mrs Henry Tiedemann. The boys and Henry put in a few days at the lake, fishing.

A former resident of Holden, Mrs Ronda Black of Vancouver B.C., with her brother and his wife, Mr and Mrs MacPherson of Edmonton, were surprise visitors last Thursday afternoon calling on a few old friends Mrs Black was the former Bissells MacPherson who resided for several years in Bissells with her parents and family, when her father, Rev MacPherson, was minister of the United Church, and she taught at the Holden School for about eight years.

Mrs Adolph Lussier returned home Sunday from a two-week holiday tour visiting at various points in California.

Holden Lodge O.O.R.P held their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening, after a two-month recess. W.R.L. Kathleen Hurum chaired the meeting. An interesting and instructive circular letter was read from the new Supreme, H.R.L., Maxine McColgan of Kamloops, B.C. and a thank-you letter from the retiring secretary-treasurer L. Hought was read. An informative letter was received from the new Sup. secretary-treasurer, L. Worthington, enclosing circular letters re the Supreme Convention held in July in Edmonton, with other instructions and information. A letter from Dist. Dep. L. Overbo of Kinsella was received, offering her assistance at all times and advising she would like to make her official visit to the Lodge in October if convenient, also we were to take the travelling gavel to Irma. A letter from Holden School advising that Darlene Shavchook was eligible to receive the Lodge's annual scholarship award for 1976 presented to the pupil with the highest marks in Grade 12.

The trustees presented their budget for 1976-77 and a report of Lodge properties with their value. Other reports given were of Decoration Day, Float in the Sports' Day parade, Sports' Day booth, and the Sept. Chamber of Commerce supper, also a child had been sponsored to Camp Lake during the summer. It was decided to entertain other lodges in the district at the October meeting. Trustee L. Brokstad advises that we had 34 cups and ten large plates we did not use and it was decided to donate these to the hall kitchen. A committee was appointed to canvass the October Chamber of Commerce supper. At the conclusion of the meeting, lunch was enjoyed, hostesses being Lady Mary Hardy and Lady Anne Burka.

Mr and Mrs Arthur Gibson, June, Leonard, Leon, and Barbara were recent visitors with his father, Al Gibson, at Vista Lodge.

Bob and Carol Carlson and baby, Jonathon of Calgary, arrived Friday evening, visiting with his family, Mr and Mrs Melvin Carlson over the weekend. Jonathon stayed with his grandparents on Saturday while Bob and Carol attended the wedding of Carol's brother in Edmonton.

Mrs Beth Campbell returned home last Tuesday afternoon after spending a few days in Leduc with her daughter and family. While there, she attended a UCW rally on Monday with her daughter, Marjorie and several other ladies from Leduc at Ruselle Mission at Pigeon Lake.

Mrs Ruby Benson and her mother, Mrs Mary Hooper, were Thursday visitors in Camrose.

Gary Oberg of Sherwood Park, grandson of Mr Henry Oberg, passed away Sept. 6th at the age of 26 years. He leaves to mourn his loss his parents, Carl and Giselle and one sister, Carol of Sherwood Park, and his grandparents, Mrs Mabel Oberg of Edmonton and Henry Oberg of Holden. The funeral service was held September 9th at the Glendon Pentecostal Church with Rev J. Akremchuk officiating, and interment was in the Glendon Community Cemetery, Glendon.

Mrs. Mae Budd returned home on the weekend after spending a week as a patient in Viking Hospital for tests, and returned again for further tests on Tuesday.

Mr and Mrs Herman Nichols of Ponoka were recent Sunday guests with his family, Mr and Mrs Roy Nichols.

The Friendship Group met for their regular meeting, after a two-month recess on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs Roy Nichols. Devotions were in charge of Mrs Nichols. The roll call was taken with each lady present responding with an appropriate verse or scripture. The minutes of the last meeting held in June at the home of Mrs. Beth Campbell were read and approved. A letter from Miss Jean Latta in Hong Kong was read which contained a school report of our protegee who had obtained a percentage of 91 percent in her final exams. A letter of thanks was also read from Mrs Anna Warren. Mrs Campbell reported on a UCW rally she had attended at Pigeon Lake. The meeting was closed with a hymn and the Benediction. The October meeting will be held at the home of Miss June Clark with Mrs. Edith Carlson in charge of devotions.

The Pioneer Group will meet for their first meeting at the home of Mrs. Campbell on October 7th.

Ernie and Beth Morta and family of Viking were Sunday guests with Beth's aunt, Mrs Beth Campbell. Morta Later in the afternoon, Ernie and the boys drove Elaine back to Edmonton where she is attending university then stopped in at Mrs Campbell's again before returning home.

Mr and Mrs Brian Taylor and family were Saturday visitors with his parents, the G H Taylors.

Mr and Mrs Roy Nichols were Friday afternoon visitors with Mr and Mrs Ed Knudson of the South Ryley district.

The Bill Hrasymchuks of Edmonton were Sunday afternoon visitors with his mother, Mrs. Nancy Harasymchuk, also with his brother, Mr and Mrs. Walter Harasymchuk and family.

TALKING ABOUT SILAGE

For the past few years we have seen increasing interest in the use of silage as a cattle feed, and with the low returns from cattle at this moment it is important to obtain and utilize the silage effectively.

Quality Characteristics	Odor	Taste	Texture	Color
Well fermented	pleasant vinegar-like	sherry acid	firm	light green-yellow or gra dark olive-gre, or brown
Poorly fermented	strong, offensive	taste-	slimy
Oven heated	like rancid butter strong, burned sugar or tobacco like		dry	brown to black

Moldy silage is an indication that the material has been exposed to air whereas rotten or slimy silage is an indication of excessive moisture.

Another factor to keep in mind when feeding silage is the moisture content as this has an effect on the nutritional value of the silage. This is quite logical since the more water there is in the silage the less room there is for the nutritional factor. Thus depending on the moisture content of the silage one may have to feed more or less of a certain silage to obtain a certain amount of nutritional value required by the cattle. To be on the safe side one should have the silage tested by the Soil and Feed Testing Lab in Edmonton to ensure you are feeding the silage in adequate amounts.

Silage is an important method in preserving forage and reduces the problems of field curing but silage has, as well, a number of disadvantages and a person must weigh these carefully before moving to a silage system.

If you have any questions on this or any other topic please drop by or call us in Ryley at [illegible].

I'll puff and I'll huff

John Whitehouse was huffing and puffing as he held the giant puffball above long enough to get a picture taken for the record. Weighing almost 25 pounds, the outside growth was one of several on their farm about 16 miles northwest of Camrose, near Hay Lakes, but John thought this was the biggest one in the group. The puffball pictured measured 40 inches around and 16" across, while others in the same patch came in at 46 and 15, and 35 and 11.

Nominees sought

Nominations are now being accepted for the Carling O'Keefe Award of Merit, amateur baseball's top individual award in Alberta.

Chairman of the Selections Committee is Ron Hayter of Edmonton, who stressed that the award is presented on the basis of a person's conduct, dedication and activities which have made a valuable and lasting contribution to the development and betterment of amateur baseball in the province.

Nominations will be accepted from clubs, leagues and associations, but not from individuals. In all instances, nominations must be accompanied by a photo, and the age of the nominee, along with the length of his residence in Alberta.

Last year's winner was Larry Smith of Lethbridge. Other previous winners were Dave Pletsky of Sherwood Park, Harvey Doherty of Westlock, George Behm of Edmonton, and Ron Hayter of Edmonton.

All nominations should be sent to Ron Hayter, 238 Revillon Building, Edmonton. All nominations should be received by October 15th.

Horses to run

Horses will be racing at the Fairgrounds in Camrose on Saturday and Sunday.

The two-day meet is being sponsored by the Camrose Agricultural Society and the Canada West Turf Association. The Alberta Racing Commission is providing some support for the purse money being offered.

The weekend's racing will be somewhat different from a meet held earlier in the year. At the earlier meet, it was Thursday, Sept. 23, 1976 only racing while in this weekend's meet, riders will be racing in the saddles.

Saturday's card will begin at 1:30 p.m. while Sunday's races will get underway at 1:30 p.m. There will be ten races each day.

Pari-mutuel betting will be available on both days.

Wages vs prices. What's happened in 1976.

The anti-inflation program is nearly one year old.

The program was announced last October 14 and the Anti-Inflation Act was passed by Parliament in December. The goal was to create a fair and stable economic climate for all of us. Guidelines were established for the control of prices, profits, incomes, dividends and professional fees. The federal government established a policy of spending restraint. The provinces are supporting the program and are applying guidelines in areas of provincial concern such as rents.

The target of the first year of the anti-inflation program was to bring inflation down from a rate of 10.8% to 8% or less. This goal is going to be reached. Still, many Canadians are concerned about rising prices and may feel in fact that prices are rising faster than their family incomes. For most of us, this is not the case. The facts prove that since the start of the program most of us are better off than we were before because salaries, on average, are keeping ahead of prices.

Prices

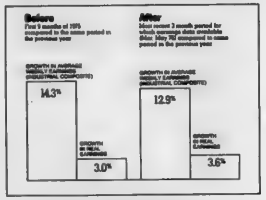
Last year, sudden and frightening price increases were happening all too often. By October, 1975, Canadians had experienced 20 months of inflation of 10% or more. No one could be sure how far the dollar earned one day would stretch the next. The anti-inflation program was brought in to control the rise in prices, giving Canadians a better chance to plan and live within their family budgets. Price increases have slowed down. By August, the annual rate of increase in the Consumer Price Index had dropped to 6.2%. Although some price increases have to be expected this month and next, the 8% target will surely be met.

Wages

The anti-inflation program has also helped to restrain increases in wages, salaries and other incomes. The Guidelines on compensation allow for a basic increase of 8%, plus 2% as a share of national productivity growth. Another 2% can be added or subtracted depending on whether a group had kept up with or fallen behind cost of living increases before the program began. More than half of the agreements and settlements reported to the Anti-Inflation Board have been within these arithmetic guidelines. A gradual downward trend in wage increases has started and it should continue as more Canadians realize that because of declining inflation, settling for less won't hurt them.

The real gains

Since the start of the anti-inflation program, the average Canadian has actually improved his or her buying power. This is because lower wage increases along with lower price increases have resulted in a gain in real incomes. The real gain is worked out by taking the actual increase in earnings and subtracting from it the effects of higher consumer prices. Real incomes are probably the best measure of how we're doing, of how we can manage to pay our bills at home. By this spring, real incomes were up 3.6% over last year.



Controls on both prices and incomes are part of the reason why the inflation rate is dropping. The co-operation and hard work of most Canadians is the rest of the story. We will soon be moving into the second year of the program, with a goal of lowering the inflation rate to 6% or less. Working together we can reach this target too.

THE ANTI-INFLATION PROGRAM A REVIEW YEAR ONE

Ryley council has meetings

Village of Ryley Council met in two sessions during the past month, holding a regular session on August 18, and reconvening on August 26

Council decided to approach the Water Resources Branch to plan further on a proposed water drainage and sewage extension as outlined in a study submitted by Associated Engineering Services. In this regard, a copy of the study is to be retained by the village.

The Town Foreman was authorized to obtain more information on whether or not to purchase a new snow blower, or repair the one presently owned by the village.

The foreman was also authorized to purchase new tires for the grader, and to gravel the back alley in Block 6.

Councillors Baker and Heilesen, along with secretary-treasurer Hovland, were named as a committee to investigate renovations to the village office, and report their recommendations at a future meeting.

Other routine business matters were handled.

Information for this story was obtained from the unapproved minutes of the two meetings.

Mrs. Maureen Patterson of Edmonton:

Maureen Patterson of Edmonton now has six inches of insulation in her attic. She's saving energy and money.

"With fuel prices going crazy, we added insulation in the attic. Now the house is more comfortable and we've cut our gas consumption by about 12%."

Adding insulation is one of the best investments you can make.

Keeping the heat in helps to conserve Canada's dwindling energy reserves. And cuts your fuel bills.

Add insulation, caulking, weather-stripping and storms. Have your furnace tuned for peak efficiency. Keep a light hand on the thermostat.

You'll save money for yourself, and help Canada to conserve energy and fight inflation. No wonder insulation is one of the best investments you can make. Remember, too, that many insulation products are now exempt from Federal sales tax.

Mrs. Jim Roddick

Despite harvesting and it being a very busy season, the bingo held at the Crafts Centre on Saturday evening was a huge success.

Mrs. Isabelle Lee of Splisted won the blanket and Wayne Kleinschroth the other half of the proceeds of the last bingo.

The quilt that the Thursday group made and have been selling tickets on for the last while was raffled and won by Mrs. T. Jong of Sherwood Park.

The bonfire on Friday evening was a most happy occasion. The young people's group had a lovely fire, and hot dogs and marshmallows were toasted and lots of coffee and Kool Aid were available. Leaders of the group are Shirley Horricks and Delores Robertson.

Walter and Yvonne George of Edmonton spent the weekend with Mrs. S. George, also taking in the bingo at the Crafts Centre.

Mrs. Emilie Gervais and son, Jacques of Cornwall, Ontario were guests for ten days of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lafontaine and Claude. They all motored over the David Thompson Highway to Lake Louise and on to Penticton. This was the Gervais' first trip to the west and their impressions of this corner of the world were indescribable, with promises to be back soon.

Robert Wilson and his niece Mrs. Jean Brow... of Aberdeen, Scotland are guests at the Jeanie Wilson home. On Saturday they visited relatives in Olds. On Monday they went to Banff and area for three days.

Pottery classes started at the Crafts Centre on Tuesday evening with Mrs. Louise Hicks as instructor.

Keep fit classes get underway at the hall on Thursday evening with 11 people and Verge Heitman instructing.

Little Sherry Wittig has been a patient in the General Hospital these last two weeks with rheumatic fever.

Around the town

Frank Kortzman was born in Littlefalls, Minn., in 1889. He came to Canada with his family as a young boy settling on a homestead at Pigeon Lake. Leaving the farm, Mr. Kortzman owned and operated (The Bijou) theatre at Wetaskiwin, later joining the C.N.R. for 14 years.

He married Florence Pruden of Tofield, daughter of John Edward Pruden, whose family also farmed in the Tofield area. He and his wife moved to the Lindbrook district in 1926 where they farmed until his retirement in 1953, to the Town of Tofield.

He passed away on Sept. 18th in the Tofield Hospital at the age of 87 years. He is survived by his wife, Florence, two sons, Ralph of Edmonton, and Richard of Lindbrook; two daughters, Mabel Lindberg and Thelma Chandler of Edmonton; one brother Oscar of Prince George; eight grandchildren; and twelve great-grandchildren. Funeral services were held on Sept. 18th at the United Church in Tofield with interment in the Tofield Cemetery.

Miss Gaylene Neufeld and her cousin, Miss Peggy Warkentine of Edmonton have returned from a two-week holiday in Hawaii.

Tofield Gun Club held their annual Warner - Thiessen Memorial Shoot last Sunday with John Hutchson as the successful competitor for the cup. After the shoot, members enjoyed a pot luck and barbecue at the Allan Warners.

Swim pool rules

Since Ryley is the location of the first enclosed swimming pool in the County of Beaver, people would not be familiar with rules and regulations for such an operation.

As a public service, The Mercury is happy to co-operate with the pool staff, and publish the rules that are pertinent to the pool's operation.

— We have provided lockers in our change rooms. Please remember to bring a combination lock and lock all items in a locker. Even a towel can be lost if left out.

— the lifeguard is here for your service and protection. Please obey his or her requests and ask him or her for any information that you desire.

— please shower before you enter the pool.

— remember glasses and glass containers can break no matter how careful you are. Please leave your glasses locked in a locker and do not bring soap and shampoo to the pool in a glass container — street clothes and shoes carry all kinds of dirt and germs Please minimize the chance of contamination by not wearing street clothes or shoes on the pool deck.

— our deck can be slippery when wet so please walk carefully.

— we do allow use of pool and private equipment in the swimming pool. Please ask the staff as to the proper use and appropriate times that you can use equipment.

— the diving board is made for use by one person at a time. After diving or jumping off the board please swim quickly to the nearest ladder.

— our whistle system is as follows: one whistle means attention, two long blasts mean clear the pool immediately and sit on the edge. "This system is for your protection.

In case of an emergency the pool can be cleared effectively and the situation properly handled.

— please show consideration for your fellow swimmers. If the staff can make your swim here more enjoyable, please do not hesitate to let us know.

We wish to thank-you in advance for your cooperation

The Mercury conducted "man in the street" type interviews earlier this week as we asked people how they liked the new swimming pool in Ryley. Tanya Nordby of Ryley works at the pool and thinks people are accepting the pool with great enthusiasm. Vanda Johnson of Ryley enjoys the pool and is taking her bronze medal. Ivan Hrabec of Holden hasn't used the pool yet but in planning on taking lessons while Linda Kisiak of Holden hasn't decided if she'll make use of the new facility. Lorraine Poulsen of Pos thinks the pool is a great idea and she might make use of it this winter. Eleanor McNeil of Tofield hasn't used it yet, although she intends to, and her son has enjoyed its use. Her only regret is it isn't in Tofield.

TOMATOES WITH RELISH

Agriculture Canada sent the following information about tomatoes.

Luscious, red tomatoes are abundant now in gardens and produce counters and everyone wants to take advantage of them at the peak of their flavor.

Strangely enough, tomatoes were once grown in North America only as a plant decoration. The red fruit was treasured for its beauty but was considered poisonous. Nowadays it is valued for its delicious flavor and the important vitamins it contains.

When buying ripe tomatoes, it is useful to know that 3 or 4 medium tomatoes weigh 1 pound and a 4 quart basket contains 10 pounds. Tomatoes that are ripened on the vine have the best flavor - however, they are highly perishable and need handling with care.

Homemakers who have supplies of fresh tomatoes close at hand will want to preserve them either by canning or pickling.

When canning tomatoes it is important to note that the acid level may differ with the variety and growing conditions. To ensure that the acid level is high enough, Agriculture Canada now suggests adding citric acid before the jars are sealed and processed. For home canned tomato juice and tomatoes add ¼ teaspoon of citric acid and ½ teaspoon of salt dissolved in 1 tablespoon of boiling water to each small container.

Tomato Relish

Makes about 4 pints. Store in a cool, dark place. Will keep up to 1 year. If using glass jars with metal lids, cover relish with plastic film to prevent discoloration of the metal during storage.

Enrolment increases at C.L.C.

Enrolment at Camrose Lutheran College for the present term has increased by about ten percent with a student body of 450.

First year university is the biggest attraction with 207 students, with grade twelve enrolment drawing 85 students. Second year university has 89 students while a combined grade twelve-university course has 55 students.

In addition, a total of twenty-two persons are enrolled on a part-time basis.

Most of the college's students are from Alberta, but marked increases are shown in enrolments from outside the province.

Students from British Columbia have more than doubled with 20 registering this year as compared to 13 last year, while another 14 students are from Saskatchewan. Other parts of the country are responsible for 18 students as compared to only eight last year.

Foreign students have shown a substantial increase. Last fall saw a total of 28 foreign students at CLC. This year, there are two dozen from Hong Kong, with others coming from Norway, Japan, United States, Malaysia and Iran.

Hail report

Gordon Sterling, Chairman, Alberta Weather Modification Board.

Our seeding program finished Friday, September 10th after completing three months of successful operations. Last year we had considerable cloud seeding in September but this year did very little. The storm with the most hail reports in the north occurred on July 17th when two storms about one hour apart tracked from our western boundary through Hythe to Pomeha. Two major storms occurred in the southern area, one July 9th and the other on August 15th.

This year hail occurred on 46 days during our 92 day seeding period compared to 69 days for an 82 day period a year ago. It hailed on 45 per cent of the time during 1976 and 39 percent of the days during 1975.

The number of hail reports from the north this year was 1080 compared to the long-time average of 1400. In the south the number of hail reports was 788 compared to the long-time average of 1300.

(Long-time average - 1967 to 1975)

This year we flew 946 hours compared to 722 last year. We used 6086 droppable flares compared to 3464 last year and 1382 seed-burning flares compared to 1136 a year ago.

We logged 256 hours of computer data this year compared to 200 a year ago.

The Alberta Weather Modification Board and staff at the Alberta Hail Project, Penhold wish to extend a special thank-you to all farmers and their wives for forwarding to us information pertaining to hail and or rainfall.

Viking tickets on sale

Season tickets for CLC Vikings home games are going on sale this week at various outlets in the city.

Tickets will be available at Bid's Sport Shop, CLC, or from members of the hockey team's promotion committee, which is headed by Lorne Brown.

Tickets will also be on sale at the team's annual smorgasbord to be held on October 20th in the Convocation Centre.

The first exhibition game for the Vikings will be on October 15th when they host Sherwood Park Knights with a second game against the U of A Golden Bears set for October 17th. Both games will be played in Camrose.

The first league game for the Vikings will be on October 20th with Red Deer Kings coming to town in a revival of the rivalry that has developed between the two teams since CLC first joined the league.

Tofield sub-local starts a new year

by Grace Phillips

The first meeting of the 1976-77 year was held by the Tofield sub-local of the Alberta Teachers' Association on September 15, with president Robert Garneau in the chair.

It was decided that part of the budget of the sub-local should be used to pay for a membership in one Specialist Council of the Alberta Teachers' Association for any teacher who desires to take advantage of the services of the Specialist Councils. These Specialist Councils, at their annual conferences, bring outstanding educators to speak to teachers and to conduct workshop sessions with them. Current information and successful teaching practices are made available to council members.

The committee responsible for the social activities of the sub-local this year consists of Curtis Hastings, Ted Whyte, and Miss Coryse Kernay.

The program committee will be composed of Miss Vivian Carlson, Robert Garneau, Mrs. Jane Walls, Miss Dennie Neville, and Mrs. Gail Blanchard.

John Blades, the sub-local's professional development representative reported that the annual Professional Development Day was being planned for February.

The annual induction ceremony for beginning teachers will be held in Ryley, later this fall.

IN MEMORIAM

EATON In loving memory of our dear husband and father Owen Richard Eaton, who passed away Sept. 24, 1968.
Eighteen long years have passed away
Since Owen left us alone that day
He is gone but not forgotten,
And as dawn another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness will come over us,
Many think the wound is healed,
But little they know the sorrow
That lies in the heart concealed
Calm and peaceful he is sleeping,
Free from sickness and all pain,
We who loved him sadly miss him,
But trust in God to meet again.
Still loved but sadly missed by his loving wife Ellen, his two sons Walter & Evelyn & family; Leroy & Shirley & family and his daughter Rita Niemetz and 2 girls Linda & Sherry. nc

Another "Praise" Book!
Merlin Carothers book "Bringing Heaven Into Hell" has just been released! Now the noted author of the best-sellers "Prison to Praise" & "Power in Praise" goes beyond his earlier works to explore life-changing situations others have experienced. He shares those discoveries of God's forgiveness, a new freedom in Christ, and the power of the Holy Spirit to shed light from heaven in the midst of a personal hell.

For the youth!
Bettie Wilson Story's book "The Other Side of the Trff" is based on her husbands experience in Israel, where he worked as a member of an archaeological team on the Tel Gezer dig.

Old friend back

Julius Olson of Round Hill finds that some of the old ways of harvesting are still the best, as he has been using a threshing machine for the past several years. Among his reasons for using the separator in preference to combining is to get away from the high cost of baling, and to save the chaff which has the best food value of the straw as livestock feed. Mr. Olson and his son use forage harvester wagons to pick up the swaths from the field, then run it from the wagon into the separator as shown above, the grain going into the truck ready for hauling to the bins, and the straw and chaff being piled for feed. His wagons pick up two to three acres of swath per load, says Mr. Olson, and the two men take in about 25 to 30 acres per day, making him quite satisfied with his combination of modern and old-fashioned methods of harvesting.

Holden grads are honoured

by Mrs. G.H. Taylor

Holden High school held its graduation ceremonies on September 25th in the Holden Community Hall.

A banquet began the evening catered to by ladies of the Holden Lutheran Church.

Kathy Stecyk, Students' Union president, welcomed the Graduating Class and guests. The Exercises followed with remarks from the chairman, Oleh Shykora, principal of Holden School Musical selections by Eileen Hrtman and Wolfgang Desti were then enjoyed by all.

Earl Hardy, B.Ed., a former vice-principal, now retired, was the guest speaker The Valedictory was given by Darlene Shavchook who had received the highest marks of the 1976 graduating class, her average being 83.5 percent. In her speech, Darlene stressed the importance of education. She acknowledged all her teachers individually from her first year of school in 1964 to 1976 She thanked her parents and Holden community for any assistance she had received and wished all the class of 1976 success

Darlene was then presented with an award from the Order of the Royal Purple Lodge by P.H.R.L. Mary Semotiuk, given by the Lodge each year to the pupil having the highest marks in grade 12 exams, and Joe Foral presented her with an award from the Alberta Teacher's Association

All the graduating class received their diplomas and pins

Those graduating were Wayne Banach, Dennis Chrystian, Janet Danilak, Dwayne Dychkowski, Darcy Edwards, Randy Field, Mark Fredericks, Debra Gabrysh, Gary Halabut, Maryann

Registration for figure skating will be held in the Tofield Arena on Saturday, from 10:30 p.m. - 3:00 p.m.

Instruction fees have increased slightly over last year and will vary according to the hours of instruction time per week There will be a registration fee of five dollars

In the past, skaters have had to buy a season's skating ticket and pay an additional six dollar fee to the Agricultural Society to cover the cost of ice time. This year, it will no longer be mandatory to buy a season's ticket, although these will again be available from the Agricultural Society. Instead, skaters will pay seven dollars for each hour of ice time. For instance, a skater who is scheduled for one hour of instruction and one hour of practice per week, will pay a fourteen dollar ice time fee for the season. Skaters wishing to take private lessons will be required to pay an ice time fee of forty-two dollars and will be personally responsible for payment for instruction.

The Canadian Figure Skating Association programs will be taught and this includes the National Skating Tests (fourteen badges), Power Skating (seven badges) and the more involved C.P.S.A. program for senior skaters.

Any skaters over thirteen years of age, or interested adults, wishing to volunteer as amateur coaches, please contact Mrs Hortense Robichaud at 662-3050, evenings. All applicants will not necessarily be accepted.

Kawalik, Brenda Komarnisky, Candise Koppel, Christine Macabonic, Donna Marciskoski, John Marusenka, Eileen Otto, Lawrence Pasnak, Richard Pipke, Charlene Regnaki, Joan Schultz, Darlene Shavchook, Sonia Shibinski, and Rodney Stefaniyn.

Beavers blanked

Tofield Beavers played their second football game of the season on Saturday and went down to defeat at the hands of the defending league champions from Vermilion

Despite playing in front of an enthusiastic home crowd, The Beavers were blanked 36-0 by a more experienced squad, who used sweep plays to good advantage over their more inexperienced opposition.

Stars of the game for the visitors were Don Stachniak, Derren Field, Ken Myshak, and John McIntyre, while Tofield's stars were Ed Donnan, Bruce Burnstad, Doug Nachtigal, and Wayne Olsen.

Next action for the Beavers will take place on Saturday when they travel to Lloydminster for a game. On Wednesday, Wainwright will pay a visit to Tofield.

All players on the team will be auctioned off at a slave auction on October 9th at a minimum wage of $2.75 per hour for a minimum of four hours, with all players having pledged to work a minimum of eight hours.

Men speak to students

By Grace Philips

Two members of the Tofield Community have recently been guest speakers at the school.

Jack Lowe, a War Veteran, spoke to the grade nine classes about the significance of Remembrance Day. This occasion was in preparation for participation in the Canadian Legion Essay and Poem contests.

Thomas Jacobs, a recent visitor to Japan showed slides taken on his trip, to grade eight, in their Social Studies class.

God is bigger than you think!

• Problems pressing in on you?
• Got a host of unmet needs?

God is big enough-you simply need to activate your faith! Russ Johnston firmly believes that the Bible promises a lot more than most Christians claim in sermons and classes he has taught principles that have turned ordinary lives into extra-ordinary adventures. He helps people see that God a good, delighting to meet his children's needs and desires. Now Johnston shares these some truths of how you too can learn to live up to your full potential. God doesn't promise a trouble-free life, but He will turn your troubles into multiplied blessings as you exercise your faith. Take it from Russ Johnston.

Around the Town

Mrs. Sirdar visited with friends at Vilna and Smoky Lake recently. She also spent a week with her grandson, Stan Sirdar in Winnipeg.

Members and their families, of the Tofield Garden Club, will meet at the home of Yvonne Brown on October 11th for a weiner roast at 6.30 p.m., to be followed by a meeting. Plans for the flea market of October 16 will be discussed.

Mrs. Stinson has her sister-in-law, Mrs. R.A. Scott of Winnipeg, visiting for two weeks.

There was a good turnout for the muffin party held at Vi Goeglein's by the Lakeshore UCW. One of the guests in attendance was Mrs. Bertha Beale of Calgary.

Mrs. Eggen has just returned from a trip to Brooks, Calgary, and Medicine Hat where she visited her children, Rita and Howard. While in Calgary, she took time to tour Heritage Park.

Cal. Power returns Skippen

Well Known in bowling and baseball circles, Grant Skippen has been named to the post of division operations supervisor for Calgary Power in this city. Officially, Mr. Skippen began his position with the Camrose Division on September 20. His areas of responsibilities will include the communities of Wetaskiwin, Ma-Me-O-Beach, Wainwright, Holden and Tofield.

Most recently, Mr. Skippen has served as an instructor at the Calgary based training school for linemen.

Mr. Skippen came to be well known in this region, when he held a position with Calgary Power in the Camrose and Hay Lakes communities during the late 1950's and early 1960's. During his 22 years with the company, he has held a number of positions, including survey, construction and district work.

Among his many interests, Mr. Skippen has been involved in minor hockey and little league ball, and it was in these areas that he will be particularly well remembered in Camrose. He and his family enjoy canoeing, fishing, curling and bowling.

Mr. Skippen said he and his wife Doris are delighted to be back in Camrose. Their son Doug is already enrolled at Camrose Lutheran College, while their daughter Karen is completing high school in Calgary.

Big 3 to hold election

by Grace Phillips

The annual Big 3 election is underway in the Tofield Junior High School.

Brenda Williams and Jim Warner lead the S.W.A.T. and C.O.O.L. slates respectively. Campaign speeches will be given on Tuesday with the election to follow on Friday.

The Big 3 is the student government body for Junior High. It raises money for school activities such as parties, skating parties, basketball uniforms, etc.

Chief enumerator for the election is Carol Brom. Returning Officer is Vernon Schmidt. He will be assisted by Deputy Returning Officers Les Thomas, Michael Shewchuk and Randy Robichaud. Poll Clerks are Kelley Heigh, Susan McLeod, Patricia Jones and Jodi Bergum.

Agriculture — If You Eat, You're Involved

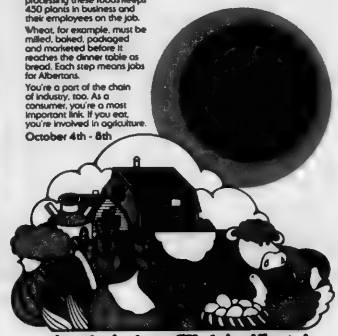
All Albertans have a role to play in agriculture; as consumers, and also as working members of the agriculture industry, which provides one out of three jobs in the province.

A wide variety of foods are produced in Alberta, and processing these foods keeps 450 plants in business and their employees on the job.

Wheat, for example, must be milled, baked, packaged and marketed before it reaches the dinner table as bread. Each step means jobs for Albertans.

You're a part of the chain of industry, too. As a consumer, you're a most important link. If you eat, you're involved in agriculture.

October 4th - 8th



it's Agriculture Week in Alberta!

FORD'S BETTER IDEAS FOR '77... HERE NOW.

A new kind of thunder at a new lower price.

THUNDERBIRD

The 1977 Thunderbird has a new look, a new size and a new lower price — but it's still unmistakably Thunderbird.

Leaner, cleaner, trimmer in size.

Thunderbird has been strikingly re-designed with elegant styling both inside and out.

It's a car equipped to make driving a pleasure. Power steering, power front disc brakes, V-8 engine, automatic transmission, steel-belted radials — are all standard. Thunderbird's new suspension system and wide stance provide both nimble handling and a comfortable ride.

Perhaps the most unexpected thing about today's new Thunderbird is the lower manufacturer's suggested retail price. You'll find it almost unbelievable that a Thunderbird can be so easy to own.

More ideas for '77.
This year Ford's added a new low-priced Granada Special Edition. So you get a new choice in models . . . in the car that started a whole new driving trend! The Pinto has new front end styling — and offers sporty new options. There's also the dependable Maverick, the dashing Mustang II, and a great line of trucks at your Ford Dealer.

Reduced maintenance.
Compared with 1976-model Ford cars, 1977 standard equipped Ford cars are designed to reduce by 43% the average estimated cost for scheduled maintenance during 50,000 miles of normal driving.

Announcing: THE FORD DURAGUARD SYSTEM
It's Quality, Reliability, and Durability, and more.
It's comprehensive anti-corrosion measures, thorough testing and a new 36-month corrosion perforation warranty.

WARRANTY: 36-month warranty against corrosion perforation on 1977 cars. This warranty reflects our confidence in the quality, durability and anti-corrosion measures built into every 1977 Ford of Canada car.

Ask your Ford Dealer for details.

FORD

Full-size or trim size? Ford gives you the choice for '77.

A full-size car that kept its full size. Ford LTD.

1977 Ford LTD Landau 4-door Pillared Hardtop

The same interior spaciousness, deep-well trunk, road-hugging performance, long wheelbase and 3½ ton rated towing capacity (with optional trailer towing package) the Ford LTD is every inch the car it was last year. (Compare this to our competitors' 1977 smaller "full-size" cars!)

The trimmer, sportier car at a trimmer price than LTD. New LTD II.

1977 Ford LTD II 5.8 4-door Pillared Hardtop

Ford introduces a new line of cars — sporty 2-doors, 4-doors, and wagons — all called LTD II. When it comes to value, you'll find LTD II compares not only with other mid-size cars, but even with GM's new smaller "full-size" cars. So shop it here you get a choice: your Ford dealer. He's got the full-size Ford LTD . . . and the trim-size new LTD II.

ALL ABOUT SANDWICHES

Sandwiches have many forms and many uses. They may be closed or open-faced, flat or rolled, cold or hot

When making sandwiches remember to make them attractive, make them appetizing, make them nutritious and make them satisfying

Most cold sandwiches with the exception of those containing lettuce and tomato, can be made in advance and stored in a cool place. If possible, they should be left whole, wrapped in plastic film and stored in the refrigerator They will stay fresh up to 24 hours

For longer storage, most sandwiches may be frozen Fillings made of meat, poultry, fish and cheese freeze well. Only a few ingredients are not suitable to be frozen. Eggs become tough and dry; celery, cucumbers, lettuce and other greens lose crispness, tomatoes, jam and jelly tend to soak into the bread during thawing, luncheon meat becomes overly salty Salad dressings and mayonnaise tend to separate but this is not generally considered a problem in frozen sandwiches.

Sandwiches may be individually wrapped for freezing or three or four with the same kind of filling may be packaged together Do not wrap large quantities together as this will result in uneven freezing and thawing Pack the sandwiches in freezer bags and label each package as to type of filling and date of freezing. Sandwiches will keep up to six weeks in the freezer.

If you would like some sandwich ideas, ask for the booklet "All about Sandwiches"

LATE SUMMER PERENNIAL WEED CONTROL

In order to control or eliminate an infestation of perennial weeds it is necessary to have some basic knowledge of the growth habits of this particular class of weeds Generally speaking, perennials arise from extensive underground root stalks, bulbs or corms. Food is produced by the above ground portion of the plant, stored in the underground root stalk and used either to extend the root system and send up additional top growth or to send up replacement top growth if it is removed in some way. Control of an infestation of perennial weeds involves the removal, at regular intervals, of the above ground portion of the plant so there is no opportunity to build up a reserve of stored food in the root system. As a matter of fact, the food stored in the root system is continually being depleted in order to produce above ground growth of the plant.

Early season spraying of perennial weeds in crops, at the reduced rates of herbicides tolerated by these crops, is designed to remove the top growth of the perennials, to allow the crop to compete successfully, and to prevent a build-up of stored food in the under ground root system. If it is possible to spray again after harvest using a heavier rate of herbicide when there is no danger of harming the crop many of the underground roots will be killed and, since no food storage is permitted, the entire plant will go into winter in a weakened condition and may winter kill. It is not easy to control perennial weeds: one must know the weak point in their development and capitalize on this knowledge

FALL APPLICATIONS OF NITROGEN FERTILIZER

An increasing number of farmers are applying their nitrogen fertilizer in the fall to avoid the workload pressure in the spring. Also, the fertilizer industry is encouraging this practice because their distribution system could not handle all the orders in the spring.

Fall fertilizer applications can give good results if the following recommendations are adhered to.

1) Do not apply a nitrogen fertilizer in the fall until after plant growth has ceased. This practice will prevent the nitrogen being used by weeds and volunteer grain during the fall.

2) Do not apply a nitrogen fertilizer in the fall to land that is subject to flooding or which remains saturated for several days after the spring run-off.

3) Do not apply a nitrogen fertilizer in the fall to soils that are very sandy because the fertilizer may leach below the plant root zone.

4) Do not apply a nitrogen fertilizer in the fall if you are planning to use delayed seeding the following spring for weed control.

5) Do not apply a nitrogen fertilizer for forage crops until late fall when all growth has ceased. Growth of these crops should not be stimulated before they go into dormancy.

The proper use of fertilizers is more important than ever in view of higher fertilizer and crop prices. These higher prices, mean that there is more to be lost from the improper or inadequate use of fertilizers and more to be gained from a good fertilizer program. A fertilizer program should be carefully planned and soil testing should be part of the program.

October is a good month for taking soil samples because soil temperatures are usually below 10 C. This means that very little change will occur in the nutrient status of the soil between October and next spring.

Any one who is planning to take soil samples should always do so before applying a fertilizer. Only if the field is sampled before the fertilizer is applied can an accurate nitrogen recommendation be given.

Father Kahanyo was a visitor last week with his sister-in-law, Mrs. Nellie Kahanyo and daughter, Joanne, Nellie's brother, Sam Sroka and her mother were also guests on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Mary Hooper is a patient in Tofield Hospital for a check-up. Mrs. Olive Good was visiting with her on Thursday afternoon.

Raymond Herland of Ryley was a visitor the past week with Mrs. Beth Campbell. Ray had been helping his brother Reuben on the farm with the harvest work and combining.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Knudson of the South Ryley District were Sunday guests with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Nichols.

Mrs. Nellie Kahanyo, who had been a patient in Tofield Hospital for a few days the past week, returned home over the weekend. Nellie became quite ill early Friday morning and Mrs. Olive Good drove her to the hospital where she had x-rays and tests. Olive visited with her Friday afternoon and Anne Milimaka and Mary Semotiuk drove up to see her in the evening.

Ray Herland of Ryley was a Friday visitor with Mrs. Beth Campbell.

Mrs. Bertha Chetney who spent several days in the hospital with the flu is back home but, is still not feeling too well.

Clare Anderson, Mrs. Francis Hansen, and Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor were Thursday visitors in Camrose.

Edward Basaraba of Holden passed away on Tuesday, Sept. 21st at the age of 45 years. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Basaraba of Edmonton; two brothers, Orest and Tony of Edmonton; two sisters, Mrs. Victoria Grytsiuk of Edmonton and Mrs. Ann Zuk of Mundare. Prayer service was held Sept. 26th at Park Memorial Chapel, Edmonton and the funeral service was held Sept. 27th at St. John's Russo Orthodox Church, Chipman, with Rev. A. Chilkowich officiating, and interment was in the church cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Andruchow and children of Edmonton were recent weekend visitors with her parents, the Ernie Goods. Olive, with Jody and Sharon called on Lars Ahlsent at Visita Lodge and took him out for the day.

Several members of the Holden United Church congregation attended the Ingathering Service at Tofield United Church on September 19th, of Rev. David Meddle.

A registration meeting for the 1976-77 year of Guides and Brownies will be held at the White School House in Holden tonight (Thursday) at 8.00 p.m. Mothers must attend to register their daughters, and coffee will be served.

Mrs. Gwen Hooper and daughter, Mrs. Shirley Scott, visited the past week with Gwen's mother, Mrs. Phena Evans at Visita Lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Stierwand and family were recent visitors with their grandson, Mrs. Speidel at Parkland Nursing Home in Viking.

Mrs. Laube also called on her husband, Adolph Laube.

Can we help you get your business dream off the ground?

Raising money to turn a good business ideal into a reality or expanding a present business is never an easy task. But when the regular financial institutions are not able to help, the ALBERTA OPPORTUNITY COMPANY is still available. We aren't easy either - but we do go further in loaning funds that can't be obtained elsewhere. The idea must be sound and marketable - and the people involved reliable; but with these requirements covered we're ready to listen seriously.

One reason the Alberta Opportunity Company was formed was to aid development in the province's smaller communities; and this remains an important objective. But most important, we believe that, given the opportunity, Albertans need not take a back seat to anyone for resourcefulness, talent, or imagination in the field of commercial enterprise.

OTTAWA — (CP) — At the end of this week yet another increase in the price of crude oil goes into effect at the wellhead. The government has decreed that the $1.05 per barrel price hike won't be passed on to the consumer until 60 days later, so we'll have most of the summer driving on the old gasoline price, which is some small consolation.

When the new price hits the gas pumps regular grade gasoline will quality of what, I hope, is otherwise a lovely early summer day, but there is a point to be made.

When the last price increases for crude oil went through, several gasoline stations in our neighborhood started sneaking up the price in advance. Oil companies have pretty large storage facilities. The reason the federal government has decreed there will be no consumer jump in the price of petroleum products for 60 days after the wellhead price goes up is to cost us between 82 and 95 cents a gallon, depending on which provincial gasoline tax is charged.

Heating oil prices will be up to roughly 50 cents a gallon, and that is going to smart next winter.

Another price boost is due January 1, but it is not scheduled to hit consumers until March 1. It will slap yet another four cents a gallon onto the price of both gasoline and heating oil.

This catalogue of doom probably isn't improving the elbow enough time for stored oil produced at the old price to work its way through the refinery and storage system.

Our home heating supplier which happens to be Gulf Oil - let the fuel tank on the Ward furnace run down to about 10 gallons last time a price increase took place, and filled the tank only the day the new price came into effect.

Watch for early price hikes at your local service station, and complain like blazes if they take place.

Watch the level of fuel in your furnace oil tank, too, and make sure your heating contractor fills the thing brim full a few days before the new price is authorized. Tell him you'll take your business elsewhere if he refuses to do so at you ask.

At 5 cents a gallon, you'll save $10 if your tank is filled at the old price. Who knows, even with inflation going the way it is that $10 might still buy you a case of beer.

HUMIDIFIER
CGE's easy Clean Line
CGE offers this high efficiency system the system that puts out of its humidifying capacity to work. Exclusive CGE stainless steel vanes spread water continuously over the full 189 square inches of evaporative filter—not just along a narrow band. Incoming air is humidified once as it enters the moisture laden mat below the filter and again as it flows through the filter itself. With CGE's Wide Angle Dispersion, high moisture output is more than a struggle. It's a must. Single speed model features 4-way adjustable air flow control grilles, 9.0 gallon output permanently humidistat water level indicator with float up tank free wheeling ball bearing casters

GREAT BEGINNINGS IN RURAL ALBERTA

IF YOUR PLANS INCLUDE A NUTRITIVE PROCESSING PLANT, WE CAN HELP.

Aid is available for the development of food processing facilities in rural Alberta. The federal-provincial Nutritive Processing Assistance Agreement provides assistance for building new plants or modernizing and expanding older ones.

This program can provide direct grants of up to 35% of approved capital for processing of nutritive products — for human, animal or plant consumption.

We can help you take advantage of this rural Alberta program. Contact us at:

Department of Regional Economic Expansion, 8th Floor, 10621 - 100 Avenue, Edmonton.

or Alberta Agriculture, Nutritive Processing Agreement, 9718 - 107 Street, Edmonton.

THE GREAT HEAT ROBBERY

takes place when furnace filters are dirty.

1 Forced air heating system filters are designed to prevent dust and lint in the air from being drawn through the furnace.

2 When filters become clogged with accumulated dust the flow of air is restricted reducing heating efficiency.

3 Most furnace filters are the glass fibre disposable type. These should normally be cleaned monthly and replaced twice a year.

4 Permanent type metallic filters should be cleaned and re-oiled as required. Most hardware and department stores carry various size filters.

5 In addition to a regular check to ensure filters are clean, be sure your furnace motor and fan bearings are lubricated according to the manufacturer's instructions. Registers should be cleaned of dust and foreign objects. Furniture should be placed so that hot and cold air registers are not obstructed.

Attention to your heating system will help you to get all the heat you pay for this winter.

Mrs. Ida Kristina Oslund passes

Ida Kristina Oslund was born on July 5, 1892 at Tannas Parish in the Province of Jamtland Sweden, the youngest daughter of Olof Andersson and Ingrid Svensson Oslund. The family took the name Oslund about the time her father proved up the homestead She was baptized at Tannas and christened ida Kristina Olofson (daughter of Olof) She attended the Swedish State Church at Tannas

She came to Canada with her parents and two brothers Sven and Olof in 1906 at the age of 13 years They departed from Rocon Norway by boat to Hull, England then across to Liverpool by train Departed for Canada on Steamship "Lake Erie", after a stormy crossing of three weeks, also setting sunrise for days, during which her mother and Ida were sea sick.

They landed in Montreal, boarded the C P R. train in Montreal and travelled across Canada to Wetaskiwin, where the family was met by her uncle, Pete Oslund who took the family by wagon to the area known as Ryley.

She attended school in Tannas until the age of 13 years, then attended school for short periods at Thule. She had learned her catechism and explanation by heart in Swedish before she came to Canada. She was confirmed in Swedish at Bardo Lutheran Church. She said a life member of the Ryley Bethel Congregation and L.C.W After her fathers death in 1907, her and her mother lived in Pee far awhile On December 23, 1908 she married Gustaf M Oslund and they lived in Ryley for four years and then moved out on Gustafs homestead To this union 7 children were born, of whom six are still living and Myrtle passed away at the age of 17 years.

They celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary on December 23, 1974. After retiring they continued to live on the same farm with their son. Mailred until a year ago, she lived with her daughter and son-in-law, Pearl and Nick for 6 months and then she was at Parkland Nursing Home, Viking, till the time of her passing.

She leaves to mourn her loss 3 daughters, Inga, Mrs Lawrence Pearce of Ryley, Olga, Mrs Henry Lee, of Camrose, Pearl, Mrs. Nick Kushnir of Ryley and three sons, Mailred, Gunner and Walter all of Ryley, twenty grand-children, twenty-one great-grand-children, nieces and nephews, cousins, four nieces and several cousins in Sweden. County School Committee briefs

UNAPPROVED SCHOOL MINUTES
COUNTY OF BEAVER
SEPT 7,1976.

Present were: Crs. Armitage, Evanish, Knudsen, Mclntosh, Sears, Krupnicki. Representing Towns and Villages H Berke, E. Field, N Semotiuk. H Wilkie Also present were Dr Neil Gannon, Superintendent of Schools, A. Robert Crum, Secretary-Treasurer, Ronald G. Pepper, Assistant Secretary-Treasurer

The meeting was called to order by the Chairman, Cr Sears

Moved that the minutes of the regular meeting of July 6th be approved.

Correspondence was received from Alberta Education regarding the Kinsella School This correspondence stated "Pursuant to Section 13 (7) of the School Act the Minister gives approval to sell the Kinsella School and site to the Kinsella Recreation Board for a nominal fee of $1 00

This approval is on the basis that the said property reverts to the County when the school building is required by the County for the instruction and accommodation of pupils or when the Kinsella Recreation Board no longer needs the school building for community use

You are directed to register the above conditions during the time a transfer of the property is effected."

Moved that this correspondence be accepted; that the matter of transfer of the Kinsella School be referred to legal council to effect the above noted requirements of Alberta Education.

Moved that correspondence received from the A.I.B. stating that the Teachers' Contract had been accepted be received and filed

Moved that the School Committee concur in the action taken by the County of Beaver Council in accepting the gasoline tender from Imperial Oil

Three tenders from Imperial Oil

Three tenders for the supply of an accounting machine were opened at this time

Moved that the School Committee purchase from N C R. Canada Ltd., a NCR 499, for the price of $35,825 00

Moved that the School Committee proceed with an application to upgrade the school grounds in the County under the Recreation Grants

Moved that Local Representatives of Ryley and Tofield Schools form committees to deal with leveling of school grounds.

Correspondence was received from the School Buildings Board, Alberta Education, giving recognition of need as follows:

Viking Schools Add - By New Construction - Shower and dressing rooms, 1,800 sq. ft. Physical Education Office, 130 sq. ft. Plus minimal circulation space as required.

Holden Schools Add - By New Construction - Shower and dressing rooms, 800 sq. ft. Physical Education Office, 130 sq. ft.

Ryley Schools Add - By New Construction - Shower and dressing rooms, 1,800 sq. ft. Physical Education Office, 130 sq. ft.

Moved that this correspondence be received and filed; that Groves Hodgson Architects Ltd., be contacted to prepare drawings for these additions.

Moved that the School Committee approve the construction of the Ryley shower and dressing rooms on the south side of the school gymnasium as per the drawings submitted in the Statement of Need to the Department of Education

Correspondence was received from the Town of Tofield regarding the transfer of land from the town to the County of Beaver It was noted that Northwestern Utilities Ltd owns lots 18 to 20 in Block 31, Plan 5405AA, not the Town of Tofield as had been previously stated

Moved that this correspondence be received and filed that Northwestern Utilities be approached regarding the sale of lots 18 to 20 in Block 32, Plan 5405AA

Moved that the School Committee approve the appointment of Wolfgang Pade as Social Studies teacher at Ryley School for the period September 1st, 1976 to June 30th, 1977

Moved that the School Committee approve the following updating of the Policy Book regarding

1) Revised Index

2) Revised Regulation 4 010 Collective Agreement, 3) Delete Policy and Regulation 4 070 Transportation Allowance for a Teacher teaching at Bruce School, and

4) Revised Regulation 5.018 - Formal Testing Program

Moved that students must be enrolled in school before being allowed to participate in school sporting events

Moved that the School Committee approve a Staff Orientation Seminar for all new teachers

Moved that students who owe money from the previous school year not be supplied with textbooks the following year until the amount owing is paid in full

Moved that the School Committee approve the appointment of Gayle Blanchard as Drama Teacher at Tofield School for the period September 1st, 1976 to June 30th, 1977.

Correspondence was received from the County of Beaver School Bus Drivers' Association requesting that bus trips for Home Economics, Industrial Arts, Pre-Employment and Opportunity Rooms be divided equally among drivers wishing those trips.

At present one driver is assigned to drive these trips.

Moved that the School Committee receive and file this correspondence; that the present arrangement for these trips remain as at present.

Moved that the School Committee approve funds in the amount of $5,000.00 for the music program to be divided equally among the Viking, Holden, Ryley and Tofield Schools

Moved that the School Committee appoint Cr. Sears to be in charge of ballots at the 1976 Convention

Moved that the School Committee appoint the following as school bus drivers Maxie Robinson Tofield, Vivian Wilde - Ryley, Les Carruthers - Kinsella, and Glen Welsh - Kinsella

Moved that the School Committee accept the resignation of Harold Place as a Viking School bus driver.

Moved that the School Committee accept the August School Bus Supervisors' Report.

Moved that the August 30th, minutes of the County of Beaver Association of School Administrators be accepted.

Moved that the 1975-76 Report of the Superintendent of Schools to the Department of Education be accepted

Moved that H. Wilkie Attend the September 23rd meeting of School Administrators.

Horse club is formed

By Kathy Hisey

On Sept. 14th, sixteen young people and parents were present to organize a 4-H Horse Club for Ryley and Holden.

Brian Maitland gave an extensive explanation of the 4-H organization. The leader, Mrs. Bev Foss told the group what they could expect to be doing during the year. It was decided that untrained horses and stallions would not be allowed. Later on, a delicious lunch was served.

The second meeting was held on Sept. 28th at the Ben Lutz farm in Holden with 30 members attending.

A demonstration on saddling and bridling was given by Bev Foss and Agnes Hisey.

The election of officers was held: President, Lorna Grinde, Holden; vice-president, Elaine Hailbut, Holden; secretary, Moira Hisey, Ryley; treasurer, David Grinde, Holden; club reporter, Linda Mackay, Holden, and Kathy Hisey, Ryley; food committee, Lyle Albright, Holden, Michael Lutz, Holden, Karen Magneson, Ryley, and Michelle Hisey, Ryley.

To end the evening a weiner roast was enjoyed by all.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday at 8 p.m., in the Ryley School.

Tofield adopts Emergency Plan

The Town of Tofield now has an Peacetime Emergency Operations Plan, following a meeting of Town Council on September 27th.

The plan was presented to council by Stan Harbin of Alberta Disaster Services, and approved by council. The new plan replaces what used to be known as Emergency Measures, and prepares the town for almost any kind of peacetime emergency that could arse.

The proposed Tofield Community Development Plan was presented to council by Mike Sword of the Department of Municipal Affairs.

Mr Sword agreed to attend a meeting of Council scheduled for October 12th, to go over the plan in detail.

At the start of the meeting, two amendments were made to the minutes of the previous meeting's minutes.

The first amendment had directed the town's administrator, J.N. Brodie, to decy any liability, on the part of the town, for any flooding on property owned by John Sirois. Mr. Sirois had verbally claimed $2,100 in damages to his hay crop for what he claimed as the town's responsibility in flooding of his land.

The second amendment directed Sam Hulkovich to remove the old museum from its site on Block X, as no building or development permit had been applied for, or taken out.

The readings were given in a by-law which authorized the deeding of certain lands to the county of Beaver for school purposes.

M J. Nahirniak was appointed as Assistant to the Administrator, with authority to act as Secretary-Treasurer in the absence of the Administrator Mr. Nahirniak was also given authority to sign documents on behalf of the town, along with the signatures of either the mayor or deputy mayor.

Mr. Brodie was requested to draft a licensing by-law along with a property sales agreement for the next council meeting.

Councillor Christensen was named to contact Calgary Power to obtain price quotations for the necessary street lighting on 56 Avenue (new area), and on 50th Street leading to the senior citizens' home.

Mr. Brodie was asked to prepare the necessary amend-

Beavers dumped in Lloydminster

Tofield Beavers went down to their third straight defeat in the Wheatland Football League when they bowed to Lloydminster on Saturday.

Costly fumbles by the Beavers limited their scoring and was a major reason for Lloydminster's lop-sided 37-1 victory in front of their own fans.

Officials of the Tofield club were not discouraged by Saturday's lost, as they felt the team showed quite a bit of improvement in the basic fundamentals of the game against their more experienced opponents.

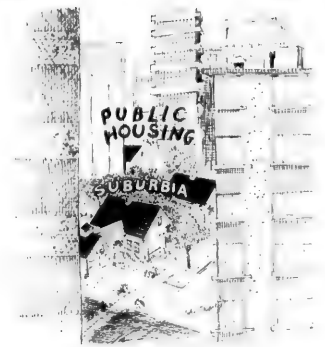
All members of the team, along with their cheerleaders, will be auctioned off on Saturday afternoon, with all being available to work for winning bidders for up to eight hours.

The auction will be held in front of Swift's Garage, starting at two o'clock.

Tofield hosted Wainwright in a league contest yesterday (Wednesday). The score of that game was not known in time to be included in this week's write-up, and will be carried next week.

Next action for the Beavers will come next Wednesday when they will host a team from Sedgewick. One week from Saturday, Tofield will be traveling to Wainwright for a return contest.

With a weekend break staring them in the face, the Beavers decided it was a good chance to improve the team's financial problems.



Squeeze Play!

Living dangerously

We found surprising a recent report from Safety Canada that a nation-wide survey over safety belts in autos showed that only in Nova Scotia is there more opposition than support for laws making seat belt use mandatory. On the whole, reports Transport Minister Otto Lang, the survey showed nearly seventy percent of Canadians favour legislation making seat belt use mandatory.

The question asked of more than 4,000 Canadians, by telephone, some 400 in each province, was innocuous enough. "If it were possible to vote for or against the passage of a law that would make the wearing of seat belts compulsory for those who drive or ride in a car, how would you vote?"

Even so, we can't help feeling the survey was rigged somehow, to give Mr. Lang the kind of answer he wanted to introduce a new bill in Parliament one of these days. It sounds silly, in the face of such a question, but the results seem to fly in the face of attitudes which have been well documented for months.

The same people being interviewed reported they presently use seat belts on about twenty eight percent of their trips, but would step that up to about seventy-eight percent if it were a legal requirement. (Which means, of course, that nearly one in every four would be breaking the law probably a higher percentage than break the speed limits.)

Interestingly, Albertans polled secured almost exactly on the national average.

Nobody who has read this paper for long should be in any doubt that it strongly advocates the use of seat belts. On a voluntary basis. But it doesn't seem proper to us that the law should force a person to protect his own safety. Quite obviously, no person has the right to endanger the lives of others. But risking life, limb and taking the chance of losing one's life seems to be a human right.

Those wealthy farmers!

NAME CHANGED

September 1976

Dear Christmas Seal friend,

We are changing our name to Alberta Lung Association from the Alberta Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, and we thought you might like to know why.

There have been dramatic changes in the status of tuberculosis since the Association was founded in Alberta. To a large extent this disease is controlled today. However it has not been eradicated and there were 246 new active cases and 22 reactivations in 1975.

In the early 40's the Association expanded to cover the whole field of respiratory illnesses, among them chronic bronchitis, emphysema and asthma. During this period the Alberta Thoracic Society was formed by physicians who had a special interest in chest diseases. This society has a very close working relationship with the Alberta Lung Association and has become the medical arm of the Association.

Respiratory disease figures continue to climb. Within the past twenty years there has been a fourfold increase in deaths from emphysema in this country. The Canadian Medical Association terms emphysema the fastest growing cause of death in Canada. Other respiratory diseases on the rise are also the Alberta Lung Association recognizes. As we go, Sidney Allerdale all things that make breathing difficult for so many.

Lung disease, air pollution and cigarette smoking are huge steps towards a goal of prevention and control of respiratory disease.

Therefore we are changing our name to Alberta Lung Association because

Final rites held for Alma Minchau

Alma Minchau died at home on Sept. 5, 1976, after a heart attack. She was 50 years, 2 months and 26 days old at her death.

Service was conducted at the Lutheran Ellnath in Bruce with Rev. H. Heinemann officiating on Sept. 8, 1976 at 2:30 p.m. Her mortal remains were laid to rest in the Bruce Cemetery there to await the call of the final resurrection.

Alma Buchholz was born on May 8, 1926 at Bruderheim, Alberta. She was received into God's Kingdom of Grace as an adult through the Sacrament of Holy Baptism on March 28, 1954.

She received her schooling in Bruderheim and at East Bruce School. On May 13, 1962, she married Arthur Minchau and resided on the farm 4½ miles north-east of Bruce, until her death.

She is survived by her husband, Arthur, and daughter Audrey Steinwand and grandchildren Robert and Loretta Steinwand.

Four older sisters, Mrs. Helda Rancke of Hudson Hope B.C., Mrs. Emma Lemp and Mrs. Martha Elvin of Wildwood and Mrs. Hertha Sjoden of Rochester, Alberta.

CARD OF THANKS

A special thank you to the pallbearers; Grant Fredricks, Rudy Koppel, Reuben Minchau, Irwin Schmidt, Stewart McMullen and William Dary.

Floral contributions from close friends and relatives were greatly appreciated as well as the many contributions made in her memory to the Immanuel Lutheran Church Fund, Bruce Agricultural Society, Bruce Cemetery Fund and the Alberta Heart Foundation as well as any other Societies.

We wish to thank everyone who helped us through our time of sorrow when we lost our wife and mother. The presence of friends and relatives was a great strength to us. A special thank you to the Ladies of the community for the lunch after the service. Also Rud Eriksen and volunteers for their help.

"What though the tempest rage, Heav'n is my home
Short is my pilgrimage,
Heav'n is my home
And time's wild wintery blast, Soon shall be overpast
I shall reach home at last,

THE ANTI-INFLATION PROGRAM

Where we are and where we're going.

After one year, the anti-inflation program is doing what it set out to do

The most important achievement has been the drop in the inflation rate. A year ago, consumer prices were rising at a rate of 10.6%. By August 1976, that rate of increase had dropped to 6.2%. This fall some unavoidable increases in energy costs and municipal taxes will affect the rate of inflation. In spite of this, the first year target of an inflation rate of no more than 8% will be met.

Increases in all forms of income – wages, salaries, fees, profits, dividends – are also being successfully restrained. On the average, prices have gone up less than wages this year. This means that most Canadians can cope a bit better, we have more buying power than we had before the program began.

The goal of the second year of the anti-inflation program is to bring inflation down even further, to no more than 6%. This can be achieved only if increases in everything slow down together.

In our kind of market economy, prices have to be able to move up and down to some extent. But the anti-inflation program does put an effective restraint on prices by controlling profit margins. In the second year, the price and profit controls are being changed to make the rules simpler and to apply restraint more fairly among different companies. They also include important incentives to encourage the investments the country needs to make the economy grow and create new jobs for Canadians. New investment credits will make allowances for company profits re-invested to boost production and productivity.

In the area of wages and salaries, the second year Guidelines limit increases to [illegible] a protection against price increases with [illegible] more added as a share of national productivity.

This Guideline is designed to protect and improve the real income of working Canadians, while bringing down the rate of inflation.

All governments are restraining their expenditures. The federal government is limiting growth in its own spending to keep it in line with the overall growth of the Canadian economy. This means that every day hard choices must be made to limit new programs and trim old ones. These choices are painful. But they have to be made if the government is to restrain its costs and avoid contributing to inflation.

Nobody likes controls. Not the people whose private decisions are affected by them. And not the governments that have to enforce them. But controls were and are needed, to bring inflation down and to assure a growing economy. The program will be terminated by the end of 1978. Until it is ended, the government is committed to making sure the controls work hard to bring about a continuing reduction in the rate of inflation.

Inflation has to be cut down to protect our personal buying power, our savings and pensions, and jobs for Canadians. If last year's spiral of many prices and incomes had continued, Canadian made products would soon be unable to compete in world markets. Imports could easily undercut goods produced and sold here at home. It's especially important for us to keep our prices and costs competitive with the United States, and on both counts the U.S. is still doing better than we are. Finally, inflation also hurts investment. And when investment goes down, unemployment goes up.

After a year of controls, inflation has come down. Progress has been made in protecting Canadian jobs and improving Canada's well-being. The success of the anti-inflation program [illegible] on the co-operation of many Canadians. With continued co-operation, we should look forward to sharing [illegible] and growing economy.

Round baler versus other systems

The round bale is the most efficient and inexpensive method of harvesting less than 500 tons of forage a year, but the stacker system is more economical for harvesting more than 500 tons.

This is the opinion expressed in a report received by Alberta Agriculture from the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food. It is based on a study carried out by New Liskeard College of Agricultural Technology in Ontario.

However, the report goes on to say that the round bale system is not suitable for all types of farming. A dairy farmer, for example, who confines his cows during the winter would find it difficult to unroll the bales for feeding in the barn. On the other hand, under a free-style system where the cows go outside, the round bales can be used quite easily.

To get an idea of the efficiency of square bale, round bale and the stack harvesting systems, those carrying out the study recorded the length of time it took to harvest 100 tons of forage, the number of men required and the rate at which the crop was harvested.

They found that 120 man-hours were required for square bales. With four or five men on the job, the harvesting time was three tons per hour. Both the round balers and the stackers required only one or two men for 30 to 40 man-hours to harvest the same volume. However, there was a difference in the harvesting rates of the round balers and the stackers. The round balers could harvest four to 12 tons per hour, while the stackers harvested six to 15 tons per hour.

Another important consideration in the efficiency of the different systems is the amount of crop lost through spoilage. Square bales stacked inside a barn, if baled at the correct moisture level, will not deteriorate appreciably. However, if they are stacked outside, losses can be extensive. Well made stacks, and 'twined' round bales stored outside have an average loss of about 5 per cent. On the other hand, 'unwined' or rolled bales can sustain losses of up to 100 per cent if left outside. Their low density allows the rain and snow to penetrate right through them.

Around the town

Recent visitors to Tofield and District were Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Lewis from Estacada, Oregon. Dale Lewis, and Mrs. Fern (Lewis) Kellerman of Gresham, Oregon. The Lewis family used to live on the south end of the late Charlie Whillans' farm. Later, they moved into Tofield. They were visitors at the Ray Whillans home here, en route going to Edmonton where they were guests of Mrs. Dorothy (Kendall) Willmore who held a re-union of former Tofield friends, for them.

Hold course for small businesses

FOR

A seminar designed primarily for operators of small businesses will be held in the Churchill Room at the Legion on November 8.

Arranged by the management services department of the Federal Business Development Bank, the course is co-sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce in Edmonton.

The case study method will be used to examine a small business, its personnel administration, management of human resources, cost controls, management controls and financial statements.

More information can be obtained from Mrs. J.M. Burgess, secretary of the Chamber.

How often you have headaches varies according to what you do for a living. A statistical survey shows that farmers suffer least - only 30 percent complain of headaches. College students top the list with 80 percent and businessmen follow closely behind with 77 percent.

How healthy is Canadian National?

Current reading of Canadian National Railway's annual report for 1975 suggest that Canada has substituted a quitwork of regulation policy - and the CN is as much the victim as the perpetrator of its own fate, writes Michael Van Dusen. The report suggests rather than says this, because CN is a crown corporation with its own political realities, which include stepping lightly on bureaucratic toes. As part of the light footwork, CN reports its overall financial result was a relatively mediocre deficit of $16.4 million for 1975. The key word is overall. It means that federal payments which were due the railway in 1975 were paid on a current basis for the first time last year instead of a year after they were due, as is usually the case. In addition, the $151.7 million due for 1974 was added to, instead of showing a bottom line deficit of $168.1 million for 1975, the railway reported a not-so-bad loss of $16.4 million. The payments recognize that CN is operating admittedly un-economic routes in the public interest

Keeping step with Lougheed

An Editorial From The Halifax Herald

There are those, among the Canadian Conference of Premiers, who believe that Alberta's Peter Lougheed is out of step on the question of the Canadian constitution

Is he?

Or could it be that he is the only one in step?

His attitude that each of the provinces, and the federal government, ought to be considered equal partners in Confederation, certainly seems to be in keeping with the spirit of the founding fathers of the country

And, we think, it makes as much sense in 1976 as it did in 1867

His response that Alberta is just as good as any other province, comes in the face of statements from most of the other premiers that they are willing to compromise their position in the councils of government.

We have seen, for example, that most of the premiers are willing, as a condition to securing some kind of an amending formula for the constitution, to allow the biggest provinces to have veto powers over them.

In order to secure an amendment to the constitution, the support of Quebec, Ontario, and Br[illegible]tish Columbia would be required.

If any other province wanted a change made, it would failer, no matter how important the issue, without the support of the big powers.

What kind of a deal is that? Until now, Canada has been made to work on a system that each province and Ottawa - 11 governments - have an equal voice in regard to constitutional matters.

It is said of Mr Lougheed that he is wrong, because he is the only premier who has insisted on unanimity in constitutional concerns.

But would he be regarded as "wrong", were he to go to his electorate in the province of Alberta, asking for a new mandate, and saying he holds that approach because he believes Albertans ought to have the same say as British Columbians, or Ontarians, or Quebecers?

Would the premier of any other province be considered "right" were he to go before the electorate of his province and say he took a different stand because he believed that Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia were better, or more important that his own people?

The suggestion is frequently made that the British North America Act "must" be domiciled in Canada and taken out of the realm of the Parliament of Westminister

Why? What harm is it doing in London? Why is it so embarrassing to some Canadians that we must ask London to amend our constitution?

Never Turned Down

It is only amended when we want it to be

London has never turned down a request for change, nor forced one upon us

Why was the act domiciled in London in the first place? It was to ensure that each and every member of the Confederation of Canada could be protected, by the British Parliament, against any attempt by any grouping of signatories - led by the provinces or by the Dominion government - which would reduce any member's status within the family

In other words, Canada elected to have Britain, as head of the Empire, to hold the constitution in trust

It is said we are sufficiently mature in Canada to avoid that kind of thing happening in this day and age.

Are we? Why, then, is Alberta worried about a federal invasion of [illegible] jurisdictional authority in the field of resources?

How come Saskatchewan has the same fear? And British Columbia, too

Why does Newfoundland feel it necessary to sue the federal government to ensure it will get its just due in regard to the ownership of off-shore mineral rights?

Why (were) the other Maritime provinces made to feel somewhat subservient to Ottawa and made to beg and coax for their rights in off-shore management?

Mature enough to run our own constitution? Why, then, does Prime Minister Trudeau feel it necessary to trample on tradition and to threaten to unilaterally petition Westminister to get the BNA Act into Canadian control?

Just as Mr Trudeau has not made a good case for insisting the constitution be brought to Canada (and pride is surely not important), neither have constitutional "reformers" made a good case by saying that Ontario, British Columbia and Quebec are more important and more deserving than the rest of us

From our point of view, it would be far better to leave the BNA Act exactly where it is, pride or no pride, rather than having a new Canadian constitution which made second-class citizens of anyone who happened to live in seven of the 10 provinces and the Yukon, and the Northwest Territories

We are all Canadians and our constitution should serve us with equal rights

Mr Lougheed, we feel, is on the right track when he asks for equality

For equality is precisely what the Canadian Confederation is all about

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

They say a wife can be pretty persuasive, but I should have known that my female powers weren't up to par when my husband suggested I learn to mix joint cement. Which explains perhaps how I got my foot stuck in the toilet bowl and my blouse full of cement.

"We should really get the taping and plastering done in that downstairs bathroom," my husband remarked one morning.

"If it's going to be done properly, we had better hire someone." I replied.

"You are not going to hire someone to put up a few strips of tape and smack up some joint cement," he said, I am perfectly capable of mixing a few portions of cement and spreading it."

The joints to be filled and taped were normal everyday joints: none were gaping crevaces Simple enough.

"You should have one of those things that go round and round," I said.

"We don't need a cement mixer for this little job," he said, "find me a big bowl and get a pitcher of water. Bring it all outside."

"It's snowing."

"Alright, we'll do it in the kitchen."

"Then you'll cook your own Sunday dinner."

"Okay, we'll make a type of cement mixer," he said and mix up the cement in the bathroom, he said.

It was a good idea, in fact, I think it has commercial possibilities

He took a large plastic garbage can, cleaned it out, and dumped a sack of joint cement inside

"We'll need it runny, so we'll mix in about two gallons of water"

He then clamped the garbage lid on, tipped the can at an angle and started to roll it around the adequate but tiny bathroom. The mix made a gentle, almost soothing sound as it sloshed around. About then, an old disc injury in his back began to ache.

"Watch where you're going," I yelled as he backed into the vanity. I reached to break his fall, jumped to miss the matter rolling and somehow lost my footing in the toilet bowl. The lid came off the garbage can and a large glob of wet cement rested on my chest.

"You see how that was done?" he asked, picking me from the floor, after pulling my foot from the toilet bowl.

My sixth sense stopped me from saying, "No, let's see it one more time." I said I had about figured out what amount of water was to be used and how the mix was to be stirred.

"Good, you'll find spreading the mixture is almost as simple; I'll show you."

"Forget it," I said, "Let me try, if I run into problems I'll call you."

"I know you think me sloppy, but I still think the basic idea is sound. Imagine what a hundred husbands, with a hundred wives could do with a hundred garbage cans full of joint cement! Great public works could be finished at a fraction of the present cost, and with no strikes by unions.

I think I'll put that to council.

That could be you!

Are you interested in earning a little extra money and having fun at the same time?

If you are over 18 and out of school, you could be part of a badminton, volleyball, basketball, Keep Fit, etc group in your area.

We need mature, responsible people to supervise activities, collect registration fees and be responsible to the Regional Recreation Office

Let us know now! We are organizing our athletics for the beginning of November

As everyone is busy with their fall work, I realize no one has had time to organize their basketball or other recreation teams

The deadline for basketball teams has, therefore, been extended one week - to Friday, October 15

"AGRICULTURE" - if you eat you're involved."

All Albertans are involved in Agriculture either as consumers or as working members of the industry which provides two out of three jobs in the province. October 4-8 is Agriculture Week in Alberta

Agricultural land is one of our greatest resources Because of the prime Agricultural land at her disposal, Alberta has developed one of the most productive agricultural economies in the world In 1975 Alberta produced 30 percent of the total Canadian Agricultural output, with less than 6 percent of the country's population

Alberta produces many varied food products from beef to honey to eggs to carrots

Many food products are completely processed for the consumer here in Alberta Try Alberta cheese or Alberta French Fries as an example Look for Alberta products in the supermarket and have a taste of Alberta

If you have a tablespoon or so of pumpkin pie filling left over try,

PUMPKIN DELIGHT
(one serving)

2-3 tablespoons of commercial pumpkin pie filling (or make your own: 2-3 tablespoons of cooked pumpkin, 1 teaspoon of sugar and a dash of pumpkin pie spice) 1 glass of ice cold milk

Combine ingredients and mix in blender or stir well. Serve!

PUMPKINSHAKE DELIGHT - Add one scoop of ice cream and make a milkshake

Mrs. Ellen Eaton

INTENDED FOR LAST WEEK

Mrs. Blanche Goodair of Marwayne spent from Sept. 22nd until Sept. 30th at the homes of her daughters Mrs Deanna Nelson and Mrs Gail MacAdam and made the acquaintance of Gail's and Ron's new baby girl.

Sept 30th visitors at the home of Ron and Gail MacAdams were Ron's parents, Wes and Margaret MacAdam and daughter Sandra of Marwayne

Visitors at the home of Mrs. Ellen Eaton for the weekend of Sept. 25th were as follows, her 2 grandsons, Don Eaton and his wife Marlene and baby Don Owen; Brian Eaton, her granddaughter, Karen Eaton and Ken Smith (Marlene's brother), all of Fort McMurray who spent from Sept. 23rd to Sept. 26th, then Ellen's son, Walter Eaton and Barry Holmstrom, also of Fort Mc Murray, arrived on Sept. 24th and stayed until Sept. 30th when all left to go back to their homes. Walter and son, Brian, went to Tomahawk where he picked up Walter's wife, Evelyn, at the home of her parents, before returning home Monday morning.

Mrs Bertha Seale of Calgary (a former Lakeshore resident) was a visitor at the home of Mrs. Vi Goeglien from Sept. 27 to 29. She was visiting her sister, Mrs. Edith Everill in Edmonton, before returning to Calgary.

Mrs. Mary Todd and grandchildren, Cathy and Ted Wood, were visitors at the home of Mary's daughter, Mrs Lorene Francis and family at Viking from Sept. 24 to 26th., and while there, they attended the school graduation of Lorene's son, Leigh and daughter, Pat (Mary's granddaughter)

Mrs Ellen Eaton accompanied Mrs. Edith Lancaster, Mrs. Mary Ahberg, Mrs. Jean Otten, Mrs. Myrtle Nerland and Mrs Stratton of Edmonton on Sept. 24th where they attended the White Heather Show in the Jubilee Auditorium in the evening.

Brian Eaton and 2 friends Jack Wylie and Richard Cochrane, all of Fort McMurray arrived on Sept. 28th at the home of Brian's grandmother, Mrs Ellen Eaton. Jack and Richard returned home Saturday by bus, Brian remaining on the farm for awhile.

Doug Niemetz and friend Wendy Dobson of Edmonton, were weekend visitors at the home of Doug's parents, Charlie and Mickey Niemetz.

Charlie and Mickey Niemetz were visitors at the home of Mickey's sister, Emily and Ernie Roberge in Edmonton on Friday afternoon

Howard and Mae Ferguson were Monday guests at the home of Howard's sister, Mickey and Charlie Niemetz. After dinner, Charlie and Mickey took them on a tour of Lamont and district, then through Chipman and district and back home.

Clarence Phillips and young son, Lenny and Clarence's brother, Lloyd Phillips, all of Edmonton, were Saturday afternoon visitors at the home of their cousin, Mrs. Ellen Eaton.

Ellen Eaton was among 24 senior citizens and members of the Tofield Golden club who went to Edmonton on Saturday where they visited Mutart's Conservatory and the Archives building and Museum. There they had intended going to Fort Edmonton but rain started falling soon after arriving in Edmonton,and continued throughout the day, spoiling any outdoor sightseeing.

Rain and snow has once again halted harvesting after a couple of weeks of perfect harvesting weather. Heavy frost hit the district Sunday night following the snowstorm and more is forecast. It will be several days before harvesting can continue again.

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA (CP) — We are now a little more than two weeks away from the Canadian Labor Congress Day of National Protest over the government's wage and price control program.

It's a power play of enormous proportions, by the CLC. Officially the CLC is asking Canadians to join organized labor on Oct. 14 in walking off their jobs to pressure the government into withdrawing the wage control program.

But those who have attended the meetings between cabinet and labor leaders claim that the CLC has spent little of the meeting time discussing withdrawal of controls.

Instead labor leaders have talked behind closed doors about the structure of Canadian society which will emerge when controls are finally removed, and Mr. Trudeau can once again tell the nation he has wrestled inflation to the ground.

Government quite rightly is concerned about the terrible record of man-days lost due to strikes in the Canadian economy. The solution being examined will include new labor laws in the post-controls era, and the construction of a commission, or a series of commissions, with management, labor, and government in a tripartite configuration to solve labor disputes short of the ultimate strike weapon.

Mr. Trudeau, who loves to polarize issues, sees government left in the balance position between labor and management, with greatly enhanced economic power. The CLC, which until a few years ago was nothing more than a loose body representing all labor, would like the actual power as well as the nominal power, of being the sole labor representative.

In order to gain government agreement to a CLC dominant role, Canadian labor leaders may well be ready to form some sort of loose alliance with the federal Liberals.

Mr. Trudeau's party is down deeper in the Gallup Poll dumps than any previous government, and such an alliance would be highly desirable. The CLC may discover that some of the nation's largest unions, the steelworkers, the auto workers, and the public service unions, don't like the idea of assigning individual power to a central leadership.

That's what will happen if the object of the exercise becomes blatantly public, and that's why the CLC first wants to demonstrate it has muscle by calling a "day of national protest."

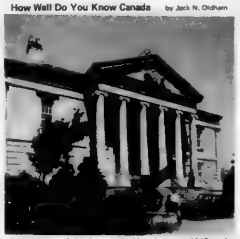
How Well Do You Know Canada

by Jack N. Oldham



Construction of this historic building began in 1847, and it is located in the capital of Canada's newest province. What is it?

ANSWER: This is the Colonial Building which served as the home of Newfoundland's legislature for nearly a century. It was replaced in the seat of government when the Confederation Building was constructed. Newfoundland became Canada's tenth province in 1949.

Unilateral Fishing Declaration takes hold

Foreign fleets scooping up the majority of fish off Canada's coasts may be in for a rough time. Ottawa announced it will unilaterally extend the fisheries management zone off both coasts to 200 miles, from 12 miles, in January, 1977. On the East Coast, overfishing by foreign fleets has reduced catches by more than 50 percent during the past six or seven years. Newfoundland and Nova Scotia have been pressing Ottawa for years to extend the fishing limit. As of Jan. 1, 1977, Armed Forces fishing patrols will be doubled. Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc, through threat and persuasion, has negotiated bilateral agreements with many of the countries operating about 800 vessels off Atlantic Canada. These deals, specify that foreign vessels can take only "fish surplus to Canada's needs." And that phrase has caused some confusion. The key to a return to reasonable catch levels is an overall reduction of fishing efforts in the North Atlantic. At present, fishing off Atlantic Canada is controlled by the 18-nation International Commission on Northwest Atlantic Fisheries. Officials in all four Atlantic Provinces suggest catches by foreign vessels should be chopped by more than 50 percent, allowing fish stocks to build up over a five to seven year period.

Hanged by mistake

AMONG the more fascinating items of the "wild west" days in American history were the epitaphs written on tombstones. Some were humorous, others were very heartless and a few gave a deep insight into the human behavior of those involved. They have shown that man's nature hasn't changed much, if at all, since his appearance on earth.

Several of the more terse and memorable ones read as follows:

"Murdered"

"Killed by Comanche Indians"

"Scalped in this knick."

"Shot from Ambush by the Local sheriff - Jay Jones"

"Run over by a stage-coach"

"Crushed by a stampede"

But, of all the epitaphs that I have seen, read or heard about, none compare to the one chiselled on a gravestone located in Tombstone, Arizona, which simply read "Hanged by mistake."

In its heyday Tombstone, Arizona, like any city on a growing and expanding country, was rough and tough; somewhat lawless, inhabited by hearty men seeking their fortunes in the frontier of a new world.

As to be expected in such primitive environs, a certain type of enforcement was necessary to preserve a semblance of sanity among the more law abiding citizens. When the official law enforcers failed at their given task, vigilante groups sprang up everywhere in order to cope with the mounting crime wave. At times, these men were controlled by blind passions. Their human reasoning failed. Their raw emotions were loosed. As a result what little law did prevail was completely ignored. Tragic mistakes were made.

"Hanged by mistake" was the grim inscription upon that cold monument of stone. No one will ever know what heartache and bitterness was unleashed within the loved ones of that person. And, even if that human being had no one to call his own, the sheer remembrance within the minds of those who perpetrated such a crime should cause even the most callous to cringe in guilt and sorrow.

Today, despite what some scientists call the continual growth in the goodness of mankind, we are constantly made aware through personal tragedies and via the mass media's reporting that, even today, people are "hanged by mistake," if not in the literal sense, surely in the figurative sense.

Whatever wars are raging, the guiltless are caught in the crossfire. Whether it be Ireland, the Middle East or just a gang war in one of the metropolitan areas of North America, the innocent suffer. The irrationality of man, the hardness of his heart, take expression in the wanton killing of helpless children and adults. The blameless are always the victims while it seems the ruthless escape unscathed.

In the daily diary of human-kind the horror of one ugly tragedy is not diminished before there is another pitiful story to add to the catalogue of human sadness. The heart-rending tales bombard our senses until those with pure motives and rational behavior are left limp with spiritual and physical exhaustion.

Not only does the fateful epitaph of "hanged by mistake" relate to the physical destruction of another human being, but it can be applied to the devastation wrought by the vicious tongue as it seeks to destroy by lies and innuendoes the character of a defenseless individual. Such conversations far outnumber the literal type. People are quick to speak evil of others. Pursuing a Christian or humane course of action never enters their thought processes. Such persons are the leeches of our society who feed upon the "quick hanging" of anyone whom they feel deserves their wrath. Such uncontrolled tongue wagging leaves its own kind of debris and pollution within this world?

"Hanged by mistake". What an epitaph for our world today! What a calamity of spirit! What revulsion within the minds of those who are just! What an irreversible debacle! No, recalling the moment of killing. No amount of restitution can reclaim the life destroyed. No output of tears can nullify the obscenity committed.

If we have been guilty of "hanging by mistake" the pattern will continue, for within the wicked part of man is that desire to live by the annihilation of others. The power to change such a condition can only come by letting on to a greater source of power which will give us a sane approach to matters - less quick to judge - more ready to listen.

Only God's Son, Jesus Christ, can give us pure motives and right perspectives and save us from being guilty of causing that torturous epitaph "Hanged by mistake."

Progressive Farming

EROSION PROBLEMS FOR BLACK SOILS

Very few people like wind and even fewer like blowing dust. However there is nothing we can do about it once soil starts to blow; the only thing that will stop wind erosion is rainfall, a drop in the wind, or in some cases, working the soil to bring lumpy material to the surface.

But instead of attempting to cure this problem it is more beneficial to the farmer to attempt to prevent the occurance of wind and water erosion. Thus the farmer should examine their farming techniques carefully and consider these questions:

1. Does the cropping program allow soil organic matter to remain at a sufficiently high level to protect the soil from erosion either by wind or water?

2. Is the straw being burned rather than being worked back into the soil?
Is it being partially used for feed or bedding?

3 Is land worked to such a condition in the fall that there is little or no trash or lumpy material on the surface to hold the snow or protect against erosion?

4 Are too many crops which add little to the soils organic matter being grown (rapeseed for example)?

5 Should more forage crops like sweet clover) be grown to permit a build up of organic matter that protects soil from erosion and improves subsequent productivity?

As it stated by Stan Beacom, Director of Agriculture, Canada's research station at Melfort Saskatchewan, it is time all of us who manage productive agricultural land realized the responsibilities we have to maintain this precious natural resource in a highly productive state. Coming generations will need it to sustain their standard of living at a level similar to ours and continue to provide food at a reasonable cost to a hungry world. Beacom then concludes that the technology is available to prevent soil erosion so let us use it now before it is too late

4-H'ers wanted

Farmfair '76 reports it needs a number of 4-H members for the Calf Scramble at the Canadian Finals Rodeo.

Needed are fifteen members at each of four performances from Nov 10 to 13. At each of these performances, five calves will be turned loose in the arena and the 4-H members will have eight minutes to try to catch a calf.

Successful entrants must keep their calf and feed it for the market animal class a year later.

Any interested 4-H'ers can get information by phoning Leroy Emerson at 674-5451. Mr Emerson, who is livestock and agriculture manager, writes that "we could use a good many more contestants".

Wartime women's band has its first reunion

. . . Tofield lady attends

The Canadian Women's Army Corps Pipe Band held a reunion last month (September) in Saskatoon, and a Tofield women was one of the ladies to attend.

Mrs. Marie Fairbrother of Tofield RR4 was a member of Canada's only wartime women's pipe band which disbanded in 1946, after triumphant appearances entertaining troops and civilians in war-torn Europe.

The CWAC reunion in Saskatoon was the first time the group had gotten together since they had disbanded over thirty years ago, and for most of them, it was the first time they had seen each other since disbanding.

Twenty-six women from the original group of thirty-six gathered for the reunion to hear tributes from Saskatchewan's Lt. Governor George Porteous, and other important dignitaries.

In a moving speech, the Lt. Governor referred to the band's two important tours of Canada during the war years, recruiting women for the service to replace men who had gone to fight overseas.

Mrs. Lillian Davis, Pipe Major of the CWAC Pipe Band, recalled when the group was organized in Victoria in 1942, their Canadian tours, a tour of the United States, their duty overseas, and their final appearance together as a band, when they greeted returning troops in Halifax in February, 1946.

One of the memorable moments for the band came in Paris on November 10, 1945 when George Vanier, Canada's ambassador to France, asked them to play in an impromptu parade down the Champs Elysees.

It was a thrilling experience for the Canadians, as it was later estimated that over 250,000 people watched them that day, as they proceeded down the famous street, did a slow march around the Arc de Triomphe, and then had to play another half hour in the Tuileries Gardens before being allowed to stop.

It was an exciting time, and the reunion served to bring back many fond memories for twenty-six women who served their country well in time of need.

Festival Committee plans meet in Bruce

The next meeting of the Arts and Crafts, Music and Drama Committee has been scheduled for Bruce on Monday night.

The committee decided to hold the meeting in Bruce to try and improve attendance from the eastern half of the county. Monday's meeting will be held in the school, and will commence at eight o'clock.

The committee was told that the 1977 Arts, Crafts, Music and Drama Festival dates have been set for April 15, 16 and 17.

Jim Robertshaw of the Performing Arts Branch of the Alberta Culture Department attended the last meeting of the committee which was held on September 27th.

Mr Robertshaw gave a talk and passed out information on the basic purposes of the Performing Arts Branch, relating this information as it applied to the County of Beaver.

In discussing the 1977 Festival, the committee decided to look into the possibility of selling advance tickets, bringing in a guest performer, holding a raffle, and doing a more complete job of advertising.

September's meeting was chaired by George Baker. Others in attendance included Val Charteris, Bertha Winzer, Martha Whitson, Muriel Otto, Vicky Field, Eileen Hartman, Faye Halkovich, and Barbara Tessier.

Beavers lose 4th straight

Tofield Beavers went down to their fourth straight defeat in the Wheatland Football League last week, when they were walloped by Wainwright.

Despite their winless record to date, the Beavers still have a chance to earn a playoff berth, if they could come up with victories in their remaining games. Beavers were to have hosted Sedgewick in a game yesterday (Wednesday). Results were not available in time for publication and will be printed next week.

The final two games of the regular schedule for the Beavers are away from home. On Saturday they travel over to Wainwright, and wind up their regular schedule with a game in Sedgewick on October 23rd.

In last Wednesday's game, in Tofield, Wainwright whipped the home team by a score of 56-15.

Doug Nachtigal and Ed Donan scored the Tofield touchdowns. Again, an inconsistent offence prevented the team from picking up more scoring points.

Team officials are not discouraged by the team's showing to date, as they are well aware of the fact that the team is composed of rookies playing in a league that has many players with considerable experience.

In order to raise money to offset some of the financial problems, the team held a slave auction on Saturday.

Despite a poor turnout, the sale did make money, as the players were mainly purchased by their parents, who showed up to assist the squad.

PTA sees film

The film, "The 3 R's", a controversial item which has been shown on WS on two occasions, was shown at the first meeting of the Tofield PTA for the 1976-77 school term.

Following the showing of the film, those in attendance broke up into discussion groups, asking the question "Where do we want educati on to go?"

The general feeling of the meeting seemed to be that there should be more stress on the three R's, with fewer options being offered, and more discipline shown.

Discussions created so much attention that members were asked to give the matter additional thought, and bring forward further suggestions at the next regular meeting.

The next major project planned by the Tofield PTA will be a "Meet the Teacher-Parent" night.

This night will be held in the Tofield School on Tuesday starting at 8:00 p.m. with all parents being urged to attend.

Graduate

Brenda Lynn Stefiszyn was a recent graduate of the U of A School of Nursing. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stefiszyn of Deville. She was born in Tofield, raised on a farm in Deville, and attended Ardrossan School, and is now employed at Tofield Hospital.

Wartime women's band has its first reunion

. . . Tofield lady attends

The Canadian Women's Army Corps Pipe Band held a reunion last month (September) in Saskatoon, and a Tofield woman was one of the ladies to attend.

Mrs Marie Fairbrother of Tofield RR4 was a member of Canada's only wartime women's pipe band which disbanded in 1946, after triumphant appearances entertaining troops and civilians in wartorn Europe

The CWAC reunion in Saskatoon was the first time the group had gotten together since they had disbanded over thirty years ago, and for most of them, it was the first time they had seen each other since disbanding.

Twenty-six women from the original group of thirty-six gathered for the reunion to hear tributes from Saskatchewan's Lt. Governor George Porteous, and other important dignitaries.

In a moving speech, the Lt. Governor referred to the band's two important tours of Flanders during the war years, recruiting women for the service to replace men who had gone to fight overseas.

Mrs. Lillian Davis, Pipe Major of the CWAC Pipe Band, recalled when the group was organized in Victoria in 1942, their Canadian tours, a tour of the United States, their duty overseas, and their final appearance together as a band, when they greeted returning troops in Halifax in February, 1946.

One of the memorable moments for the band came in Paris on November 10, 1945 when George Vanier, Canada's ambassador to France, asked them to play in an impromptu parade down the Champs Elysees.

It was a thrilling experience for the Canadians, as it was later estimated that over 250,000 people watched them that day, as they proceeded down the famous street, did a slow march around the Arc de Triomphe, and the.. had to play another half hour in the Tuileries Gardens before being allowed to stop.

It was an exciting time, and the reunion served to bring back many fond memories for twenty-six women who served their country well in time of need.

Festival Committee plans meet in Bruce

The next meeting of the Arts and Crafts, Music and Drama Committee has been scheduled for Bruce on Monday night.

The committee decided to hold the meeting in Bruce to try and improve attendance from the eastern half of the county. Monday's meeting will be held in the school, and will commence at eight o'clock.

The committee was told that the 1977 Arts, Crafts, Music and Drama Festival dates have been set for April 15, 16 and 17.

Jim Robertshaw of the Performing Arts Branch of the Alberta Culture Department attended the last meeting of the committee which was held on September 27th.

Mr Robertshaw gave a talk and passed out information on the basic purposes of the Performing Arts Branch, relating this information as it applied to the County of Beaver.

In discussing the 1977 Festival, the committee decided to look into the possibility of selling advance tickets, bringing in a guest performer, holding a raffle, and doing a more complete job of advertising.

September's meeting was chaired by George Baker. Others in attendance included Val Charteris, Bertha Winsor, Martha Whitson, Muriel Otto, Vicky Field, Eileen Hartman, Faye Hulkovich, and Barbara Turner

Beavers lose 4th straight

Tofield Beavers went down to their fourth straight defeat in the Wheatland Football League last week, when they were walloped by Wainwright

Despite their winless record to date, the Beavers still have a chance to earn a playoff berth, if they could come up with victories in their remaining games Beavers were to have hosted Sedgewick in a game yesterday (Wednesday) Results were not available in time for publication and will be printed next week

The final two games of the regular schedule for the Beavers are away from home On Saturday they travel over to Wainwright, and wind up their regular schedule with a game in Sedgewick on October

In last Wednesday's game, in Tofield, Wainwright whipped the home team by a score of 54-15.

Doug Nachtigal and Ed Donnan scored the Tofield touchdowns Again, an inconsistent offence prevented the team from picking up more scoring points

Team officials are not discouraged by the team's showing to date, as they are well aware of the fact that the team is comprised of rookies playing in a league that has many players with considerable experience

In order to raise money to offset some of the financial problems, the team held a slave auction on Saturday

Despite a poor turnout, the sale did make money, as the players were mainly purchased by their parents, who showed up to assist the squad.

PTA sees film

The film, "The 3 R's", a controversial item which has been shown on WS on two occasions, was shown at the first meeting of the Tofield PTA for the 1976-77 school term.

Following the showing of the film, those in attendance broke up into discussion groups, asking the question "Where do we want educati on to go?"

The general feeling of the meeting seemed to be that there should be more stress on the three R's, with fewer options being offered, and more discipline shown.

Discussions created so much attention that members were asked to give the matter additional thought, and bring forward further suggestions at the next regular meeting.

The next major project planned by the Tofield PTA will be a "Meet the Teacher-Parent" night.

This night will be held in the Tofield School on Tuesday starting at 8:00 p.m. with all parents being urged to attend.

Uncontrollable virus!

Illogical

Of all the discussions heard recently, surely some of the most illogical arguments have been advanced in developing October 14 as a day of protest scheduled by the Canadian Labor Congress in its opposition to the government's Anti-Inflation Wage and Price Control program.

Surely the CLC would have been better advised in using its energies in trying to find ways to assist the government in taking the heat out of inflation, in order to give its members a greater feeling of security and stability, rather than insisting the fires be allowed to roar rampant and out of control.

Surely the federal minister of labor, Hon. John Munro, makes himself ridiculous when he urges employers not to be offended if their workers shut down operations, but expect to be paid for the day. In suggesting that employers look the other way, he's actually urging defiance of the legislation of his own government, and should have been publicly disciplined by his Prime Minister.

Surely the Alberta Federation of Labor can't be serious when it urges the public not to buy anything on that particular day. For one thing, if no-one tried to make any purchases whatever, it might never be noticed how effective (or ineffective) the withdrawal of labor had become.

It's interesting how many other positions are being taken in regards to the day of protest. Such as the general agreement of the teaching profession to offer moral support (can't buy much with that) but not to withdraw services. Or the decision of a group of student bodies not to request students to walk out that day. Or the decision a few days ago of a group of small employers, with perhaps a couple of hundred employees, to apply the principle of the timeclock to their workers- -those who reported for work would be paid, those who did not, would not.

The message should be loud and clear. No-one should deny the right of any worker to stage a lawful protest, or to withhold his services. And equally, no one should deny the right of the same worker to endure the consequences of his own action.

The whole thing might be seen more clearly by reversing the situation, and asking how much support could be generated if the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, or the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, felt moved to protest against spiralling wages and unit costs, and urged employers across this broad land to withhold one full day's pay from all employees, as a means of indicating their concern, even though requiring eight hours of work during the same day

My visit to the U.S.A.

by
DON MAZANKOWSKI, M.P.

One of the advantages of visiting another country is that it gives one the opportunity o make comparisons. On my recent journey to the United States the nature and format of our visit provided an excellent framework for comparing the political system there with the one which exists in Canada.

The first glaringly obvious conclusion that I reached was that we in Canada have a superior apparatus for holding Federal elections.

The myriad of laws, rules and regulations which vary from state to state and even county to county, together with the abscence of a uniform national registration procedure, is most bewildering. What's more, the fact that the U.S. is looked upon as something of a pivot of democracy in the world leads one to anticipate a system providing a superior level of fairness and equitability The Americans defend their system, however, in most cases basing their argument on the fact that State rights and sovereignty in the area of election procedure are not only traditional but fundamental.

In a Presidential or Congressional election, for example, each state administers its own election in other words, each state send its representatives to Washington - including the President - on the basis of its own state laws. It becomes obvious, in terms of elections anyway, that the U.S.A. is a loose federation of States

Every state administers its own election process, from the primaries up to the deliberations of the Electoral College which is the final analysis formally chooses the President The procedure is governed first of all by a State Election Commission. In turn, each county or municipality has a Board of Elections which administers and polices all elections in that area On general election day, in addition to voting for President, people in a given district could be voting for State Governor, State Legislative Representative, Congressman, Senator, Mayor, District Attorney, County Court Judge, etc all at the same time Hence, a person must be well informed of the vacancies to be filled as well as those aspiring to fill them.

In order to vote, each citizen must register with the local Board of Elections In most states, this requires one to appear before the Board and formally declare their elugibility However, some states have recently introduced a system whereby regsitration can be done by mail This process, which does not require one to appear before the Board, is more convenient and results in a higher percentage of voters registering Predominantly though, the majority of states and counties still use the old system Regsitration necessitates a great deal of effort and inconvenience as registration facilties may not be conveniently located, and hence it is not uncommon for would be voters to say, "why should I lose a half-day's pay to get downtown to register?" This partially explains the low registration and low voter turnout for U.S. elections. The effect is especially great amongst the less-affluent, the underprivileged, and the ethnic minorities For example, in 1974 just over 50 per cent of all blacks of voting age were registered and only about one-third to one-half of these actually voted. This phenomenon is spreading to an increasingly large percentage of the electorate. Recent surveys indicate a very high number of "drop-outs" coming from the more educated, more affluent, and more disillusioned voters.

One suspects that the impact of Watergate and other scandals has been a major factor in the rise in voter apathy

Most observers with whom we discussed voter registration agreed that the system was overly passive and did in fact serve to discriminate against certain classes of citizens On the other hand, mainly from the political figures, it was pointed out that voting in America has always been, and still should be, considered a privilege rather than a right. If one is not disposed to put forth some effort and sacrifice, and if one is not aware of the procedure or the issues and does little to become aware, then they do not deserve to vote. Given this attitude and the entrenchment of state laws in the electoral process, the chances for electoral reform seem very slim.

In my view the frustration of participating in the election process has also been a major contributor to the fall-off in voter interest. So obvious is the voter apathy in America this year that surveys indicate a strong possibility that for the first time in over 50 years a majority of eligible Americans will not vote in the Presidential election

I should point out as well that when a person registers to vote in the U.S., he declares his political preferences as either Republican, Democrat, Independent or other In order to become a member of a particular party he must be so declared Thus, there is no party membership per se, only a declaration on one's Voter Registration Form This is important from the standpoint of participating in the primaries as only bona-fide declared Democrats can vote for a Democratic primary candidate and only bona-fide declared Republicans for a Republican one The fact that one is registered as a Democrat, however, does not mean that he must vote for Democratic candidates on election day He still has the chance to exercise his right to a secret vote. Currently, of those who are registered to vote, 44 per cent are registered Democrats, 21 per cent are registered Republicans and 28 per cent Independent.

Farmfair '76 has local participants

Area men will play prominent roles when Farmfair '76 is held next month (November) at the Edmonton Exhibition Grounds.

Gotthold Reich of Bashaw will join a distinguished panel of judges for the cattle competitions while Otto Streberg will be selling cattle.

Mr. Reich will be one of ten men from Alberta to join forces with representatives from four other provinces and two states of the United States who will determine the winners in the different cattle competitions

The well-known Bashaw cattle breeder will be judging in the Aberdeen Angus competition. Other judges that would be known locally include Garry Latimer of Olds, Doug Bisnett of Millet, and Doug Havens of Crossfield.

Mr. Streberg of Camrose Auction will be joined by Dave Hutten of St. Paul in selling cattle from Gelbvieh, Blonde D'Aquitaine, and Maine-Anjou breeds.

The cattle shows will be held in Edmonton Gardens while the sales will be staged in the Sales Pavilion.

Farmfair '76 is an annual event sponsored by the Edmonton Exhibition Association, and is held in conjunction with the Canadina Finals Rodeo.

Agriculture goes Metric starting next February

Canadian grain sales and purchases are going metric, February 1, 1977, the official date of conversion for the grain trade and feed industry.

Even before that date, livestock producers may be buying feeds in kilogram bags or metric tonnes. The feed industry will begin to convert October 1, 1976. Feed products will be sold in five, 10, 20, 25, 40 and 50 kilogram bags, replacing the sizes currently in use.

Metric conversion will not effect feed composition or require adjustment of automatic feeders. Producers will still be able to use existing feeding equipment.

Alfalfa yields

Irrigated alfalfa yields increase by a ton of dry matter an acre and hay quality also improves when the crop is harvested three times a year instead of two, says forage specialist M.R. Hanna at Agriculture Canada's Lethbridge, Alta., Research Station.

But the higher yields and better quality must be balanced against the risks of a third hay cut in October and the added harvesting costs, Dr. Hanna Cautions.

Mrs. G.H. Taylor

Mrs. Carrie Gibson spent a few days last week visiting with her son, Arthur in Camrose, returning home on Thursday morning.

Mrs. Ethel Brekstad drove to Edmonton with Doris and Arthur Barry, who had been visiting with her for a few days, a week ago Sunday, and visited with friends for a few days, returning home on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs Brian Taylor and family of St. Albert visited with his parents, Mr and Mrs G.H. Taylor, during the holiday weekend.

Steve Lukian was taken to the hospital last Friday as he had not been feeling too well for a couple of days.

The Pioneer Group met Thursday afternoon for their regular meeting with nine ladies being present, at the home of Mrs. Beth Campbell.

Devotions were taken by Ilke Campbell. The minutes of the last meeting held in June at the home of Mrs. Charles Zwierschke were read and approved. The ladies were advised that a turkey dinner was to be held at Tofield November 3rd and the Holden U.C.W would be holding their turkey supper Dec. 5th. A chapter in the study book "A Man called Peter" was read and discussed. The meeting was closed with a hymn and the Mizpah Benediction repeated in unison. A lunch was then served. Mrs. Nichols and Mrs. Carlson assisting and an hour of fellowship was enjoyed.

The next meeting, November 4th will be held at the home of Mrs. G.H. Taylor and the Friendship Group will meet for their meeting, Oct. 21st at the home of Miss June Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zwierschke had their daughter, Norma and granddaughter of Vancouver, B.C visiting with them for three days at the Thanksgiving holiday.

Visiting the past week with Lars Rilland at Vialta Lodge were Otto Hurum, Lloyd Clark, E Medby and Mrs. Olive Good.

Jim and Laurie Budd have been visiting the past week with Jim's sister, Linda and family, Mr. and Mrs. May in Ottawa, making the trip by plane.

Mr. and Mrs Alfred Gibson were visiting with his father, A.L. Gibson, at Vialta Lodge.

Mrs. Gwen Hooper's mother, Mrs. Phena Evans, a resident at Vialta Lodge, was a patient in Viking Hospital for several days.

Dennise and Jim Warara of Red Water, and Judy and Gene Danisk and children of Lodge were visiting with the girls' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Good and sister and family, the Jim Luskas, for the Thanksgiving weekend holiday.

Mr and Mrs. Bruce Budd were Sunday dinner guests with their son, Tom and his wife in Edmonton, who also had Joan's family there for Thanksgiving dinner.

A former old-time resident of Holden, Mrs. Miriam Campbell (the former Miriam Kemp) of the Rosalind District passed away Sunday evening at the age of 76 years. She had been in poor health for some time but, was home until the day before she passed away when she had been taken to the hospital and passed away in a coma.

Gary Sorensen and his daughter, Lisa of Oroville, Wash., who had been visiting for a couple of weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sorensen, left for home the end of last week.

New stamps for Christmas

Postmaster General J J Blais recently announced three new Christmas stamps will be released for sale on November 1.

The stamps, available in 8-, 10-, and 16-cent denominations, all feature stained glass windows of the Nativity scene. The windows shown on the 8- and 16 cent stamps are in St Michael's Cathedral in Toronto, Ontario and the church of St Jude, London, Ontario, respectively. The third is from a window designed by Yvonne Williams, a Canadian artist, who still owns the window.

Nearly 200 million stamps will be printed which will be working from the designs prepared by Bernard Reklander of the Post Office.

In making his announcement, Mr Blais commented on the choice of stained glass windows for the stamps. "I don't think a more fitting theme could have been chosen for our Christmas stamps. Despite the strident commercialism now associated with the season, Christmas is still a time of spiritual renewal and revitalization. And I think stained glass windows symbolize the true essence of Christmas."

New Norway will host cross country

New Norway School will be hosting the Knee high school cross country race meet on Friday afternoon.

The meeting will start and finish at Ross' Flats Campground with action expected to get underway at one o'clock.

There will be six classes of competition as there are junior, senior and open categories for both girls and boys. Distances covered in the races run from 1500 metres for junior and senior girls, up to 6,000 metres in the boys' open.

The top twelve in each category will advance to the provincial finals which will be held in Fort Saskatchewan on Saturday, October 23rd.

Book of Hebrews in CLBI study

A series of night classes on the Book of Hebrews begin at CLBI, Monday, October 17th at 7:30 p.m. They will run until 9:00 each evening, and continue each Monday thereafter through December 13th.

The teacher will be Pastor Arnold Hagen, president of The Canadian Lutheran Bible Institute. Pastor Hagen is in his fifteenth year as president of the school. He continues to be intrigued by the uniqueness of Jesus Christ as set forth in the book of Hebrews.

There is a registration fee for the course. An exam will be offered at the conclusion for those desiring to take the course for credit. Inquiries are invited at the school office prior to class beginning. People may register at the first class period on Monday, October 17th, if they have not done so previously.

My neighbor and I were discussing lawns recently. How does one get rid of weeds? Should we still be cutting the grass? This article from Agri-News seems timely.

The fall is a good time to control weeds in your lawn because at this time of year you can use herbicides without so much worrying about them damaging flowers or vegetables.

Arnold Stearman of Alberta Agriculture's weed control branch recommends 2,4-D amine for killing dandelions in your lawn. You should use it on a calm day when the temperature is 20 C or higher. At a lower temperature the herbicide may not be as well absorbed by the weeds. The best way of controlling chickweed and clover is to use a herbicide containing a mixture of 2,4-D and mecoprop. It should be applied when the temperature is above 20 C.

If you have been plagued by snow mould in the spring of past years, you could use chloroneb, mercuric chloride or quintozene as a preventative measure. It should be applied just before the first snow.

Mr. Stearman recommends keeping on mowing your lawn in the fall as long as the grass is still growing. Long, matted grass provides ideal conditions for disease. However, when cutting the lawn in the fall you should set the knives on the mower slightly higher than normal so that you do not leave the roots of the grass exposed to frost.

You should not fertilize your lawn at this time of year. It needs a chance to harden-off before winter, and you should reduce watering it. However, if the soil is very dry you should give the lawn one final soaking just before freeze-up.

Mrs Ellen Eaton

Art and Carrie Schultz of Chilliwack, B.C. arrived on Monday evening for a visit at the home of Mavis and Carl [illegible]

Carl and Mavis Jacobsen and daughter, Karen, motored to St. Albert on Sunday for a visit and Thanksgiving supper at the home of their daughter and sister, Clarice and Peter Anderson and little son, Leif

A Thanksgiving supper at the home of Mrs Ellen Eaton on Monday with Mrs. Rachel Ross as co-hostess, was a real Thanksgiving at the end of the harvesting of the crop for Mervin Ross His nephew, Ken and Rachel Ross, have been helping Mervin take off his crop Among those for supper were Mervin, Ken and Rachel and children, Carla and Tammy Laier, Ellen's grandson, Brian Eaton and 2 friends, Jack and Richard arrived back after spending the Thanksgiving weekend at Brian's parents, Walter and Evelyn Eaton, at Fort McMurray.

Guests at a Thanksgiving supper on Sunday at the home of Howard and Mae Ferguson were Mae's sister, Mrs. Marguerite Bailey of Edmonton and their mother, Mrs. Roberts of Tofield.

Thanksgiving Day visitors at the home of Howard and Doris Brown and family were Doris's parents, Howard and Mae Ferguson and Mrs. Marg Berreciott and 3 children.

Arnold and Edna Jones and family and Glen and Theone Jones and family are receiving the sympathy of their friends and neighbours at this time, following the death of their mother, Mrs. Mabel Jones, at the Royal Alex. Hospital in Edmonton during the weekend.

The weathermat has been co-operating with the farmers this past week, and combining and gathering in of the harvest has been almost completed in this area, after the delay caused by snow and heavy frosts.

Don't tow vehicles in wrong manner

A number of accidents have occurred on provincial highways due to motorists towing another vehicle with a tow rope, according to the Safety Branch of Alberta Transportation.

If towing is absolutely necessary, motorists are urged to use either a substantial chain or an approved vehicle towing bar.

Also, adhere to the following important information when towing another vehicle:

On motor vehicles with power steering, power brakes and automatic transmissions, the engine of the towed vehicle must be running to provide the towed vehicle operator, steering the vehicle, with adequate safe steering and brakes. It will also prevent damage to the automatic transmission.

The vehicle's hazard warning lights should be in operation when the vehicle is in tow. Again, for extended durations the engine should be running to maintain the battery and thus assure the continued operation of the hazard warning lights to warn vehicles approaching from the rear of the potential hazard.

The safety branch recomends towing be done during periods of low traffic density and in daylight hours. Motorists are urged to use a regular towing service to provide the safest means of towing other vehicles.

Guidelines for 1976 Cow-Calf Producers Support Programs.

The program consists of two parts. The first part is a recycling of the 1975 Cow-Calf Producers Advance Program. The second part is a one-time only grant under the name of the Cow-Calf Producers Support Program Application forms for both programs will be available about October 15, 1976.

PART A - 1976 Cow-Calf Producers Advance Program (CCPA)

The existing Cow-Calf Producers Advance Program which was developed in 1974 will be continued in 1976. Producers will be able to borrow at 7 percent interest a maximum of $75 00 per calf or 50 percent of the calves in the herd to a maximum of $8,000.00. The new loan will be used firstly to retire outstanding debt (principal plus accrued interest) from the 1975 CCPA Program

1. Producers who have defaulted in payment of 1974 or 1975 loans under this program are not eligible Make producers aware of this when they apply The lending institutions will be phoning Livestock Branch to check out anyone they are in doubt of.

2. Producers with existing 1975 CCPA Program loans: The proceeds of the 1976 Cow-Calf Producers Advance Program loans must be applied firstly to retiring the 1975 Cow-Calf Producers Advance Program loan.

3. Applications are available at District Agriculturist's offices to Alberta residents only

4. Deadline for application will be January 31, 1977. Approved application must be presented to the lending institution designated in the application form not later than February 28, 1977 at which times a promissory note must be signed by the applicant for the amount of the advance. Be sure to advise producers that they must go to the lending institution to take out the loan.

5. An applicant may not submit more than one application under this program.

6 (a) Applicants must sign his own application or signee must provide proof of power of attorney, or in cases of estates the executor must provide proof of appointment.

(b) Applicants must be eighteen (18) years of age or over.

7. Applicants will be required to sign a statutory declaration, charging their interest in their land with the amount of any approved loan i.e. a caveat can be filed against their land in the amount of the loan if the applicant defaults in payment of the loan.

8. The assistance is an advance (maximum of $8,000.00) based on $75.00 per calf on 50 percent of 1976 Calf crop owned at the time of application.

9. Calves must have been born in 1976 to cows owned by or under control of the applicant prior to August 1, 1976.

10. Advance (will bear interest to the applicant at the rate of 7 percent) for one year from date of approval of application by the bank On any unpaid balance owing past one (1) year or January 31, 1978, whichever is sooner, interest will be charged at a rate per annum equal to the then current lending institution's prime rate for advance plus 2 percent

11. Purebred breeders and dairy producers are eligible providing they meet all of the requirements

12. Share cattle - the lessee of the cattle may apply for 50 percent of his share of the calves. The lessor of the cattle may also apply for 50 percent of his share of the calves. Regardless of the situation, an applicant makes only one application for all calves under his ownership.

13. Repay advance not later than one year from date of approval of application, or January 31, 1978, whichever is sooner.

14. District Extension offices or their designate reserves the right to inspect cattle prior to approving the application.

15. Social Insurance Numbers shall be supplied when possible but applicants who have never received a Social Insurance Number are eligible to apply

16. Producers who do not own land are eligible for this program

PART B - Cow-Calf Producers Support Program

This portion of the program is a grant Payment will be based on the difference between average calf prices in 1976 and average cash costs of production as determined by the Dept to a maximum of $30.00 per calf It should be emphasized that the payment may be less than $30.00 per calf if average calf prices are higher than anticipated. The producer does not need to sell his calves in order to obtain the grant No money will be paid until early 1977

The intent of the program is that there be one application per herd In the case of share or leased cattle, the lessee will make the application in a partnership, one application may be filed by one of the partners This partner will show his or her taxable income The support payment will be made in the name of the applicant on the application form Corporations may also make only one application separate cow herds may apply as individuals but are required to show that they own, care for and control a separate cow herd.

1. All herds in Alberta with over 10 cows will be eligible for a support payment. Cows include all cows which calved or were intended to calve in 1976 including beef, dairy and purebreds.

2. Payment will be based on a maximum of 100 cows (i.e. the first 100 cows in herd of 100 cows or more).

3. Payment will be calculated at 70 percent of the number of cows claimable. This provides for an 85 percent calf crop and 15 percent herd replacement.

4. Payment will be based on the difference between the average cash costs of production during 1976 and average calf prices during 1976 to a maximum of $50.00 per calf.

5. Producers will be required to swear an affidavit attesting to the total amount of taxable income during the last taxation year filed before September 1, 1976. He must also sign an authorization allowing the Department of National Revenue to verify his taxable income. The total support provided by the Government when added to the latest taxable income of the producer, shall not exceed $8,000.00.

The taxable income figure includes income from all sources. Applicants who averaged their income in 1975 must use the taxable income figure for 1975, but not the income after averaging. The taxable income figure is found on line 60, page 4 of the 1975 Income Tax Return. It is income after expenses, capital cost allowance and personal deductions have been deducted. Any verification of taxable income will be done from Headquarters. It is the Commissioner for Oaths responsibility to advise the applicant of the necessity of the accuracy of statements in the Statutory Declaration. The oath must be administered in the proper manner.

6. One application will be accepted per family unit unless individuals can show they operate and control a separate and distinct cow-calf enterprise to the satisfaction of the Department. An individual can only file one application on behalf of a company, partnership or himself.

If a person is claiming a separate part of the herd, he must be able to show expenses and or income related to the cow herd. The applicant probably would have filed an income tax form that accounts for expenses and income which are separate from that of the person or persons owning the rest of the herd. In a newly formed herd, the bills of sale for the purchase of the cows would serve as proof of a separate herd.

7. To participate in the program, all producers must register their cow herd with the District Agriculturist and sign a statutory declaration attesting to the number of cows owned on September 1, 1976 and the accuracy of the other information required. The applicant must also give right to a designate of the Department of Agriculture to inspect the cattle.

8. Applications will be accepted until December 31, 1976.

9. After January 1, 1977 the Department of Agriculture will calculate average prices received and cash costs of production during 1976 and will calculate the payment to be made. Applications will be processed and payments should be made before March 31, 1977.

10. All producers who are residents of Alberta will be eligible for the support payment. However, producers who have defaulted on previous cow-calf assistance loans, will have the defaulted amount plus accrued interest deducted from their support payment but will receive any money remaining after the defaulted loan is paid out.

11. Each applicant, who applies as an individual, must supply his Social Insurance Number, if he has one. This number is needed as a reference number by Revenue Canada, if the applicant's taxable income is checked.

A Social Insurance Number is required before a support payment can be made. A person who does not have a Social Insurance Number should make application for the support program. He must then apply for a Social Insurance Number and forward that number to Animal Industry Division, Edmonton before a cheque will be issued.

12. Applications will be reviewed by the local District Agriculturist. He has the option of referring applications to the local Agricultural Development Committee for a recommendation in the case of rejection, the applicant may submit an appeal to a committee in the Farmer's Advocate office no later than February 28, 1977. The decision of this committee will be final.

13. Applicants must be eighteen (18) year of age or older.

District Agriculturist
Blair Roth,

Poe Pourri

By Lorraine Poulsen

I may never enjoy another Thanksgiving again.

It's not just the fact that Henerietta and Gretchun have met their Maker (that was inevitable) it was HOW they met their fate.

I am the first to admit that I cursed those two sisters up and down every time I turned onto the driveway of the Melesko home. They were always there, chattering, squwacking, running across the roadway, making driving next to impossible.

"They'll be gone in a few weeks, Lorraine, and you will be sorry you didn't appreciate them more," Sylvia, their provider and mother of the Melesko home, told me in late September.

She was right. Now, I don't only miss them when I drive down the road but, I do regret not telling them what fate had in store. Death without dignity.

True, Gretchun & Henerietta were beheaded like most chickens; scalded like most chickens and stripped of their feathers like most chickens.

However, it used to be that a chicken got its "after-death" revenge when it came time to pluck the feathers. Women would sit " " hours patiently plucking the feathers from the limp chicken, hating every minute of it, thus allowing the late chicken to snicker its final "gotcha".

No more.

The chicken-plucking machine has changed all that. I am told these machines have been in use for many years, however, since it has been many years since I have known any chicken (other than those prepared by the Colonel), the rotating drum with its many rubber spikes was all new to me.

What used to take hours now takes seconds. The electrically driven drum spins madly turning the protruding rubber spikes into a solid maze. Gretchun's feather coat didn't stand a chance.

True, Henerietta did give the machine a run for its money and left a mess of tail feathers to be hand-plucked, but even she lost her last laugh to the machine.

Thanksgiving dinner just didn't have its normal down-home flavour. The potatoes were white and creamy; the apple sauce was rich with flavour; the vegetables boasted their deep texture and the fresh buns were as tasty as their smell but the chicken . . .it was tame!

Gretchun and Henerietta may have gotten their revenge in the long run.

IS A NUTRITIVE PROCESSING PLANT IN YOUR COMMUNITY'S FUTURE?
IF YOU HAVE PLANS WHICH INVOLVE THE DEVELOPMENT OF COMMERCIAL FOOD PROCESSING FACILITIES IN RURAL ALBERTA, HELP IS AVAILABLE.
The federal-provincial Nutritive Processing Assistance Agreement can provide up to 35 per cent of approved capital for the processing of nutritive products — for human, animal or plant consumption.
To be eligible, projects must be economically viable (which would probably eliminate rutabaga bonbons). Other possibilities include freezing or canning of vegetables or processing of grains for feed or flour.

Empty containers not so empty

Be sure to thoroughly rinse out your supposedly empty pesticide containers during the coming spraying season, advises Arnold Sturman of Alberta Agriculture's weed control branch.

According to laboratory tests carried out at Oregon State University in the United States, an 'empty' pesticide container that has not been rinsed out is far from empty.

Those conducting the tests found that nearly 5 ounces of pesticide remained in an unrinsed 5-gallon container and that 22 rinses remained in a 45-gallon drum.

If the pesticide cost $30 per gallon, the dollar loss from the unremoved chemical would amount to $7.50 for a 45-gallon drum. In the case of one popular new herbicide, reported to be selling for $70 per gallon, $3.50 and $17.50 respectively would be thrown away with each empty 5-gallon container and 45-gallon drum.

Multiple rinses with clean water will, for example, considerably reduce the residual pesticide in any container. A 5-gallon can, for example, yields less than .25 ounces of pesticide after three rinses. The rinse water goes into the sprayer and becomes part of the next load.

"The thorough rinsing of pesticide containers," says Mr. Sturman, "will go a long way towards decreasing potential hazards to the environment animals and human beings as well as towards reducing chemical costs and increasing spraying efficiency.

Mrs. Beth Campbell was a visitor Sunday for Thanksgiving dinner with her niece, Beth and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Maria of Viking who entertained at a family dinner, with 17 attending. Also weekend visitors were Beth's sister and husband, Muriel and Ted Anderson of Calgary. Ernie and Ted drove up for their aunt, also going to Poe for their uncle Alex Barlow, who will spend several days visiting with the Mertas. In the evening, Muriel and Ted brought Mrs. Campbell home.

Mrs. Helen Bilyk and daughter, Shelly, spent the Thanksgiving holiday in Calgary with her son, Larry. Shelly went to the doctor's Tuesday in Edmonton, to have the cast removed from her arm which she broke in an accident some weeks ago.

Mrs Beth Campbell was pleasantly surprised Monday evening to receive a phone call from her son, Bill, wife, Susanne, and grandson, Chris in Montreal, wishing her happy thanksgiving. Bill had just returned home in time for Thanksgiving from a business trip to Porto Rico.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Chomick had relatives from Edmonton visiting with them for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Mrs. Pearl Allan recently spent three days visiting in Chicago, Ill. U.S.

When in Tofield last week, Mrs. Edith Carlson called on Mrs. Mary Hooper, a patient in the hospital. Mrs. Hooper is making slow but satisfactory progress from her illness.

Miss Vivian Carlson of Tofield was visiting for the Thanksgiving holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Carlson.

ATA's induction planned for Ryley

by Grace Phillips

With president Bob Garneau in the chair the Tofield sub-local of the ATA held its October meeting on Monday, October 18

The induction ceremony for new teachers will be held in Ryley Community Hall on Friday. The evening's entertainment will include a banquet and dance.

Several teachers reported having joined the ATA - sponsored Specialist Councils

This year, for the first time, the fees to these councils will be remitted to the members of the sub-local.

It was reported that a request to the School Committee for an in-service Day at the Tofield School had been rejected although the proposed program itself was continued

It is possible that the County Professional Day will be held in February as usual

The president mentioned that negative comments about education seemed to be the trend; he urged that positive comments be given equal publicity.

Members of the sub-local were reminded of the Meet the Teachers night sponsored by the local Parent - Teacher Association to be held Tuesday, October 19.

4-H club plans sale

by Linda Mackay and
Kathy Hisey

The Ryley-Holden 4-H Horse Club will be holding fund raising ventures over the next few weeks

A bake sale will be held in Crump's Store in Ryley this Saturday from ten o'clock in the morning until noon

Another bake sale to raise additional monies has been planned for Holden on Saturday November 6th

The next meeting of the club has been scheduled for Sunday at the farm of Don and Bev Foss, with members planning a trail ride for this meeting

Education Council holds 1st meeting

The first fall meeting of the Further Education Council was held on Oct. 4 in Ryley

B Rob, acting chairman called the meeting to order and all members of the Council were introduced. The minutes of the last meeting, the treasury report and the correspondence were all read and discussed.

Co-ordinator, Jean Giebelhaus, reported on her activities during the summer months Program planning visits had been carried out with Lakeland College. The Fairs that were held in the county were all visited by the Co-ordinator and Lakeland College. Work was being completed on the program booklet and course approval and completion forms had been drawn up.

Ruth Iverson reported on activities for Lakeland College and discussed their part in the program booklet.

This was followed by a discussion of the program booklet. A number of suggestions, new ideas, and recommendations for the future were brought forth. A motion was passed accepting this years booklet and stating that all recommendations be noted for future reference.

Val Charteris reported on fall program activities for the Recreation Dept.

Under old business, Dr. N. Gamon made a motion that a summary of minutes of meetings be published.

Under new business, it was decided that starting immediatly, the Co-ordinator will have one office day per week in the County Bldg. in Ryley on Wednesdays.

The next meeting will be held on Nov. 1, at 1:30 p.m. in the County bldg., Ryley Elections for a new Chairman and vice-chairman will be held at that time

Beavers lose 6th straight

Tofield Beavers went down to their fifth and sixth straight losses last week and were eliminated from any hopes of gaining a playoff berth

Beavers have only one game remaining in the Wheatland Football League, when they travel over to Sedgewick for a game this Saturday

The two teams met in Tofield last Wednesday afternoon with Sedgewick coming out on top Details and scoring of this game were not available

The Tofield team made its best showing of the season on Saturday in Wainwright when it held the home team in check for three quarters, before finally wilting under the pressure of their more experienced opponents

Tofield grabbed an early 8-0 lead in this game only to see the host club come back with two touchdowns while Tofield got credit for a safety touch

At the end of the third quarter, Wainwright led the Beavers by a close 13-8 margin with the game being still up for grabs. However, Wainwright picked up ten points in the final quarter and went on to win 22-8

Offensive stars for the Beavers in this game were Bruce Burnstad and Dean McLeod while the defensive stars were Gary Johnson and Ed Donnan

Already there is talk of the club returning for the 1977 season, with management feeling that, with a year's experience, the team should be able to make a much improved showing after its Fallout!

Sour notes

Elections in two federal ridings on Monday can have been nothing but gall for Prime Minister Trudeau and his Liberals, as Tories easily swept to victory. In St. Johns, Newfoundland, and again in Ottawa Carleton, Liberal hopefuls were given scant support as voters voted strongly against Ottawa and its policies and turned their support both to the Conservatives and NDP. Especially in the latter seat, which had so strongly returned John Turner over many elections, the loss to the Liberals has to be counted a blow.

Right on the heels of this loss comes the announcement from Premier Bourassa that he will seek another mandate from the voters of Quebec, to prove he speaks for the province when he bargains with the prime minister over conditions for repatriation of the Canadian constitution from Great Britain.

Strong as he is at the moment, it's almost unimaginable that he will get any stronger mandate than he has at dissolution. In fact, there's every likelihood he may lose a few seats. On the other hand, it's equally unimaginable that, at this time, he won't be returned with an exceptional amount of support from the voters, so that he can go to Ottawa with 1976 proof that he still is strong in the province, and not just riding on the popularity of three years ago.

As if this were not enough, Mr. Trudeau must face the tremendous dismay caused by last week's resignation of Defence Minister James Richardson, one of only two cabinet ministers from the entire prairie region. Worse, he was the only one who still seemed to be speaking as a Westerner.

There are indications that a great deal is still unsaid about the reasons behind the resignation of either Mr. Richardson or Mr. Mackasey, and the reasons may be distinctly different in the two cases. But Mr. Richardson is already letting it be known that he is highly fearful of his chief's motives in repatriating the constitution, fearful that Mr. Trudeau will have managed to lock into the Act clauses guaranteeing French language rights even before the document reaches these shores.

Mr. Trudeau, of course, pooh poohs such suggestions, pointing out that amendment can be achieved later by discussion, and consultation, and agreement.

But as we've said before, that is perfectly possible right now. Without repatriation

Other than pride, and it has to be misplaced pride in such an unimportant detail, there is absolutely nothing to gain by making the BNA Act a Canadian document, nothing that can't be achieved under existing circumstances, unless the use of superior central governmental power is used to force amendments on the provinces. And that's a situation to be highly feared.

Sufficiently so to cause the resignation of a man like Mr. Richardson, who enjoyed being in office, who enjoyed exercising ministerial power, who enjoyed a feeling of being able to do something to build the country up, not just in his recent portfolio, but in previous areas, too

My visit to the U.S.A.

DON MAZANKOWSKI, M.P.
(second in a series)

THE PARTY SYSTEM AND CONGRESS

The Government of the United States was established on the principle of "separation of powers" by creating three equal and independent branches, Legislative Branch (the Congress, House of Representatives and Senate), Executive Branch (the President and his Cabinet) and Judicial Branch (the Supreme Court). There are 435 members of Congress elected to the House of Representatives every two years, each representing approximately 450,000 - 500,000 people. The Senate is composed of 100 members, 2 Senators per State elected at large with each serving a period of 6 years. One third of the membership is elected every two years.

Unlike our system of government, the President is neither a member of the Senate or the House of Representatives. The President is the Head of State, elected at large, and is the official spokesman on behalf of the U.S.A. While his functions are somewhat independent of the Congress, he does recommend legislation to Congress, present a budget, deliver the State of the Union address, ratify legislation into law and oversee the administration of each department. These departments are headed by a member of the Executive whom the President appoints and who is generally referred to as a Secretary. The Secretary of a department would compare to a Minister in our system, the exception being that in our system a Minister must be an elected Member of Parliament or Senator and usually a member of the government party. In the U.S. the President appoints his Secretaries who are not members of the Senate or House of Representatives and who, in most cases, have never run for office.

The major difference between the Canadian and American systems is the absence of Party discipline and the fact that there can be a Congress dominated by Democrats with a Republican President - as is the case now - with the Democrats controlling two thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives. On the other hand, there can be a Republican or Democratic President together with a respective majority in Congress. Whatever the case may be, the system functions mainly because of the separation of powers and the freedom of action by both Senators and Congressmen. It should be pointed out as well that the President has the power to veto any bill submitted to him by Congress for approval. Congress, however, can overrule the actions of the President by a two-thirds affirmative vote.

In many respects I believe the strength of the U.S. lyes in the fact that Congressmen and Senators vote and declare their positions not on the basis of a party line but rather upon their own philosophy and the views of their constituents. This places greater emphasis on the candidate rather than the party. For example, a congressman's voting record at election time can be more important than the policy of the national party. It is argued that because of the diversity of the United States, it would be ill-considered for a Party to attempt to impose Party rigidity on its representatives in Congress.

It is common in an election to vote for candidates on various different tickets. For example, one might vote for a Democratic President, a Republican Senator and an Independent Congressman all in the same area.

One cannot help but recognize that if the principal of free voting in the U.S. is based upon the diverse nature of their country surely the same rationale applies to Canada, perhaps even to a greater extent. I have felt for a long time that party discipline can tend to alienate a Member of Parliament from his constituents. On occasion he is obligated to take a position which may very well be contrary to the views held by his constituents. Strict party discipline impairs the right of a Member to accurately reflect the views of those whom he represents, and I sense that to some extent this is responsible for part of the growing cynicism and lack of confidence in our politicians and political system.

While the two systems of Government are worlds apart, I have to say that their representatives have a better opportunity for accurately reflecting grassroots views and opinions. I think it's time we recognized this deficiency in our system and corrected it.

I frankly don't understand why so much importance should be placed upon members of one party voting together. Surely, if a member or a group within a party are unable to support the majority view, their actions should be looked upon not as a weakness in leadership or a fragmentation inside the party, but rather as a strength and a realization that democracy is working.

Rabies control

It takes only three hours for Agriculture Canada's Health of Animals Branch laboratories to do a highly accurate test on animals suspected of having rabies.

Rabies testing is done at the department's Animal Pathology Division labs in Ottawa, Lethbridge, Alta., and Sackville, N.B. If the test is positive, the district veterinarian is telephoned immediately so that people in contact with the animal can begin treatment. Because of the vigilance of the Health of Animals Branch, very few Canadians have died of the virus disease which is transmitted by the bite of an infected animal.

Some glove

While this might look like a well-used, worn-out baseball glove, it's actually a potato. This unusual growth was found by Mrs. Dora Brown of Tofield RR2.

Homecoming has busy schedule

The weekend of Oct. 29, 30, and 31st has been set as Camrose Lutheran College Homecoming 1976. The classes being honored are those of 1916, 1926, 1936, 1946, 1956, 1966, and 1975.

The festivities will begin on Friday afternoon with registration for all alumni from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Convocation Centre. A campus tour is planned at this time also

At 8 p.m., the College Vikings Hockey Team opens its regular season in a game against Red Deer College. The schedule of events for Saturday and Sunday is as follows.

SATURDAY

From 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., registration will be taken and a campus tour given. From 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., brunch will be available at the college cafeteria.

The registration desk will be open all afternoon on Saturday so that people may purchase their banquet ticket prior to the evening events

During the time from 12:30 to 3 p.m., singing groups will be entertaining in the south dorm, and from 2 to 4 p.m. the president's tea will be held with Mrs. Arlene Person in charge. The campus tour leaves from the south dorm at 2 p.m., and Ed Markus will lead the choir rehearsal from 4 to 5:30 p.m.

The Alumni, banquet will begin at 6:45 at the college cafeteria, with Mrs Yvonne Myrehaug, Alumni president, as master of ceremonies. Guest speaker at the banquet will be Ed Markus, who retired from the C.L.C. staff last spring, and travelled to Norway during the past summer.

The semi-formal Alumni Ball, with music by Ruby Keehn's Orchestra, will go from 9:30 p.m to 1 a.m. Also during that time, coffee will be served in the college cafeteria for those who wish to just visit

SUNDAY

Homecoming services will be held at Messiah Lutheran Church, at 8:45 a.m. and at 11 a.m. Special guest speaker will be Dr Roger Nostbakken, vice-president of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Canada (E.L.C.C.).

The dedication of the new campus dormitory will be marked with a special service at 10 a.m., to be led by the president of C.L.C., Rev. Glen Johnson.

Program of rural study to continue

The Alberta Rural Development Studies have begun.

This means that people can begin to plan this winter's learning experience - - for themselves, their families their community.

Because of favorable response, the "unsupashord" approach of choosing any five papers if students do not wish to choose a series, is continued.

The series consist of: Series A - for discussion and debate, Series B - for information, Series C - for farm management, and Series D - for people power. There is also an individual study and a group study. If anyone plans to register a group, names and addresses of group members should be listed on the registration form.

This study offers anyone an opportunity to learn, to obtain new information, to discuss and debate, and to further the developing of skills.

This program is assisted by a grant from Alberta Agriculture. For this reason there is no charge. For additional information write Rural Education and Development Association (R.E.D.A.) 9924 - 106 Street, Edmonton, Alberta T5K 1C4

Progressive Farming

Stubble Burning Is not Good Soil Management

This fall has seen a large amount of stubble burning being carried out in our country and the reasons for doing this are often questionable Stubble burning, in the past, was a usable tool to aid in making the land more workable when field machinery was inadequate to the job Today, however, there is little or no reason for burning stubble with the advent of new trash-handling machinery and with experienced farmers stating that maintaining and incorporating their trash cover improves their soil productivity.

What is it then that burning the straw does to the soil?

1. SHORT—TERM BENEFITS - burning leaves little or no trash cover on the soil surface, thus making the soil susceptible to wind and water erosion, which removes the fine portions of the soil and it is in this fine portion of the soil that most of our plant nutrients are held Thus erosion of the topsoil does not only mean a reduction in the depth of workable topsoil but also in the overall fertility of the soil.

2. LONG—TERM BENEFITS - burning causes a reduction in the organic matter content of the soil This reduction results in:
1. decreased water holding capacity of the soil due to no organic matter being put back in to the soil, as well as the increased possibility of surface crusting. 2. decreased fertility since the nutrients in the straw will not be returned to the soil and with nitrogen being the main nutrient lost.
3. A soil that will bake easier and will be made more susceptible to the formation of subsurface hardpans or "pudding" which are often caused by travelling over a "mud soil" which is conducive to packing due to being in a low organic matter state.

As well, by maintaining the straw instead of burning it allows the straw to catch snow during the winter and result in a better moisture storage for the following year Straw incorporation is a good management tool for farming soils of low productivity or of Solonetzic character and should be practiced by most farm managers in our area So next time think before you burn!

The Rural Education and Development Association is offering a number of free correspondence programs in winter and anyone interested can register As well there are still a number of openings for their one week welding course to be held March 7-11, 1977 The registration fee is $25.00 with all the basic welding equipment provided For further information contact us at our Ryley office (663-3886) or at Viking on Wednesdays (336-3466)

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

Husband Bob insists that we made a mistake when we hired the Poe sheriff and has even threatened to take a seven-month Arctic tour with the pipelines if Sheriff Matt isn't replaced.

I disagree.

I suppose it is only fair to tell a bit about Poe before actually condemning (or praising) its sheriff.

Yes, indeed, there is a Poe, Alberta. While it may not be the answer to every man's dream, Poe has class and it's sheriff knows about that class.

One enters and exits Poe, via Highway 14. No street numbers to contend with. No awkward one-way streets. No confusing crescents. No traffic tie-ups. Poe has class, there is just no other word for it.

Highway 14 divides the business section of Poe (The Poe General Store and soon-to-be-coffee bar) from residential Poe with its 30 (or so) inhabitants. It is only fitting that the Sheriff of Poe should reside in that section of Poe which needs him most - the business section.

For about a month, Sheriff Matt managed to retain law and order in downtown Poe with little problem. However, (despite my husband's insistance of the dog's retardation), after a month, the sheriff proved he too had class. Common sense will tell you that a divided town needs at least one deputy.

It was that appointment which made the Arctic tour suddenly most inviting to husband Bob.

"It's not bad enough that that dog wakes up at midnight to howl a welcome to the train," he complained, "but when he starts running across the highway, that's the limit."

(I should really insert here that the many trains which pound by the townsite also add a certain amount of uptown class to Poe. I mean, how many towns can boast a train down mainstreet several times a day?)

Sheriff Matt just doesn't run across the highway for the fun of it, nor does he cross just to annoy Bob. It's part of his job.

When Sheriff Matt found he just couldn't handle law management in ALL of Poe, he (wisely) appointed himself a deputy. Deputy Rex (a dog belonging to Debbie, a young resident of cross-the-highway Poe) watches that territory. Sheriff Matt can't always mind. While Matt does cause my husband headaches when he crosses Highway 14 to confer with his Deputy, it is all very necessary to keep that air of class in Poe.

Matt, much like his namesake, Matt Dillion of television fame, keeps his deputy in line as he does late night visitors to downtown Poe.

I have to agree with Bob when he voices suspicions of Matt's accepting bribes from Poe visitors. However, I have to say that as Sheriff of Poe, he has earned a right to the odd cupcake from the breadman or a generous portion of beef jerky from the meatman. The job of retaining law and order has few rewards.

Matt is a good sheriff, despite my husband's complaints.

The town has the shortest crime record to prove it. Matt Dillion would be proud; Festus would approve. Indeed, Miss Kitty would offer a free beer.

Fall Session Opens

The fall sitting of the Legislature opened last week. On the second day of the sitting, I proposed a resolution which would allow for tendering a portion of legal work done by outside legal firms for government departments and agencies.

Under present circumstances, the government selects a list of legal firms which do a specified amount of legal work for such agencies as the Alberta Housing Corporation, the Alberta Agricultural Development Corporation and the Alberta Opportunity Company. These "lawyers' lists" - - chosen by cabinet ministers - - are allocated specific amounts of government work and have the effect of shutting out all other legal firms in Alberta from performing work for government agencies.

I feel this is the wrong approach and could well lead to patronage where some legal firms would be favored over others. I do not openly accuse the government of partisan political patronage in this instance, but one certainly must be suspicious when one looks over the lists.

I believe that a tendering practice, in co-operation with the Law Society of Alberta, would remove any suspicion of patronage. Every law firm in Alberta would be allowed to bid openly for government work, with no firm excluded for any reason.

Social Priorities

I see the priorities for this legislative sitting as priorities for government spending. These include the areas of health care, education, housing and local government. We in the Official Opposition this fall will place particular emphasis on local governments. Local decision-making and autonomy have been seriously eroded in recent years. During the summer, local officials whom I approached feel the province provides a fair share of money to local governments. They state, with few exceptions, that the manner in which the funds are applied - - through conditional grants in most cases - - is placing a hardship on local governments.

We support revenue-sharing with the government getting out of the conditional grants field and sharing a portion of income tax revenue with local governments without any "strings attached".

If I can be of assistance to you, please feel free to contact my Edmonton office, 427-2251; or in Fort Saskatchewan, 998-3378 or residence at 998-2186.

Last rites held for W. Grosland

Suddenly at Abbotsford, B.C. on October 13, Walter Grosland aged 58 years, late of 2908 Old Clayburn Road, Abbotsford and formerly of Edmonton, passed away. Mr. Grosland was born in Holden, where he had farmed until moving to Abbotsford in 1975 where he was area manager for Miracle Feeds. He was a member of the Holden Masonic Lodge.

He is survived by his wife, Evelyn, 1 son, Warren of Edmonton; 2 grandchildren; 1 sister, Mrs. Sid (Evelyn) Handley, Edmonton; and 2 brothers, Lyle Grosland, Holden, and Emery Grosland of Montreal.

Funeral service was held on Monday from Chapel of Henderson's Funeral Home, Abbotsford, Pastor O. Olsen officiating, interment was in Hazelwood Cemetery.

HOW TO MAKE APPLESAUCE

This season's apples are in good supply in the grocery stores. This article from Agriculture Canada seems timely.

How do you make applesauce?

Wash, peel, core and slice apples. For six medium apples, add ¼ cup of water, cover and simmer until the apples are tender, about 15 to 20 minutes. Stir occasionally. Mash or sieve. Then add ¼ cup of sugar, a dash of cinnamon and bring to a boil. This makes about 2 cups, to be served hot or cold.

To freeze, pack the applesauce cold in moisture - vapor-proof freezer containers. It will keep up to one year at 0 degree F. To thaw a 2 cup container of applesauce, allow 6 to 8 hours in the refrigerator, about 3 hours at room temperature and about 1 hour if placed under cold running water.

Now for a recipe idea.

SPICED APPLESAUCE CAKE:

½ cup butter
¾ cup sugar
1 egg beaten
1¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
dash of cloves
½ teaspoon salt
1 and one-third cups applesauce or 1 - 19-ounce can.
½ cup raisin
½ cup sifted icing sugar
1 tablespoon applesauce.

Cream butter and sugar. Add egg, beat until fluffy. Sift dry ingredients. Reserve 1 tablespoon applesauce for glaze. Add dry ingredients alternately with remaining applesauce to butter mixture. Fold in raisins. Turn into greased 8-inch square cake pan. Bake at 350 degree F. until top springs back when pressed lightly (45 to 50 minutes). Cool. Combine icing sugar and applesauce. Brush on cake.

Short Takes

Monumental Achievement

When sea gulls devoured a horde of large black crickets that threatened to wipe out the Mormons' first grain crop in Utah in 1848, the sect was so grateful that it passed laws protecting the bird and erected a monument to it.

Fleet Title

Famous for its long migrations, the Canada goose can fly at a steady pace of 55 miles an hour. It usually flies in a V-shape formation and at considerable elevations.

Truly Super

The average grocery store of 1940 carried about a thousand food items. Today's supermarket offers more than 8,000 items, and more than half weren't available even a decade ago.

Big 3 buys uniforms

by Grace Phillips

The Tofield Junior High basketball girls will have new uniforms for the coming season's schedule.

This was decided at the first meeting of the Big 3 held on Monday in the drama room of the Tofield School with president Jim Warner in the chair.

Since treasurer Wanda Weir reported that the treasury was low in funds, it was decided on a motion by Brent Reil to increase the fees for the Big 3.

Reports were received from editor Elaine McMann, social convener Debbie Delisle, girls' and boys' sports rep's., Rhonda Williams and Marc Robichaud.

Knee pads for the use of members of the volleyball and basketball teams have already been purchased.

Tentative plans were made for a hot-dog sale and an initiation party were reported.

KALLAL MOTORS

We have now the greatest selection ever of new Chevy and GMC trucks. So come in today and "Lets Make a Deal".
We also have a good selection of used pickups.

Chevy-GMC Trucks Built to stay tough

Chevy and GMC pickups come with a reputation for toughness. And they didn't get that reputation for nothing. The massive girder beam front suspension has a lot to do with it. So does the ladder type steel frame, the multi-leaf rear springs and the heavy duty pickup box cross members (up to nine of them in some models). Speaking of models ... Chevy and GMC's got lots of them. Start with the Fleetside shown below, and then use your imagination! Order it as a rugged four wheel drive, or a "Big Dooley" with dual rear wheels, or a bonus cab or six passenger crew cab.

Talk to us about some of our other ways you can order Chevy and GMC Pickups.

Mrs Ellen Eaton

On Sunday afternoon, Rev. Moddle of the Tofield United Church and his folk group comprising of approximately 40 young people were at the farm home of Rod and Ruth Icki to partake in a hay ride which required two hay racks for the group. After the hayride, they had a sing-song and lunch before leaving for Tofield and their homes.

Howard and Mae Ferguson motored to Whitecourt on Friday where they were guests at the home of their daughter, Donna and Frank Edwards from Friday until Monday, returning home Monday evening.

Jim Fisher of Whitecourt formerly of Tofield passed away at his home on the Frank Edwards farm on Saturday morning. Funeral services were held this Wednesday in Tofield at the Lutheran Church and burial in the Tofield Cemetery. Jim was well known to many in the Tofield and districts having owned the Tofield Service Garage before retiring 3 years ago

Ellen Eaton accompanied the Tofield Golden Club to Holden on October 13th, where they were entertained by the Senior Citizens Group for the afternoon

Mr. Shavchook of Vegreville showed slides of his trip to Europe and Asia which included some taken in Hong Kong, Paris, Germany and other places they had visited

After the showing, luncheon was served by the Holden Group after which we left for home, and came home in a rain storm

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to express my thanks to all those who by cards and gifts remembered me on my 80th birthday. I never realized that I had so many friends in the Tofield district and to all of them, including the Tofield ladies, the members of my church at Minnie and to the Hastings Lake Ladies Club, I send my very best thanks. It was a time that will be remembered.

Ryley pool opens Wednesday

The Beaver Heritage and Agricultural Society's swimming pool will have its official opening on Wednesday night.

The enclosed (indoor) swimming pool is constructed next door to the school in the Village of Ryley.

Following its completion, the pool opened for [illegible] and is running on a daily basis, with good attendance at all public swims, while having all swimming classes fully booked.

One of the highlights planned for Wednesday during the official opening will be an appearance by the Edmonton Aquadetes.

The Aquadettes are a schronized swimming club who will be doing a demonstration of some of the routines that have made them into a well-known and highly competitive group in many differen competitions.

There will be no ribbon cutting ceremony to officially open the pool with ribbon cutting honours being done by a representative of the Alberta Agriculture.

Speaking briefly at the opening will be John Batalk, M.L.A. Georgs Baker, Mayor of Ryley, and Howard Berke, president of the Agricultural Society.

Following the opening ceremonies, coffee and donuts will be served. However, due to the limited amount of space available at the swimming pool, coffee will be served in the school gymnasium.

Opening ceremonies are scheduled for eight o'clock.

Originally, the official opening had been scheduled for yesterday (Wednesday) but, were postponed for one week because of a scheduled recreation meeting which was expected to attract people from all over the county.

Everyone is welcome to attend the opening.

Five people operate the pool with Beth Chernawski of Edmonton in the role of pool supervisor.

Connie Lambert is the senior lifeguard-instructor while Don Lien is a lifeguard and instructor, on a part-time basis.

The other two staff members are cashiers, Tanya Nerdby and Darcy Romaniuk, both of whom attend school in Ryley.

At the present time, attempts are being made to place one more member on staff to assist with the instructor-lifeguard duties.

Peaceful

Since it opened, the Ryley Swimming Pool hasn't had too many quiet moments as over 100 swimmers use it daily, either for lessons or for public swimming. The official opening of the new pool will take place Wednesday night at eight o'clock.

Withdrawal poser unsolved by board

The Investigating Committee of the Regional Recreation and Parks Board will have to meet again and find some recommendations pertaining to the Viking-Tofield situation.

This decision was reached at a Board meeting held in Ryley near the end of September when members couldn't agree on what had been discussed at special meetings held in regard to Viking and Tofield decisions to pull out of regional recreation.

Two special meetings had been held and members were told that no changes suggested would satisfy either Tofield or Viking. In fact, it was noted that no recommendations had been forthcoming for the Board's consideration in this matter.

According to reports, the Investigating Committee meetings served to point out only that the Board was functioning properly and administrative procedures were being properly carried out.

The subject was discussed without the presence of staff members.

The subject of agreement and regulation changes was postponed until the October meeting because the proposals had not been discussed by local councils. Also put off to the October meeting was study and approval of the five-year Master Plan.

A parks' committee report was not available for the meeting.

It was decided that arts and crafts equipment could be used, free of charge, by Lakeland College and Further Education with only the administrator and program supervisor authorized to grant permission to move any equipment.

Charles Sears was asked to contact the county School Committee to find out why there was so much difficulty in obtaining schools for use in programs.

The meeting was chaired by Dennis Cooper with representatives from Tofield, Bruce, Holden, Kinsella, Ryley, and Viking in attendance. Also represented was county council and recreation staff.

Information for this news story was obtained from the minutes of a meeting held on September 29th. Despite the fact the minutes were received late last week, they were noted to be "unapproved minutes".

Garbage disposal debated in Ryley

The problem of garbage disposal occupied much of the time of two recent meetings of the village council of Ryley.

Council was told that a proposal for a regional garbage disposal ground had been submitted involving Ryley, Holden, Tofield, Viking, and the County of Beaver.

Representatives of these centers were to have met with representatives of the department of Environment to discuss the problem. (Note, this meeting was scheduled to be held on September 23). It was agreed that Ryley's secretary-treasurer, R.C. Hovland could act secretary of the group until a permanent secretary was named.

Council voted in favour of a motion that said that all costs in located a regional garbage disposal site be shared by the different communities involved.

It was determined that all tank and water sales, outside the village, would be terminated at once, because of the lowness of the village's own supply.

All councillors were given copies of the Peacetime Emergency Operations Plan for study and discussion at the next regular meeting.

Council agreed to share in the cost of the purchase of a radar gun by the Town of Tofield. The village's share of the cost would be $400. The gun is to be used by the Tofield Detachment of the RCMP.

Following a presentation by representatives from the Beaver Heritage Society, council agreed that a parking area would be made available on the south side of 51 Avenue from the east entrance area of the pool west to 53 Street, and that no parking be permitted

Beavers get tie

On the last play of their final game, Tofield [illegible] their first point in the Wheatland Football League.

Playing in Sedgewick on Saturday, the Beavers booted a single point on the final play of the game to earn a 7-7 stalemate with the Rams. Earlier in the game, Doug Nachtigal had scored a major for Tofield.

Nachtigal earned himself all star mention for Saturday's game. In addition to scoring a major, he came on as quarterback after Ed Donnan and Dean McLeod were both injured.

Other stars of the game for the Beavers were Eldon Campbell, Arnie Wiens, and Bruce Barnetta.

Team officials have indicated that a meeting will be called in the near future to plan a wind-up banquet and finalize the finances for the past season.

Last rites held for B.O. Kirkelund Ryley

Funeral services for the late Bjarne Oliver Kirkelund, who died suddenly October 9, were held on Oct. 15 , from Bethel Lutheran Church in Ryley, with Rev. Oscar Lokken officiating

Born July 17, 1916, Mr. Kirkelund had called the Ryley district 'home' since moving there in 1927 with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. O Kirkelund. The deceased served with the First Canadian Survey Regiment, enlisting as soon as war was declared, and returned to Ryley in 1946, where he operated his father's business. In 1950, he joined Imperial Oil and surveyed in northern Alberta and B.C. and the Territories until his retirement, in 1971, to Edmonton

Mr. Kirkelund was predeceased by a sister, Gladys, in 1932, and was in the unique situation of having a common birthday with this sister, and with another sister, Olga, and with a brother, Olav, though all were born in different years.

Mourning his loss are Mrs. Olga Annebo of Edmonton; O Kirkelund of Vanouver; sisters, Gladys, Mrs. Vernon Carlisle of Vancouver, and Helen, Mrs Peter Rumkle of North Vancouver. He also leaves four nephews, one niece, and a cousin, Botolf Kirkelund of Ryley, as well as relatives in Norway

Honorary pallbearers were old friends, Arnold Bagge, Walter Norton, Alan Pepper, and Lloyd Thornley, with cousins Sidney Weldon and Obed Olson, the latter three not in attendance at the funeral.

Active pallbearers were his nephews, Mitchell and David Carlisle, Wayne Tough, Gordon Kirkelund, and Gordon and Timothy Rumkle.

Mr Kirkelund was an outdoorsman, sport enthusiast, and active member of the Royal Canadian Legion, belonging latterly with Branch No. 34 in Edmonton. Legion services were held at the graveside, with old friends and comrades, Anderson, Brown, Campbell, Davison, Harris, Kirkelund, Vergette, and Wentzaencel forming the Honor Guard.

Huge carrot is harvested

It's enough to make the Jolly Green Giant step back

A carrot, a product of Mrs. Tom Shimko's garden, Holden, weighs one and three-quarter pounds.

Debbie and Greg Kamarchuk found the carrot in the Shimko garden while helping with the fall chore of garden-harvesting While many of the other carrots taken from the garden were over-sized, this giant was one of the largest.

A pound and three-quarters of carrot would make a nice-sized carrot cake, a tall glass of carrot juice, a large bowl of carrot soup or dinner for three or four grown rabbits.

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

Poe is getting almost too modern. The need for power and running water I can appreciate but I questioned the need for a street light. But, as with all things, modernization must plow on. Poe now has a downtown street lamp.

"Lorraine, an outside light would really be the answer. Have you ever travelled a darken roadway and suddenly spotted a bright light in the distance? Even if the car is running good and it's warm outside, the light offers comfort. It does."

My husband's reasoning sounded like something borrowed from The First Christmas, so I suggested lighting candles in the window.

"That's hardly funny, Lorraine."

True. And so modernization took its course.

The power people came and went in less than two hours, leaving behind a tall pole capped with a bright burning bulb (which, amazingly enough, Awoke when it's night-time without being told).

"What's that noise?", Bob woke me at 3 d.m. to ask. "Just the Sheriff - - Matt."

"What's got into him? Sounds like he's sick." "I'll go see."

Now the power people told Bob and I that, for a week or so, we might have some difficulty adjusting to the light in the night - - - but they didn't say anything about Matt! "What was the matter?"

"He feels the same way I do about the light." "What?"

"He does. It's shining into his room and he can't sleep." "I'll put a blind on the window tomorrow." "Don't. Let him get used to it." I didn't and he did. Matt adjusted so nicely to the night light that I almost felt guilty about condemning modernization.

Almost.

It wasn't until locals visited the store and commented on the street light that I felt it necessary to retract my previous statements and say something nice about the light.

It was a mistake.

Bob now has ideas of putting up a second light and he and regular Poe Store visitor, Jim McLennan, are actually discussing the possibility of a Saturday street-dance under the glow of, not one, but TWO street lights.

I'm going to have a talk with the Sheriff. There ought to be a law.

Lakeshore-McKenzie news items

Mrs. Ellen Eaton

On Oct 17th, Fred and Nancy Ouyschuk of Edmonton brought Mrs. Irlene Sieb of Ladner, B.C. (who was visiting them) out to the farm for a visit with Irlene's brother Charlie and Mickey Niemetz where she stayed until Saturday. While there, she visited at the homes of Barb and Ronnie Goeglein, Elmer and Vi Goeglein in Tofield, Lizzie and Stan Schacher and also her brother, George and Ida Niemetz in Tofield

Mrs Blanche Goodair of Lloydminster, Sask. arrived on Sunday for a visit at the homes of her two daughters, Deanna and Arnold Nelson and Gail and Ron MacAdam and baby daughter in the McKenzie district

On Oct. 20th, Deanna Nelson and Ellen Eaton were co-hostesses to the Lakeshore UCW in the basement of the United Church in Tofield with only 8 members present. After the meeting and business was completed, a luncheon was served by the hostesses before leaving for home.

Tuesday evening guests at the home of Ron and Barb Goeglein were Charlie and Mickey Niemetz and Charlie's sister, Mrs. Irlene Sieb of Ladner, B.C., and later in the evening, Carl and Mavis Jacobsen.

Weekend visitors at the farm home of Mrs Ellen Eaton were her son, Walter and Evelyn Eaton and daughter, Karen, (Thurs. to Sunday) and her other son, Leroy Eaton and son Ronnie (Friday to Sunday) all of Fort McMurray On Saturday evening Ellen entertained all with a turkey supper in honor of Walter's birthday. All left Sunday forenoon and Walter and Evelyn's son, Brian, who had been staying at the farm returned to Fort McMurray at the same time.

Deanna and Frank Edwards and children of Whitecourt were Oct. 19 to 20th visitors at the home of Deanna's parents, Howard and Mae Furgason. While here, they attended the funeral of their friend, Jim Fisher on Wednesday afternoon.

On Wednesday evening, Howard and Mae's daughter, Mrs. Doris Brown and children, and Mrs. Marilyn (Moss) Langille of Calgary, were also visitors there. Marilyn has been staying at the home of her father, Veryn and Ethel Moss in Tofield and visiting old friends of her school days.

Sunday visitors at the home of Carl and Mavis Jacobsen and Karen were their daughter, Clarice and Peter Anderson and little son, Leif, and Carl's brother, Fred and Grace Jacobsen and 3 sons, Glen and Ronnie, all of St. Albert Fred and Grace and family are moving to B.C.

Sunday evening guests at the farm home of Mrs. Ellen Eaton and Mervin Ross were Mervin's nephew, Ken and Rachel Ross and 3 daughters, Carla and Tammy.

Weather in this district, although much colder this week, there is still no snow and farmers are still gathering in their bales and some are doing work on the land preparing for another spring.

Holden Beavers select officers

On Thursday, the first meeting of the Holden Beavers Hockey Club took place to elect new officers and discuss future business

The new executive are: Joe Komarinsky, general manager; Lud Banach, team manager; and Muriel Chamberlain, secretary-treasurer

Lud Banach and Ken Chamberlain will act as co-coaches until such time as the team is signed and a permanent coach chosen.

It was decided that the Holden Beavers hockey club would sponsor a minor league team, 16 years and under. They will help them in any way possible both through practices and financially.

The hockey club has scheduled an auction sale as their first fund-raising project. The auction will be held at the Complex on Saturday afternoon at 1:00 p.m.

All donations will be gladly accepted and will be picked up by members of the executive and team.

The Council felt that this property was of more value than indicated in the tenders. Moved that all tenders for the purchase of the N W 23-49-20-W4th be refused.

Correspondence from the Provincial Planning Branch indicated the value of the Park Reserve on Lot 6, Plan 7520508 was $1,640.00. Moved that we will require $1,640.00 to remove the park reserve caveat from Lot 6 Plan 7520508.

Mr David Thompson of the Highway Patrol Division attended the meeting in regard to the problem of enforcing weight restrictions.

He advised that the policy of the Department of Transportation has changed. They are not so concerned with the weights as long as there are enough tires to prevent damage to the roads. They will not enforce weight limits as long as the vehicle has the number of tires to handle it.

He suggested we should have a permit system so that there is control of vehicles carrying overload permits using the roads designated on the permit.

Mr. Thompson was complimented on his knowledge and advice on weight restrictions.

A notice from the Provincial Planning Branch, indicated that the subdivision application in the S.W. 19-51-16-W4 was approved.

Moved that the notice from the Provincial Planning Branch, advising that appeals will be heard on sub-divisions refusals in the N E 5-49-17-W4 and the N E 23-50-20-W4 on October 20th, 1976, be received and filed.

Moved that correspondence from Can Pac Minerals Ltd. regarding hauling coal from test pits be received and filed.

Moved that correspondence from the Department of Transportation, that bridges are complete in the W N W 1-49-16-W4 and the W S W 34-50-17-W4 and are now the responsibility of the County, be received and filed.

Moved that a report on the Bruce Community Well from the Vegreville Health Unit be received and filed.

A letter from the Department of Environment, Water Resources Division, outlined remedies to reduce flooding in the W½ 30-49-15-W4.

It was felt that this would be relatively easy to do. Moved that Cr. Kropielnicki be authorized to arrange for the necessary equipment to remedy this flooding problem.

A letter from the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts and Counties advised that a meeting to discuss the County Act would be held on October 28th. Moved that these Councillors who will attend the Alberta School Trustees Association convention, where this matter is to be discussed, be authorized to attend this meeting.

A letter from the Town of Tofield requested the indication of the Council as to whether or not they would contribute the cost of a radar gun to be used by the R.C.M.P. Our cost would be about $400.00. Moved that we contribute to the cost of the radar gun.

Moved that the Council approve an application for permission to put a mobile home on the S.E. 2-48-13-W4.

A request from the Department of Consumer Affairs for approval of the Council for a business licence to A and A Electric and Machinery for sale of machinery products was presented. Moved that the County Council has no objection to this licence.

Moved that a request from Rentjes Engineering Ltd for pipeline crossings from the S.E. 1-50-17-W4 to S W 6-50-16-W4 and S.W. 6-50-16-W4 to N.W. 31-49-16-W4 be approved.

Moved that the following request from Calgary Power Ltd. for line extensions be approved

District news items from Ryley

Lena Reil

Ten Ladies of the Rebekah Lodge motored to Viking on Sunday to pay a visit with the senior citizens at Vialta Lodge. They took along a nice birthday cake to honor the ones who had birthdays in October. They also had food for their supper which everyone enjoyed.

Entertainment was supplied by a group of ladies from Ryley. Rev. Meddle had an number of children who took part in the program by singing which the folks enjoyed very much.

Any happenings or events coming up please contact the Mercury Correspondent at Ryley, 663-3722.

While Elmer Anderson and Ed Albrecht were in Edmonton on Monday, they called on Dr. Hitchen at the Aberhart Hospital where he is a patient.

Ryley and District Welcoming Committee 1976, representing churches and various organizations, met on Wednesday evening. It was decided to have a pot-luck supper and open house at the Ryley Community Hall on Wednesday, Nov. 17th., commencing at 6:30 p.m. to welcome all newcomers that have moved to Ryley and district since April 30, 1975.

Invitations will be mailed to all the newcomers. Ladies are asked to bring a large casserole with newcomers being exempt from bringing food.

Walter Heiland of Edmonton (formerly of Doddsround Hill district) was well known for his interest in sports. His children attended Standard School during their time on the farm. He passed away on Oct. 17 at 87 years.

He leaves to mourn, five sons, Irwin, Merlin and Glenn of Fort Saskatchewan, Allan of Whitehorse, David of Grande Prairie; one daughter, Thelma Flemming of Kingman; seventeen grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at the Calvary Lutheran Church. Rev. Christiansen officiated with interment in Evergreen Memorial Gardens.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Helgaland and family, and Stan and Ida Hunka were guests at the Wilfred Helgaland home in Camrose on Sunday.

FROM THE LION'S DEN

The Beaver Heritage Swimming Pool is to receive a further $2,100 from the Ryley Lions Club. This money came from the Club's various fund raising activities. The Lion's club has now placed its order for 1977 Ryley and District Community Calendars. They are expected to arrive in late December.

The annual canvass for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind will be conducted by Lion's members on the morning of Wednesday, Nov. 1, 1976.

Ernie and Rita (Davick) Evenson are living in Camrose since their marriage on Sept. 3.

The Ryley Junior High girls lost to Viking in their volleyball games on Thursday. The Ryley Junior High boys won their games.

Classes will be cancelled on Nov. 5 as the Ryley School will host their first "Parent-Teacher" interviews date of the year.

On Oct. 15, Ryley High School Students Union held an initiation day for grade 10 students entering high school. At noon hour, the entire high school student body gathered in the Chemistry Lab for a dinner, after which a Student Union general assembly was held at which Vanda Johnson gave an explanation of the structure A Students Union, it's constitution and its purpose.

Alberta's youth

... promise of a proud future heritage.

"To be named Alberta Junior Citizen constitutes a tribute to the courage and selflessness of young men and women to their fellow men, which too often pass unnoticed."

...The Rt. Hon. John G. Diefenbaker

Each year, with the help of proud Albertans and the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association, we choose our Junior Citizen winners from among many deserving young people.

We salute all the candidates and welcome the winners to our Honor Roll. Their continuing acts of bravery, initiative and social responsibility are a promise that the fine values that built this province will carry on—assuring a proud future heritage.

The 1976 Junior Citizens were saluted at the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association Convention in Edmonton. During their visit they toured the Alberta Legislative Buildings.

Mennonites' Self Help program

For those who are not familiar with "Self Help", it is a program run by the Mennonite Central Committee.

The purpose of "Self Help" is to help needy people help themselves. It is good to give clothing, food, shelter, but it is even better to help them support themselves.

At the moment, we are helping needy people in Kenya, India, Israel, Haiti, Taiwan, Thailand, Bolivia and also in parts of Appalachia region in the U.S. and our own native Indian people in Canada.

In India, Self Help gives employment to refugee or displaced persons. Their work is embroidered articles. Another group of people who are disabled are trying to make a livelihood by doing leather crafts.

In Haiti, the mother is often the sole supporter of herself and family. The MCC staff in charge visits the homes of the workers which gives them an extra opportunity to get to know the people.

Articles made in the Middle East by refugee women are also distributed by the MCC. Self Help includes jewellery, olivewood, needlework, candleholders, camels, etc.

In Taiwan, plastic bags are woven by handicapped children and widowed mothers who are the sole support of large families. Many people carve wooden figures as a side-home industry along with farming.

In Thailand, we give help to a resettlement program that is sponsored by the Church of Christ.

Through the trading post in Saskatchewan, we sell items made by native Indians.

On October 30th, at 2 p.m., there will be a display and sale of some of these home-crafted articles in the lobby of the community hall. Coffee and cookies will be served free of charge and a representative will be there to answer any questions. All proceeds go directly to further this work.

Harvest Jamboree is a great success

by Mrs. N. Willson

Despite a very chilly day outside, those attending the Beaverhill Hall's Harvest Jamboree were able to enjoy activities within the hall at very comfortable temperatures.

It was obvious that many recalled last year's Jamboree since one could see many enthusiasts posting off, first a winter coat, then wool sweaters, in order to make themselves comfortable. You see, proceeds from last year's Harvest Jamboree went to the purchase of a new furnace for the hall.

George Lee was once again back in his element as he took over the auctioneering of the many articles both inside and outside of the hall.

Articles for the sale included: clothes, large and small appliances, baby needs, dry goods, garden produce, live rabbits, vehicle necessities, vet supplies, plus various vouchers and work orders.

Besides members and friends donations to the sale, many merchants and businesses in the Tofield area also contributed in kind.

A bake sale was also held in conjunction with the auction. One individual found it very handy to purchase a cake saver and then, very quickly, fill it from the bake table.

The button guessing contest was won by Ernie Herklotz of Tofield.

Over the past year, the Beverhill Hall Association has held most drives, bingo's, a private Hallowe'en party, a private New Year's Eve party, plus many dances.

Similar events are planned for the forthcoming season. To commence with, a Hallowe'en party for members and their families gets underway at 8 p.m. this Sunday, at the hall.

Come in costume and bring provisions so we can have a pot-luck supper after the party. Also bring along Hallowe'en treats for the children.

As I see it

—by Dr. Walt Buck, M.L.A., Clover Bar

Provincial Municipal Responsibility

Almost 18 months ago, in a speech to the Legislature, I talked about our commitment to sharing a portion of income and corporation taxes with municipalities. The Official Opposition is still pushing for that commitment. We will continue to urge the government to give municipal governments a break by allowing them to receive funding without "strings attached" so they can suit their own priorities. I attended a seminar in Jasper last week which dealt at length with the issue of revenue-sharing.

If you have suggestions or concerns, please call me at my Edmonton Office, 427-2321, or in Fort Saskatchewan at 998-2576, or my home, 998-2169.

Government Accountability

During recent visits across Alberta, members of the Opposition found in speaking to town, village and municipal councils, school and hospital boards that one of the major concerns involves inability to reach and communicate with government ministers. This would appear to be a legitimate concern.

During debate in the Legislature last week, I brought this concern before the Assembly, noting that there is a suspicion that the Premier is being shielded from what's really happening in this province by his ministers, back-bench M.L.A.s and administrators. It is apparent that the much-publicized "Cabinet Tours" are simple exercises in public relations. It appears to me that the Premier and cabinet ministers are not really listening to what people are saying. Either that is a fact, or they're not seeing the right people.

Security. Income. And flexibility.
No wonder they're Canada's most popular investment.

For over 30 years Canada Savings Bonds have been the most popular investment in Canada. Literally millions of Canadians have used Canada Savings Bonds as a way to build a solid financial base. They're simple, straightforward and easy to understand.

They're a great way to save. Here's why.

Security.
Canada Savings Bonds are secure because they're backed by all the resources of Canada.

Income.
They pay good income, an average annual interest to maturity in 1985 of 9.13%. Each $100 bond begins with $8.50 interest the first year and then pays $9.25 interest for each of the remaining 8 years.

Flexibility.
They're flexible, because you can buy Canada Savings Bonds in various denominations, for cash or on instalments wherever you bank or invest. And they're cashable anytime, at their full face value plus earned interest. This year, the purchase limit has been set at $15,000.

Two Kinds.
A. Fully registered bonds. These bonds are registered as to both principal and interest. The interest is sent to you automatically by cheque each year on November 1st. They are available in denominations of $500, $1,000 and $5,000.

B. Coupon bonds. These bonds are registered as to principal and have annual interest coupons payable to bearer. They are available in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000.

Progressive Farming

Feed Sampling Particularly Important this Year

It is always important to have livestock feed analyzed before formulating a ration, but it is even more important this year because so much of the hay is low quality and because considerably more straw will be fed this winter to cut production costs.

Alberta agriculture's animal nutritionists, Jerome Martin, says there will be a much finer line this year than usual between hay that meets the basic requirements of beef cow maintenance rations and hay that does not. If the information sheets that are included with the sampling kits are properly filled out, which includes outlining the proposed ration, the staff who analyze the feed will be able to suggest appropriate supplements, when these are needed, or a combination of feeds that might be used to provide a balanced ration.

Although many people think of straw as just straw, there is a great deal of variation in its fibre content and its protein content. Some straw, particularly oat and barley straw, is of very good quality and can be used as the basis of nutritious beef cow maintenance rations when supplemented with hay, grain or a protein supplement. In fact, a good quality straw contains almost as much energy as good hay. On the other hand, very poor quality straw would be better used for bedding than as feed because of the cost involved in adequately supplementing it.

Chaff, either fed alone or in combination with straw, can also vary greatly in quality, depending upon the amount of grain and weed seeds it contains. In some cases it will be of such high quality that very little supplementation will be required.

Grain, like roughage, varies in its energy and protein content. Hence, anyone who plans to use his own feed this winter must have each feed component analyzed if he wants to formulate an adequate low cost ration.

All district Agriculturists have the necessary equipment for taking forage and grain samples and the information sheets which should accompany each sample. The samples whould be sent to the Alberta Soil and Feed Testing Laboratory, O.S. Longman Building, 6909 - 116 Street, Edmonton, T6H 4P2. The analysis fee for each sample is $2.00.

Around the town

Ed Ferguson has returned from Peace River where he was helping Conrad Scott with harvesting. While there, he went big game hunting and bagged a moose.

A children's dance is planned for Beaver Hill Community Hall on November 19th.

A number of ladies visited with Annie Lancaster at Bethany Home in Camrose over the weekend. The occasion was her 93rd birthday. They also called on other friends in the home, while there.

A weekend visitor with Mr. and Mrs Bill Friesen was Bill's brother, Ike, of Lacombe.

Tofield Kindergarten Parents Group will meet in the school library on November 4th, at eight o'clock. Guest speaker for the occasion will be Mr. Gobiertz of the Early Childhood Services with the Department of Education.

Hastings Lake

Lynn Gates

The Hastings Lake Ladies Group met on Thursday at the home of Lynn Tiedemann. Several topics were discussed, among them the upcoming European-style dinner to be held on Nov. 10 at Hastings Lake Hall. Mrs. Gwen Luchkie and Mrs. Lynn Tiedemann were presented with birthday gifts. Mrs. Irene Scott will be the hostess for the next meeting on Nov. 18.

Whist drives will begin on Friday, Nov. 12 at the hall, at 8:30 p.m. These very popular events will be convened by Mrs. Irene Scott.

Several people from this area and others from Ryley, Ardrosan and Sherwood Park are involved in a Stone Masonry course presently being taught at the hall. As a project, the group is constructing a concrete and field-stone barbecue to serve as a permanent fixture on the grounds. Hoken Marsh of Uncas is instructing the course.

Mary Moore returned home on Friday from Foxboro, Ontario where she had spent two weeks visiting her daughter, Hazel and family, and calling on other relatives.

Jake and Abe Ewart of Ontario are visiting with their sister, Katie and Henry Hurbert, also other relatives and friends in Tofield and Ryley.

A large number of relatives and friends from Tofield and surrounding area attended the 50th wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Gudmundson on Sunday afternoon, held in New Saroptia.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Robinson enjoyed the company of their daughter Mrs. J.A.L. Smith of Edmonton last Thursday.

Mr and Mrs. Pete Rempel of Yellowknife spent a day with Mrs Rempel last week.

Mrs. Dorothy Freebury has returned from visiting with Micheal Freebury in Ottawa. Colin Freebury had an interesting three-week stay in Bogota, Columbia, and in Kingston, Jamaica, while doing work for CUSO. Mrs. Margaret Freebury will be returning from Blantyre, Malawi to Ottawa, on November 1st.

Abe Weins of Ontario is spending several weeks with his sister, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Neufeld, as well as visiting with other relatives in Tofield.

Doreen Beerson of Tofield has started a two-year service in Markham, Illinois, arranged through Mennonite Voluntary Service.

Remembrance Day services planned

Remembrance Day services have been planned for next Thursday (November 11) in the communities of Holden, Tofield, and Ryley.

In all three centers, services of remembrance will remain basically the same as have occurred in recent years.

Turnouts to such services has often been pretty small in the past, and officials of Legion branches are urging the public to turn out and support this year's services held annually to honour Canada's war dead.

Holden

All parade participants are asked to meet at the Holden Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion at 10.15 a.m.

The parade to the cenotaph will leave the Legion at 10.30 a.m. with services at the cenotaph scheduled for eleven o'clock.

Following services and laying of wreaths at the cenotaph, the parade will regroup and march to the Community Hall, where a public service has been planned.

Tofield

Remembrance Day services have been planned for the Legion Hall and the cenotaph.

Marchers will leave the Legion Hall in time for services at the cenotaph at 11.00 a.m., which will include two minutes of silence and the laying of wreaths. Following the cenotaph ceremonies, a service will be held in the Tofield Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion's new hall.

Ryley

Participants in Ryley's parade are asked to gather at the Ryley Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion in time to march to the war memorial for services at 11.00 a.m.

Following the laying of wreaths, two minutes of silence, and other tributes to Ryley's war dead, the parade will form up and march to the Community Hall.

At the community hall, a public service has been planned.

Baker re-elected as Ryley's mayor

George Baker was re-elected as Mayor of the Village of Ryley when the village council held its organizational meeting on October 28.

Councillor Brown was elected as deputy-mayor for a one year term. Council decided to hold regular meetings on the second Monday of each month, and the naming of the regular committees was postponed until the November meeting.

Following a lengthy discussion, council gave its approval to the five year master plan of the Beaver Region... Recreation and Parks Board.

Council was told that a by-law enforcement officer would have to be obtained by the village.

This information followed a meeting between Councillor Brown and the officer commanding the Tofield Detachment of the RCMP, in which council learned that a new one would cost at least $5,225.84, council decided to repair the old one for use this coming winter.

The secretary-treasurer was authorized to investigate the costs of obtaining oxygen equipment and the necessary personnel to use this equipment in cases of emergency. Councillor Taylor reported on a seminar he had attended at Land Titles Office while Councillor Brown reported on his attendance at the AUMA convention.

Other routine business matters were handled.

Information for this story was obtained from the Unapproved minutes of council's meeting on October 28th.

Beavers lose in exhibitions

Once again the hockey season is with us and the Holden Beavers are preparing for a busy season.

Already they have played two exhibition games to flex their muscles.

On Oct. 28th., they played the Vegreville Seniors and were defeated 9-2. Gerald Lampko and Andy Chamberlain claiming the only two goals.

On Sunday, they played Ardrossan and again were defeated, 8-4. Gerald Lampko scored two goals while Lloyd Meyers and Wayne Ogrodnick each got one. The many Holden fans following the team to Vegreville and Ardrossan enjoyed both games.

The Beaver's held a most successful auction on Saturday at the Holden Complex.

On Saturday, at 8:30 p.m., the Beavers will again be on the ice at Vegreville, playing Andrew.

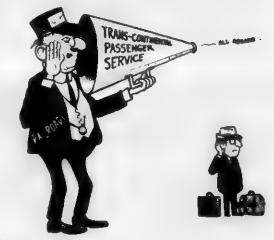
Pool opens

The swimming pool in Ryley has been officially opened.

Although the pool has been operating for some time now, official opening ceremonies were held last night (Wednesday) with a good crowd in attendance.

Because of The Mercury's deadline, details of last night's opening could not be included in this issue. A story and pictures from the opening ceremonies will be published next week.

In this issue of The Mercury, write-ups, pictures and congratulatory ads about the new pool in Ryley, may be found.



Mob law

It's only a few weeks since the beaches around the country were populated by crowds, and it's only a few weeks ago that we heard one of those stories which make you wonder what the country is coming to.

More or less as a summer wind-up it seems, a group of young men and women invaded one of the more popular provincial parks and by sheer weight of numbers, reportedly around 500, took over the beach area. As the party developed, and the weather was warm, the great majority progressively removed clothing, until all were enjoying life in the nude.

Absolutely unable to do anything about the situation were three policemen assigned to the area.

However, one policeman patrolling in a boat in nearby islands viewed a quiet family picnic on a beach, where bottled beer was being used by a family who had fled the teen-scene on the main beach. He forthwith objected, since it is illegal, he said, to have beer in a public place.

When questioned about the legality of nudity in a public place, and why he took no action at the other beach, he replied simply that any attempt to enforce the law there would result in mob action, and very serious consequences, since only three policemen could be called in.

Really, such situations are intolerable. There is no place for mob law, or mob rule, or mob defiance of the law. Surely there would be trouble if attempts were made to arrest ringleaders in such a case, but there will be further trouble because such attempts were not made.

There must have been other areas from which policemen could have been transferred in. If necessary, it should have been possible to field a group of troops. Arrests of some of the participants should have been certain. Even the recording of license plates, together with photographic evidence, might have produced salutary effects.

It's unfortunate that greater efforts aren't made to stop this sort of thing, because one success breeds even greater defiance of the law, and repeated floutings of it.

And it can never be fully appreciated, either, what the stand of even one determined policeman might accomplish. Sergeant Sam Steele may seem to be almost a legendary figure from the earlier days of the North West Mounted Police, but he was real enough. And singlehandedly he stood his ground in the Yukon passes, and forced hundreds of rough and violent men to break their lawless rush for the goldfields, and to accept and live by the laws of the Canadian government which had stationed him in that isolated spot . . . with no reserves to fall back on.

It needs a real man, a big man, but it starts with one man just the same

Report from Parliament Hill

by
Don Mazankowski, M.P.

On Tuesday, October 12th, the first session of this 30th Parliament officially came to a close and the second session commenced with the Speech from the Throne

This Speech was a wide-ranging general description o the problems facing Canada today In it, the government attempts to touch on every base and appease the complaints of every part of society.

While the Speech contained few deflatio or specific proposals for action, it did have some very remarkable qualities in it Particularly notable is the change in attitude which the government has had with respect to private enterprise and the market system. The Prime Minister who said in December that governments must take a larger role in running our lives because the market system was not working, now has said in this Throne Speech that "the government intends to promote greater freedom and efficiency in the market place and thus reinforce the market system's vital role in the allocation of natural resources among national needs" If one can believe the Prime Minister this time, and many Canadians feel that his words have lost much credibility, then the government's new position is welcomed.

On the issue of bilingualism, the government has finally taken the advice of the Official Languages Commissioner and decided to shift the emphasis of the program to the school. It is to be hoped that the new focus of the bilingualism program will be one of moderation and respect for all parts of the country and all Canadians. The implementation of the bilingualism policy to date has become a major germ of dissent in this country and if not corrected will have grave implications for the future of Canada

LITTLE FOR AGRICULTURE

Agriculture was virtually ignored in the Speech, being given only two sentences in the sixteen page document The troubled beef and dairy industries were not even mentioned The limited attention given agriculture resulted in our Party bringing forth an amendment drawing focus to this fact and particularly in failing to meet the serious problems of the dairy and beef industries Another example of the government's in difference to agriculture is evidenced in a Notice of Motion tabled which calls for tariff reductions on many agricultural products This would have the effect of further reducing farm gate prices

To sum up the Speech from the Throne, the words of the Leader of the Opposition, Mr Clark, are appropriate He called it a "nice-sounding document that is shy on details There was no indication of concrete action on major problems and the government appeared to be turning away from some of the positions it has pursued actively in the past"

The government's concern with unemployment through its proposal for a permanent job creation scheme and continued high UIC payments seems to me to be somewhat misplaced. If that concern was shown in the application of government policies a lot of expense and grief could be saved A classic example can be found in the area of Lloydminster The oil export policy of the government has endangered the production of oil from the Lloydminster fields and the large number of jobs dependent on that production.

Representations from the industry, the city, and myself, have led t, the government establishing an export quota for Lloydminster-type heavy crude oil, but this is only a stop-gap measure. The Lloydminster oil is of a type that needs special refining if it is to be used as an energy source. The reserves of this oil are massive, but if something is not done to create a positive environment for development of the refining facilities necessary, the industry will die before any of the oil can be used to help Canada's energy problem. Further, a chance for substantial growth in the number of jobs and a boon in the economy of the whole Lloydminster area will be wasted.

LOSING WILL TO GOVERN

The opening of Parliament was also marked by the resignation of the seventh senior cabinet minister within a year James Richardson's resignation only serves to reaffirm the fact that the Trudeau Government has lost the capacity, and the will, to govern. This government has alienated vast segments of the Canadian population. The cabinet resignations are a manifestation of the disagreement and the lack of direction within the government. Mr. Richardson's own reasons for departure will undoubtedly gain a lot of attention and support. He resigned because he did not believe that it was fair to future Canadians to bring home the Constitution, lock language rights into it, and then give Quebec a veto power to ensure that no change could ever be made. I might add that unlike John Turner or Bryce Mackasey, Mr Richardson had the courage to tell the Canadian people why he resigned. Obviously, Mr. Trudeau's vision of Canada and that of Mr Richardson vary greatly What is Mr. Trudeau's vision of Canada" The following statement from a recent interview shows quite clearly what the Prime Minister sees in Canada's future "Our fate as Canadians won't be eternal, but I hope it will last in my time and in my children's time"

The question which immediately arises in my mind after reading this incredible statement is whether a man with such a short vision of Canada's future should be the head of its government

This session of Parliament could very well be one of the most important periods of our time Such crucial issues as the Constitution, the economy, the post-control period, and major structural changes in our system will all be dealt with in the coming months

I will continue to report to the people of Vegreville constituency on a regular basis during this important time. If you have any comments, opinions, or problems, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Liquid Supplement and straw for beef cows

Cereal straw has a tremendous potential for lowering winter feeding costs of beef cows, according to D.B. Karren, Livestock Supervisor at Red Deer. In fact, supplemented straw rations can reduce feed costs by as much as $20 per cow.

Since straw is low in energy, protein, minerals, and vitamins, and because cows on a straw ration are able to consume less, they can't normally obtain enough nutrients from straw to maintain weight. Under mild winter conditions this is of little immediate concern, although it may lead to poorer breeding performance.

However, during cold winters, storms, or severe cold spells, the cow's appetite increases, and she consumes more straw than she is able to digest. The undigested straw is forced into the lower stomach where it remains undigested. This leads to impaction and death in a relatively short-period. With properly supplemented straw rations, however, impaction should not be a problem.

Straw can be supplemented in several ways, one of which is a liquid supplement. Most liquid supplements contain molasses, non-protein nitrogen (urea), phosphorus, some minerals and vitamins. Some also have small amounts of other natural by-products. Basically, they are all formulated to provide protein, although they do supply some energy, minerals and vitamins. They are costly

	Protein (lb./day)	Energy (mega-calories of digestible energy per day)
Nutrient requirements of a 1,000-lb. dry beef calf	1.4	13.0
Nutrient supplied by:	0.8	11.4
-15 lbs barley straw	0.6	11.4
- 2.5 lbs. liquid protein supplement	0.8	2.5
TOTAL	1.4	13.9

One pound of liquid supplement supplies about the same amount of energy as one pound of hay, but liquid supplements contain a higher amount of phosphorus than most feeds. This extra phosphorus can improve breeding performance Most of the protein comes from non-protein nitrogen, mainly urea. Although urea-containing supplements do not usually give as good an animal performance as does natural protein, their low cost usually makes them economical. Reduced performance with urea is especially true in case of low energy rations

Straw rations have to be supplemented with energy, protein, minerals and vitamins. Work at the University of Alberta, has shown that cows on a supplemented ration consumed about 1½ pounds of straw per 100 pounds of body weight. The following table indicates the adequacy of a straw ration supplemented with only a liquid supplement.

Although the above ration might not give any immediate problems during mild weather, the cows would certainly lose weight because of insufficient energy in the ration. It is possible that insufficient energy over a prolonged period could result in lowered breeding performance as well.

The immediate danger of such a ration would be during cold weather Cattle would consume extra straw and would require extra protein to aid in its digestion. Theoretically the extra protein would be available from the liquid supplement, but there could be problems with this theory.

Liquid supplements are formulated so that they won't freeze in winter. Because they do not freeze, their temperature remains the same as that of the air. When the air temperature goes down to -30 C., the temperature of the liquid supplement also goes down to 30 C. Hence, consumption of the liquid protein will decrease during colder weather. If consumption is lower during cold weather when straw consumption has increased, the impaction problem could be aggravated.

It is certainly safer, and probably just as economical, to supplement straw rations with a protein supplement and grain. The choice of the supplement should be made on (among other things) price. In most cases, liquid supplements cost more per pound than dry supplements, but they have been sold on the basis of their convenience when compared with dry supplements. This is true when they are fed as the total supplement but when grain is going to be fed there is an advantage in using a dry supplement. A dry supplement is more convenient to mix with the grain. Feeding a dry supplement with grain will also give more control over the amount of supplement fed.

Ellen Eaton

Ellen Eaton was among 33 senior citizens of the Ryley and Tofield districts who went to Edmonton with the County of Beaver Recreational bus on a tour of Fort Edmonton and the Archives Bldg. Due to the cold weather, the tour was shortened at Fort Edmonton and only the buildings within the fort were visited. On the way back they stopped at the Co-op store and had supper at the restaurant there and some did some shopping before coming home

Mrs Effie Paulson, Mrs. Mavis Jacobsen, Mrs. Mabel Ferguson, Mrs Barb Goeglein, Mrs Deanna Nelson, Mrs Nadia Lebbuser and little son, Scott, and Mrs. Mae Ferguson all gathered at the home of Mrs Mickey Niemetz to help her celebrate her birthday with the usual lunch and birthday cake

Quite a number of people from this district attended the open house and 40th wedding anniversary celebration held in the Tofield Community Hall to honor Pete and Josie Onuska of Tofield on Sunday afternoon. All their family except one son were able to attend and many old-time friends, and former residents of Tofield some from distant places came to extend their congratulations.

Open house was also held on Sunday at the United Church Manse in Tofield with several from the congregations of Holden, Ryley and Tofield among the guests as well as many others, who attended to welcome Rev and Mrs. Medell (the new minister). Although the Medells have been here some time, the house warming had been delayed. The ladies of the UCW served the guests.

Competition is planned

The Beaver Regional Arts Committee has decided to conduct a poster competition to advertite the forthcoming music and arts festival

Cash prizes will be offered for the winning posters which must be submitted by February 28th. First prize will be $15 while second prize will be $10, and third prize will be $5

George Baker was named as being responsible for obtaining adjudicators for this winter's competitions. A number of names were suggested for Mr Baker to contact. It was suggested that piano companies be contacted to see if they would supply pianos for use in the festival, as a means of advertising their product.

The committee decided to apply for registration under the Societies Act.

The meeting was held on October 18th in Bruce. The next meeting of the committee will be held in the Holden School on November 16th

Johnson honoured by CLC's Alumni

A past president of the CLC Alumni Association and a man who has made outstanding contribution to the college, his church, and the community, Leroy Johnson was presented with the Distinguished Alumnus Award at the Homecoming Alumni Banquet on Saturday evening

In introducing their recipient, Alumni president Yvonne Myrehaug outlined the many areas in which Mr Johnson has given of himself over the years He has served Camrose Lutheran College as principal of the high school, director of admissions, and is presently athletics director and in charge of public relations

Mr Johnson planned the recent hockey and choir tour in Europe which was a great success, and was in charge of recruiting students. He has been active in church affairs, as a Sunday School teacher, and as a director for seven years on the Hastings Lake Bible Camp Board. The list of his contributions includes much more

Guest speaker for the evening was retired professor, Ed Marken, who told of interesting things ..hich were a part of C.L.C in the "olden" days, and introduced members of long-ago classes who were present. Those who represented the earliest classes were Mrs. Elvera Thompson of the 1915 class, and the special alumni of the evening, Mrs. Bertha McPherson (nee Falla) of Edmonton and Mrs Magda Henderickson of Camrose, both of the 1916 class

As Mr Marken recalled incidents from the honored years - 1916, 1926, 1936, 1946, 1956, 1966, and 1975- representatives from each class added a few words or a song In closing his enjoyable talk of jokes and witticisms, Mr Marken quoted, "We are not what we think we are, but what we think, we are "

In thanking the guest speaker, master of ceremonies Yvonne Myrehaug and that she had never known anyone else who gave one so many interesting things to think about in such an entertaining manner

Earlier Saturday, a President's tea, Alumni choir practice, and tours of the campus were held

On Sunday morning, following an early church service, dedication services for the new dormitory, located on the east side of the gully, were held

Rev Glenn Johnson, president of CLC conducted the dedication service, assisted by clergy from CLC, city churches and ELCC in attendance were former students, dating back to 1926, as well as present-day and future students

Following the dedication, Homecoming Weekend came to a close with a service in Messiah Lutheran Church

Another Auditor's Report

Last week the provincial auditor presented a report dealing with one aspect of the operation of the recently-dissolved and much-maligned Alberta Export Agency

The report pointed up the fact that much of the difficulty encountered by the ill-fated Export Agency was the result of "poor administrative and procedural discipline within the agency". As I see it, the information contained in the auditor's report simply continues to support the contention of the Official Opposition that dissolving the Export Agency does not allow the issue to be "swept under the rug".

It has now been documented that one of every four export ventures initiated by the agency has gone sour, and one of every five dollars guaranteed by the Export Agency has had to be paid by the taxpayers of this province!

One might argue that the incident investigated by the provincial auditor, involving an export of calves to Europe, involved just slightly over two thousand, four hundred dollars However, I believe its more a question of principle than money It's obvious that the points made in the auditor's report dealing with poor administration and procedural discipline should be further investigated.

It would make ultimate sense that, with the problems already uncovered within the Export Agency, it's not unreasonable to ask the provincial auditor to undertake a complete reassessment of the activity of the agency since its inception

Documentation of actual losses to the public of Alberta through disastrous deals by the agency will show the cost to Albertans has been over 4 million dollars

The only way the public can be fully informed of the actual losses and the inconsistent management of the Export Agency is for the government to allow for a full-fledged investigation by the provincial auditor.

Wildrose Council opens new season

Wildrose District Council met for its October meeting in Hay Lakes, on October 18 with about 30 members present. The meeting opened with president Harke in the chair Invocation was led by Pastor Howland

The various groups report they are now underway The following gives some idea as to how many boys are involved, as well as leaders, and their activities Many are just getting the wheels in motion

Bawlf reports having registered 11 Cubs, 6 Scouts and a new Scout leader 3rd Camrose reports 33 Cubs with 3 leaders and 11 Scouts with 3 leaders They have had a bake sale The scouts were planning a weekend campout 4th Camrose reports 45 Cubs with 7 leaders, 28 Beavers with 14 leaders They report real good co-operation from their registration night. 2nd Camrose was absent Edberg was not represented since it was their registration night Furtonah reports 7 Cubs with 2 leaders, 8 Scouts with 1 leader, and 7 Beavers with 2 leaders Kingman held a "leader" meeting with a fair turnout The result was 8 Scouts and 1 leader and 15 Cubs with the promise of a leader Interest was also expressed in the Beaver program The boys have a tree planting project if the weather permits

New Norway and Tofield were not represented Round Hill wants its chart..r reclaimed but as yet, has no organization

D C Jules Hall reports the training session for Cub I and Scout I is coming up on Nov 14, from 10 a m to 8 p m This is for all leaders and Jules would like to receive the names of those who plan to attend, as soon as possible This will be followed by a second session on February 13 These are important for all leaders if you plan to present a challenging program It leads to the Woodbadge

Any boy, 13 and over, interested in attending the Jamboree in P E I , July 3-10, 1977, should register now Total cost is thought to be in the vicinity of $350 Light-weight camping equipment is needed and you may be able to rent such from Red Deer if you enquire soon.

Honors and Awards Chairlady, Marilyn Andresen, reminds all groups to please submit names of people meriting such awards by the next meeting and no later. Time is needed to secure these awards in time for the annual meeting.

Each group is asked to bring a list of their new officers to the next meeting

Teresa Ramstad, 3rd Camrose, presented Wally Schultz with a "Thanks" badge for so capably leading their troop at the Jamgatta, filling in at the last minute for the regular leader

Inadvertently missed from the list of staff members from Wild Rose District who served at the Jamgatta was Brent Anderson

The next meeting will be held at the New Norway School, north door on November 8

Ahoy, the Madeleine

Dear Sir

I am writing to various newspapers across Canada in the hopes of making contact with members of the Ship's Company who sailed in the Canadian Navy frigate H.M.C.S. "CAP-DE-LA-MADELEINE" during the years 1944-45.

It has been over 30 years since we said our "so longs" and went our separate ways and just maybe there are some who have taken up residence in this area.

I hope to re-establish old friendships by means of a newsletter and if possible, organize a reunion in 1977.

Those who served in her during her first Commission (1944-45) or those who have knowledge of anyone who did so, may contact me at the following address:-

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

If there is a Hunter's Hall of Fame, Wanda Ramstad, her daughter, Tammy, and I deserve at least honorable mention.

I hadn't intended to spend the morning hunting. Actually, I was in the middle of house cleaning. The living-room floor was washed and waxed, the furniture dusted and I had just started to vacuum the couch and chair when the hunting expedition started.

From out of no-where came the fattest, sleekest, nervi est mouse. Without stopping to say "hello" or "goodbye", he skidded across the shiny floor, desperately seeking a hiding place.

My reaction was not out of the ordinary. I let out a yell, ran into the kitchen (catching my foot in the 20-foot vacuum cord), screamed louder, ran into the store, jumped up and down, called for Sheriff Matt to come to the rescue, jumped around some more, and did a bit more screaming. I was doing my mouse-scare dance in the centre of the store when Wanda and her young daughter walked in.

"A mouse. There's a mouse . . in there. He's big, fat - he's in there!" I screamed as mother and daughter stared at me in consternation.

"Where? Lorraine, calm down. Where?"

Somehow I did calm down and the three of us crept into the living room. Wanda led the way (a brown held high over her head). I followed, carrying the dustpan (one must think positive, we had decided during our in-the-store strategy conference) and little Tammy pulled up the rear.

"There," Wanda whispered. True enough, there he was, sitting quietly in the far corner of the living room between the television and the coffee table.

The plan of attack was one that would have made Napoleon jealous.

I was to watch the every move of the mouse, relay his position to young Tammy and she would then pass on the enemy's location to her mother. When (and if), attack was logical, both Tammy and I were to chorus the command. Once that command was voiced, silence was no longer called for. Then it was every man (mouse) for himself. Anything goes, we had decided. Screaming, yelling, shouting, jumping, pounding - anything. This was WAR.

We all took positions.

"Arrrghgarooooo," I yelled at the mouse.

Wanda, standing ready, accepted that yell as an attack signal and swung the broom like a top Yankee batter. Tammy and I, not to be left out, started the all-out scream attack. Jumping, yelling, cheering "our side" on to victory.

Somehow, things got out of hand.

"Get him Wanda . . . to your left."

"Come on Mommy . there he goes. . get him, Mom."

As her two assistants jumped up and down, cheered, ran in and out of the living-room, Wanda kept her head and carefully stalked the now tiring mouse. Finally she cornered him and, at my suggestion, we tried to convince Sheriff Matt that ridding Poe of my mice was indeed his duty. He looked at the mouse, sneered and strolled back to his room without so much as a. "Get out of town before sunset, pilgrim."

We tried coaxing the mouse into the centre of the living room with a piece of cheese (again, on my suggestion); I got on my knees and begged the mouse to fight fair. Tammy said she wasn't going to play anymore if the mouse wouldn't play by the rules - nothing worked.

"Listen Wanda, . . what if I scare him good? That should make him move into the open. You ready?"

Together, Tammy and I let loose our very best "Charge" command, hitting the wall and rocking the foundation with our jumping. That did it. The mouse sought new headquarters. Wanda threw the broom and I hit fly with the dustpan. The mouse hesitated long enough for either the broom or the dustpan to stun him and as he tried to get his bearings, we swept him into a paper bag and dumped him outside.

Let them tell you about the mouse they shoot, or the bear they tracked for days, I doubt any of them can outdo Poe's three Great White Hunters.

Peter Ward's Ottawa Viewpoint...

Canadian Comment

OTTAWA — (SP) — Within the next few days Canadians will be hearing a great deal from the Federal government about the dangers of drinking. The Department of Health and Welfare is mounting a campaign from now until the end of the year aimed at warning the "typical" drinker of the hazards of alcohol.

The ads on radio, in newspaper, magazines, and weekend papers will cost Ottawa $600,000 in three months, and if the program works, it will likely be extended into 1977.

Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde has made no secret of his feelings about both tobacco and alcohol. He's worried about the effects of both drugs on the health of Canadians and he's concerned about the economic costs - particularly of alcohol. Last mon days, health care, and other related things chalk up a bill of more than a billion dollars annually because of alcohol consumption.

Lalonde, though, hasn't conducted his campaign so far with the finest of finesse. He was pretty embarrassed last year over accepting a ride to the Middle East on board the Seagram's executive jet, and he pulled another boner earlier this year at a meeting with provincial liquor boards.

At that meeting, Health officials told provincial liquor officials that Ottawa would soon require all alcohol - liquor, beer, and wine - to carry a label warning that the contents are dangerous to the health of the drinker Ontario and Quebec told Ottawa that would mean the end of the rare wine stores in both provinces, and likely a drastic reduction in the quality of wines imported Can you imagine France's Chateau Margaux agreeing to a "dangerous to your health" label on one of the finest vintage wines?

Lalonde's department had the good sense to hastily withdraw that dictum, but the anti-alcohol campaign still plans to make no difference between beer, wine, and liquor.

The government is two-faced in another aspect of its program to reduce drinking, as well. Last year Ottawa tax coffers were swelled by $130 million just on the excise tax and duty for beer and booze alone. Add the profits to Ottawa from wine, and the 12 percent sales tax, and you'll find the federal revenue from booze is more than $1 billion.

Then there are the provincial governments. They charge tax varying from 40 per cent to 130 per cent, depending on the province and product, calculated after the federal rake-off has been applied. Chalk up another billion at least.

In view of the financial facts of life on liquor sales in Canada, one can be forgiven for looking somewhat cynically at the great anti-drinking campaign.

Investment tax credit

Farmers can deduct five per cent of some investments in buildings, machinery and equipment from their 1975 income tax.

The investment tax credit scheme announced in the federal budget last June is in effect for 1975, 1976, and 1977 tax returns.

The tax credit applies to most items in a farmer's capital cost schedule purchased between June 23, 1975, and July 1, 1977. Five per cent of the capital cost of new items can be deducted directly from tax payable.

Obituary

JIM FISHER

Jim Fisher was born on August 14, 1919 at Athabasca. He passed away at his home in Whitecourt, Oct. 16, 1976. He was raised in the Athabasca area and lived there until joining the army in 1939. He served overseas for 5 years. After his return, he worked in various places until acquiring his own business in Tofield. He owned and operated the General Motors dealership in Tofield from 1958 to 1975 when he sold the business and retired to Whitecourt. He was married to Amanda Wallie in 1946 who predeceased him on November 11, 1973. He is survived by 1 sister, Madge Lahrie of Kelowna, B.C.; 2 aunts; 1 uncle; and many other relatives.

Funeral services were held on Oct. 20, from the Bardo Lutheran Church with Rev. Lokken officiating. Interment was in the Legion plot in the Tofield Cemetery. Hoveland Funeral Home of Camrose was in charge of all arrangements.

Anniversary celebrated

Over two hundred relatives and friends gathered at the Elks Hall in Camrose on Saturday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wenger on their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

The evening was spent in dancing with the "Travellers" orchestra playing.

Audrey Kosek was in charge of the guest book.

Later, a buffet supper was held in the dining hall. Seated at the head table were Stanley and Josephine with their attendants. One of the bridesmaids was unable to be present.

A three-tiered wedding cake decorated by Julia Boychuk, centred the table.

Master of ceremonies was Raymond Rokes of Ryley.

Presentations were made by Anthony Wenger, on behalf of the family, and Bob Kerr for the community. Stanley and Josephine expressed their thanks to all who came.

Among the many guests present were their sons, Jerry, Anthony and Michael also daughter-in-law, Judy, Stanley's sister, Sister Christina of Winnipeg, and brothers Joe of Camrose and Steve of Edmonton, Josephine's mother, Mrs. Wiczenkowich of Mundare, and other relatives from Alberta.

½ SECTION—10 miles south of Ryley, 120 acres m/f cultivated, older home and buildings. Asking $98,000.

Ask for higher rates on power

Calgary Power Ltd. applied on Monday to the Alberta Public Utilities Board for rates to be increased during the coming two-year period of 1977 and 1978. The company will request permission for interim rates to be effective January 1, 1977. The average increase of 14.3 per cent will mean $2.40 added to the monthly bill of residential consumers.

Calgary Power president Marshall Williams stated, "the significant increases in costs of providing units no. 3 and no. 4 at the Sundance thermal plant, which were built to meet current consumers needs, is the major reason behind the application. These units were constructed over the past several years when there was very high inflation. Under present regulations in Alberta it is only after the commissioning of these units that the costs are charged to consumers."

Calgary Power's application in covering the two-year period of 1977 and 1978 indicates a need for a further increase late in 1977 and once in mid-1978.

Public hearings by the Board will be held during the next 18 months to test the company's evidence and allow intervenors to submit evidence for the Board's consideration as they reach a decision.

Élan® '77

The fun starts at the price.

When you find out how little our Elan costs compared to other snowmobiles, you've got to laugh.

Because for that low price, you get a real snow machine.

One that's light in weight and easy to handle.

And one that spreads that light weight out over a full-size snowmobile track for easy going, even on fresh, deep powder snow.

There are two Elan snowmobiles for '77. A 250 twin and a 250 single.

See them at your Ski-Doo dealer's, now. And put some fun back in your winter.

ANTI—SOCIAL EXCUSES

21 October, 1976
Parkland, Viking

Dear Editor,

It seems quite evident that the average person has but two basic interests in life Their family and their business. I knew of several, when they began to raise a family, expressed strong interest in the social side of life and the part we all should take and where they and their children would fit in

But, when their children started to make fast growth, they forgot the part they were going to play in helping the kids to fill a wonderful gap in the social-life of the community

But I have been forced to recognize that the dope-user too often loses interest and turns their attention to poisoning the pure air that God makes for all mankind with nicotine and associate vapors

For the youth,

Geo.G. Abernethy

Meet the staff at Ryley pool

Five people, three of whom are instructors, while the other two are headed in that direction, are responsible for the safe operation of Ryley's new enclosed swimming pool.

Beth Cherniawski heads the staff as pool supervisor. Beth has been an instructor at Worsley, Edmonton, and Olds. She is a graduate of Jasper Place Composite High School in Edmonton and has completed two years in the Physical Education Program at the U of A. After spending some time in Ryley, Beth plans to do a bit of travelling before returning to university to complete her education.

Beth's qualifications for her position shows her to be the holder of the bronze medallion, bronze cross, award of merit, and she has passed senior resuscitation, leaders' course, dual instructors' course, a pool manager's course, and she is a national lifeguard.

Connie Lambert is the senior lifeguard-instructor. She has been a senior lifeguard-instructor in Redwater and managed the Whitecourt pool during the past summer. She just graduated from Redwater High School in June of this year. While planning to continue in aquatics, Connie wants to travel and eventually she plans to study nursing, specializing in pediatrics

Connie's qualifications include the bronze medallion, bronze cross, senior resuscitation course, leaders' course, dual instructors' course, and she also is a national lifeguard

Don Lien is a lifeguard and instructor on a part-time basis, as he presently holds down a full-time job

Don is from Ryley and holds a bronze medallion. His plan for the future is to continue his present employment with Custom Maintenance Consultants in Holden while doing some farming and pool work in his spare time.

Tanya Nordby is still going to school in Ryley with her work at the pool (cashier) being a special credit project

She is currently taking her bronze medallion and future plans are to move into the field of nursing, with future expansion as a social worker or working with retarded or handicapped children

Darcy Romaniuk of Ryley is also still a student, with his employment at the pool, as a cashier, also being a special credit project

Darcy is just a beginner swimmer, with his plans for the future being a bit indefinite at the moment, as he is wavering between a farming career or being a millwright.

Pool packed

Attendance at the pool in Ryley has been outstanding since the pool first opened its doors, unofficially.

Between one hundred and one hundred and ten persons visit the pool each day, to partake of lessons, special programs, or to enjoy public swimming.

At the present time, 225 people are enrolled in various swimming lesson programs, at different levels with all categories being fully booked.

Red Cross lessons being offered include pre-beginner, beginner, junior, intermediate, and senior courses.

Also being offered is the bronze medallion course, ladies' learn to swim, adult learn to swim, diving, and [illegible] and [illegible] courses.

Saving a life

It's not always possible to get a drowning victim to dry land immediately so it's important to know how to apply mouth to mouth resuscitation while in the water. Under the direction of Don Lein, Neil Rokos is about to demonstrate on Trevor Jeffrey. —The Mercury Newsphoto

Breath of life

One of the most important things taught during swimming lessons is how to save someone's life.

Very important in this regard is mouth to mouth resuscitation. Kerry Reil applies what she has learned to Carol Jensen while instructor Connee Lambert looks on critically. –The Mercury Newsphoto

Victim rescued

One of the staff members at Ryley's new swimming pool quickly learned the value of being able to swim, when he nearly became the pool's victim.

Darcy Romanish went to work at the pool as a cashier and didn't know how to swim.

Despite this lack, he readily joined other staff members for a dip one day after work and became the guard's first rescue.

Darcy decided to try a dive and jumped off the lower of two diving boards, and very nearly didn't come up out of the water.

Quick action by Connie Lambert is credited by Darcy, with saving his life.

Darcy learned a valuable lesson from the event, which had lead him into other fields of learning, as he is now taking swimming lessons.

The other lesson learned from this event is that Ryley's swimming pool staff is quick to react to emergency situations.

Life savers

Don Lien and Connie Lambert know exactly what to do if an emergency should arise at Ryley's new swimming pool. Don is ready to do whatever is necessary while Connie prepares to toss a life saver to a victim.

High jumper

One of the pleasures of going to a swimming pool is to jump or dive into the water, and if you can do it from the high diving board, all the more fun, as this young lady illustrates. Later on, she may be able to dive instead of having to jump, as diving lessons are being given at Ryley's new indoor pool.

District news from Ryley

Lena Reil

Sverre Kongsrud is a patient in the Tofield Hospital.

Bob and Debra Cross visited their folks in Ryley and district over the weekend.

Terry Grier and Gary Vergette called on Barbara Solberg one day last week.

Ted and Edna Gjevre of Camrose were Ryley visitors on Monday.

Plans are being made for the farewell coming up on Nov 13 at 8 p.m. Ladies are reminded to bring lunch.

Selmer Hesnes, known to many in Ryley district, is coming along nicely after undergoing hip surgery in University Hospital, Edmonton.

On Friday, a trip was sponsored by the Recreation Board for the senior citizens with Val Charteras and Shirley Greenwood in charge.

There were five from Tofield and twenty-seven from Ryley who went by bus, driven by Jim Ingram, to Fort Edmonton. They toured the provincial Museum which was most interesting to all. They had their lunch at the Fort. On their return, they stopped at East Edmonton Co-op where they all enjoyed a delicious supper before returning home.

On Hallowe'en, the little ones truly enjoyed their visit around town, tapping on doors and shouting "trick or treat", receiving their treats with smiles and a strong, thank you.

Antoni Podruzny is out and around after spending sometime in the hospital.

Mrs. Barbara Solberg is living in her mobile home in Ryley.

The Ryley and Tofield Junior High played their volleyball games in Ryley with Ryley girls winning 4 out of 5 and the Ryley boys beating 2 out of three against Tofield on Thursday.

Jack and Leona Stumbo had a birthday party for Alf Anderson on Saturday night with Susan Stumbo, Harry and Myrtle Krasowski attending. His daughter brought him a lovely birthday cake. He was also a guest of Jack Stumbo's on Sunday.

Did You Know

It's estimated that the trachodon dinosaur had about 2,000 teeth? Some smile!

That with Winter on the way and hazardous road conditions to come, it's time to think about new snow tires with hundreds of "teeth" that "bite" into snow and ice . . . help you to drive safely in stormy and slippery weather?

COUNTY OF BEAVER No. 9

School and School Bus Operations During Storms

1. Schools in the County of Beaver will operate on all regular school days. Should school buses not operate due to hazardous road conditions, teachers, town pupils, and rural pupils who can be transported safely to school by their parents will be expected to attend.
2. Should an over-night storm cause blocked roads or the serious danger of blocked roads, school bus runs will be cancelled. Radio messages prior to 7:00 a.m. and thereafter will inform parents of the cancellation. Radio station CFCW (Camrose) will broadcast messages.
3. Should it be necessary to send pupils home by school bus at some time during the school day because of stormy conditions, these procedures will be followed:
   1) The Principal of the school has authority to send school buses home at any time during the school day.
   2) Radio station CFCW will broadcast messages that rural pupils are enroute home.
   3) Parents, school bus drivers and others who are informed on road conditions are asked to telephone the Principal, the County Councillor or the County Office at Ryley should they suspect that stormy conditions will block roads.
4. Road and weather conditions vary considerably throughout the County. For this reason, each school will operate independently under this procedure. It is possible that morning runs may be cancelled at some schools and not at others. Similarly, buses may be routed home during the school day at some schools and not at others.
5. Parents are reminded that it is their right to decide whether or not their children will get on the bus in the morning should conditions be stormy or hazardous.
6. Please be certain that all pupils are dressed adequately warm each day. A school bus can become stranded on any given day due to road conditions or mechanical breakdown.

The Homemaker

1 just celebrated another birthday and while I'm a few years away from age 65 and retirement, I did get to thinking about it. The retirement years are something we can all look forward to. It sounds so pleasant to have all the time in the world to do what we want.

Unfortunately, retirement may not be a pleasure. Too many people find that time drags and life is boring. Having all the time in the world to do things may mean they do nothing. It illustrates the fact that we need to prepare for retirement, right now, at whatever age we are.

People who are active physically and mentally tend to enjoy retirement more. Take an interest in life, in people, in every facet of living. Look for some activities that can be carried through all of your retirement years.

Look for ways that you can contribute. Other people have a wealth of experience and knowledge. Your community needs this experience. Perhaps you could tutor a child with reading problems, or prepare a study on crime or community development.

What can you contribute?

The following simple rules may help you plan your retirement:

1. Keep active with purposeful pursuits.

2. Cultivate enthusiasm. Add life to your years, not years to your life.

3. Don't look for recognition. It will come through a job well done.

4. Keep young by your actions. They will attract young friends who will reinforce your youthful outlook.

5. Allow time for creative activities and hobbies.

6. Radiate optimism. Don't resort to petty complaints.

7. Prepare ahead of time. It takes so little effort and pays many dividends in later years.

Remember, you don't have to fill every working hour with activity. You have earned a rest. You have a right to relax. You can afford to be flexible in your plans. You don't have to follow a schedule. You're retired!

Recreation Report

by Val Charteris
Senior Citizens' Theme

On October 22 and 29 respectively, 50 senior citizens from the county took part in tours to Fort Edmonton Park and the Provincial Archives Museum. A bag lunch was taken by each, and eaten on the bus. The weather was rather "nippy" to be sitting around outside.

An ideal time to view the Fort, would be in the summer months. At this time, 1885 street will open, old fashioned bread will be made and the bustle and bustle of life would remind one of the olden days.

The Archives Museum was very interesting. The Indian, Habitat, Geology, Archives, Artifacts, and Wildlife Galleries were viewed. One could go through the Museum several times, and still find some new points of interest.

On the whole, the tours went over very well and everyone enjoyed themselves. Where would you like to go next?

Archery and Instructors Keep Fit Classes - Still Open

These classes are still open for registrations. Archery is beginning Thursday, November 11, from 8:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m. in the Ryley gymnasium. Registration fee: $6.00 per person.

The instructors Keep Fit classes are commencing November 12 and 13 and November 27 at the Bruce School. Please contact the Regional Recreation Office for details and registration.

Passengers Also Jean Course

A two-day Blue Jean course will be held at the Lindbrook Hall. The first day of instruction will be held Sunday, November 14, from 2:00 p.m. - 4:30 p.m. The second day will run from 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. Sunday, November 21. Please bring your sewing machines on the second day. Registration fee: $5.00 per person.

Monte Carlo.
It's time to get personal.

When we introduced Monte Carlo there wasn't any other car like it in its class. Now, there are 14. But there's one thing that's still outdated each one in the group. For 1977, Monte Carlo features a new Mark series design. The big 5 litre V-8 engine and Turbo Hydra-matic transmission are standard. And when it comes to handling the road, well, some people insist that's why Monte Carlo is so popular. Now for that final little touch of distinction, a new Mark series interior has been designed for 1977. The interior is not just roomy, the way you'd expect it to be. 1977 Monte Carlo: personal luxury that ought to be considered, when you've reached a point in your life when you wouldn't consider anything less.

These figures are estimates based on Transport Canada approved test methods for a 305 cu. in., 2-bbl V-8 automatic transmission and the standard axle ratio.*

Overture opens Tuesday

Camrose Overture Series launches the 1976-77 season on Tuesday, with the opera "La Traviata."

The gala evening will begin with an Italian dinner party hosted by Paul Charlebois at Convocation Center. Following the dinner, the Canadian Opera On Tour, with the Canadian Opera Orchestra, will perform Verdi's opera "La Traviata" based on the play "La Dame aux Camelia" by Dumas.

The cast of eleven is headed by Barbara Carter as Violetta, with Paul Frey as Alfredo and Jonas Vaskevecius as Giorgio, Alfredo's father.

The Overture Concerts 1976-77 includes three return engagements by outstanding artists. January, February and March of 1977 will be the respective months for the performances of the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra, the delightful and captivating story-teller Philip Hanson, and the brilliant and entertaining pianist Mac Frampton with his trio.

Season membership tickets to the Series are available at the box office at Eaton's and at the door. Tickets for the Italian dinner on Tuesday must be purchased in advance, and are available at the box office until 6 p.m. on Saturday.

Horse club holds meet

The fourth meeting of the Ryley Holden 4-H Horse Club was held at the Don Foss farm, on Oct. 24, with 13 members attending.

The business part of the meeting was held in the loft of the barn with Linda Mackay as chairman. The old business discussed was the success of the bake sale in Ryley. For new business, it was decided to raffle a hand-made quilt before Christmas. The quilt was made by Lillian Hasey.

After the meeting was adjourned, there were demonstrations of proper methods of leading, turning and standing a horse. There was also a demonstration on mounting and dismounting. Later there was a short trail ride, due to the cold weather.

Rev. Fosses brother, George Widdifield of Yorkton, Sask., led the way on the trail ride.

An enjoyable wiener roast was held later.

The next meeting will be held at the Holden School on Nov. 8th at 8:00 p.m. All members are urged to attend.

by Elaine McMann and Lynda Watt

Kangaroo court was the highlight of the initiation.

The grade sevens at Tofield School were accused of crimes by Brenda Williams and Jim Warner. Punishments were then given out by Debbie Delisle and Michelle Erickson.

Lunch for everybody was prepared by the 8A's and served by the 8B's.

Everyone enjoyed the events of the initiation.

Final rites for George Sandstrom

George Sandstrom was born on December 3, 1905 at Ryley, to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Arvid Sandstrom. He passed away in Camrose on October 9, 1976 at the age of 70 years.

He was united in marriage to Lena Andersen on March 20, 1932. They farmed in the Ryley area until 1956 when they moved to Camrose, where Mr. Sandstrom resided at the time of his passing.

He was predeceased by his mother in 1967, a brother, Herbert in 1958, his father in 1954 and a grandson in 1967.

He leaves to mourn his wife, Lena; two sons, Leo of Edmonton, and Dennis of Camrose; 1 daughter, Mrs. Hazen Ewasiuk of Vernon, B.C.; 9 grandchildren; 1 great-grandchild; 1 sister, Mrs. Florence Savage of Bruce; and 1 niece, Mrs. Lorrain Fredericks of Bruce, as well as a host of other relatives.

Funeral services were held on October 12, from Burgar Memorial Chapel in Camrose with Rev. Begalke officiating.

Pallbearers were Jack Murray, Ted Gjerde, Mel Gunnerson, Donald Erickson, Marvin Moen, and Irvin Pfaffenbach.

Interment was in the Ryley Cemetery. Burgar Funeral Home of Camrose was in charge of all arrangements.

CARD OF THANKS

Sincere thanks to all our relatives, friends and neighbors for all their kindness and sympathy cards, memorials and flowers sent to the house during our recent bereavement. Thanks to Dr. Smith and nurses and staff of the second floor of St. Mary's Hospital for the wonderful care given the late Mr. George Sandstrom, our husband, father and grandpa during his recent illness. A special thanks to those who helped serve lunch at the house. Also thanks to Rev. Begalke, the Pallbearers and Burger Funeral Home.

News from Ministik

Mrs Jim Reddick

The masquerade dance held on Saturday evening at the hall was a most successful affair. The majority who attended were in costume and the judges found it a difficult undertaking to pick out the best in the different categories.

In the most original class, Brian Somervs of Kingman was winner for men, dressed as "Miss Ministik 1976". Norma Somers, also of Kingman, dressed as a little old man, was winner for the ladies.

Karl and Herta Schwuchow were winners of the "best dressed couple," posing as a "Sioux" and "Senorita."

Most comical couple were Gary Winter and Randy Lawrence of Edmonton, as a doctor and his patient. Lorne Pradine, dressed as "Halloween," was winner for the original men's costume.

A buffet supper was served after the judging. Margaret Jeske was convener of the affair.

Many trick and treaters visited on Sunday evening, some entertaining by singing or dancing for their treats.

Mrs Katie Williams of Fort Nelson, B.C., and her daughter, Carol Lucas of Edmonton, were Friday visitors with the Andrew Fergusons.

The annual Ladies Club banaar will be held on Nov 5th at 8:30 p.m. There will be homebaking, handicrafts, sewing, and candy for sale and later 12 games of bingo will be played. This all will be followed by lunch.

The regular meeting of the Crafts Centre was held on Oct 25th. It was reported that the gas line is up to the building, ready to be installed. November will be election time, when a new slate of officers will take over.

The annual meeting of the Hall Board and Community League will take place at the November meeting in the hall. All are asked to be in attendance. Election of officers will take place.

Grant and Gloria Pearrice returned home on Thursday evening from a three week vacation in Yuma, Arizona.

Mr. and Mrs. William Usher were Sunday afternoon guests of Mrs. J. George. Mrs. Dorothy Willmore paid a visit on Tuesday evening.

The Keith Wittigs are kept very busy on Saturdays in their glass shop in Tofield. Everett Wittig takes care of things through the week.

The Homemaker

Ilga M Mahaney

I noticed that there are some wearing courses planned in the County this winter. Some of you may be interested in dyeing wool with natural dyes. This article by Betty Birch, D.H.E. at Stettler tells you how to do it.

Natural dyeing can be an exciting pastime and a good outlet for your creativity. Many natural materials provide an exciting array of beautiful colors.

Natural fibres such as cotton, linen, silk and wool can all be dyed for use in embroidery, weaving, rug-making and for wall hangings, and a dye can be obtained from almost any natural material.

Golden-rod, dandelions, marigolds, asters, poplar leaves, berries, carrot tops, tomato leaves, saskatoons, chokecherries, rhubarb roots and onion skins all provide interesting colors. Unlike chemical dyes, where the colors may clash, the colors obtained from natural materials blend together.

Roots and barks are richest in color when the sap is rising. Flowers when they are in full bloom and berries, when they are fully ripe. Different shades can be obtained, depending upon the time of year, the soil and climate conditions.

The dye material should be cut or chopped up to release the color. Then covered with water in a large pan (not aluminum). Roots and bark will release more color if soaked overnight. Simmer the dye material for 15 to 30 minutes. With some materials it may take up to two hours to extract all the color. Cool the solution and strain the liquid off.

Some dyes color well on their own, but most require a chemical substance called a mordant to help fasten the color to the fibre. Common mordants are alum, cream of tartar vinegar, stannous chloride (tin) and ferrous sulphate (iron). A mordant can also affect the color. Onion skins, for example, give an orange-yellow dye with alum, bright yellow with stannous chloride and dark brown with ferrous sulphate.

A good method of dyeing is to use 2-quart glass jaisers and heat them in the oven. If you are using different mordants to get different colors, you can make up several jars of dye. Always label the jars so that you can keep track of your results, especially if you are experimenting.

Birthday celebration

On Oct 17th, over 100 relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Burkholder gathered in the Tofield Community Centre for a turkey dinner and birthday party in honor of "Grandma Lena's" 80th birthday.

A lovely cake, made and decorated by her daughters, was enjoyed by all.

She was born near Milford, Nebraska, and came with her parents, the Ben Laubers, to this district in 1918.

The Burkholders were married on Dec 18, 1918 and have always resided in the Tofield district.

They have 7 children, 25 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

News from Ministik

Mrs Jim Reddick

The masquerade dance held on Saturday evening at the hall was a most successful affair. The majority who attended were in costume and the judges found it a difficult undertaking to pick out the best in the different categories.

In the most original class, Brian Somers of Kingman was winner for men, dressed as "Miss Ministik 1976". Norma Somers, also of Kingman, dressed as a little old man, was winner for the ladies.

Karl and Herta Schwuchow were winners of the "best dressed couple," posing as a "flower" and "Senorita."

Most comical couple were Gary Winter and Randy Lawrence of Edmonton, as a doctor and his patient Lena Pradine, dressed as "Halloween." was winner for the original men's costume

A buffet supper was served after the judging Margaret Jenke was convenor of the affair.

Many trick and treaters visited on Sunday evening, some entertaining by singing or dancing for their treats.

Mrs Katie Williams of Fort Nelson, B.C., and her daughter, Carol Lucas of Edmonton, were Friday visitors with the Andrew Fergusons.

The annual Ladies Club banaar will be held on Nov 5th at 8:30 p.m. There will be homebaking, handicrafts, sewing, and candy for sale and later 12 games of bingo will be played This all will be followed by lunch.

The regular meeting of the Crafts Centre was held on Oct 28th It was reported that the gas line is up to the building, ready to be installed November will be election time, when a new slate of officers will take over

The annual meeting of the Hall Board and Community League will take place at the November meeting in the hall All are asked to be in attendance Election of officers will take place.

Grant and Gloria Pearice returned home on Thursday evening from a three week vacation in Yuma, Arizona.

Mr and Mrs William Usher were Sunday afternoon guests of Mrs S. George. Mrs. Dorothy Willmore paid a visit on Tuesday evening

The Keith Wiltgs are kept very busy on Saturdays in their glass shop in Tofield. Everett Wiltig takes care of things through the week.

The Homemaker

Opal M Holowaty

I noticed that there are some weaving courses planned in the County this winter Some of you may be interested in dyeing wool with natural dyes This article by Betty Birch, D H E at Stettler tells you how to do it

Natural dyeing can be an exciting pastime and a good outlet for your creativity Many natural materials provide an exciting array of beautiful colors

Natural fibres such as cotton, linen, silk and wool can all be dyed for use in embroidery, weaving, rug-making and for wall hangings, and a dye can be obtained from almost any natural material.

Golden-rods, dandelions, marigolds, asters, poplar leaves, berries, carrot tops, tomato leaves, saskatoons, chokecherries, rhubarb roots and onion skins all provide interesting colors Unlike chemical dyes, where the colors are clear, the colors obtained from natural materials blend together.

Roots and barks are richest in color when the sap is rising; flowers when they are in full bloom and berries, when they are fully ripe. Different shades can be obtained, depending upon the time of year, the soil and climate conditions

The dye material should be cut or chopped up to release the color Then covered with water in a large pan (not aluminum) Roots and bark will release more color if soaked overnight Simmer the dye material for 15 to 30 minutes. With some materials it may take up to two hours to extract all the color. Cool the solution and strain the liquid off.

Some dye color well on their own, but most require a chemical substance called a mordant to help fasten the color to the fibre Common mordants are alum, cream of tartar vinegar, stannous chloride (tin) and ferrous sulphate (iron) A mordant can also affect the color. Onion skins, for example, give an orange-yellow dye with alum, bright yellow with stannous chloride and dark brown with ferrous sulphate

A good method of dyeing is to use 2-quart glass sealers and heat them in the oven. If you are using different mordants to get different colors, you can make up several jars of dye Always label the jars so that you can keep track of your results, especially if you are experimenting.

Birthday celebration

On Oct 17th, over 100 relatives of Mr and Mrs Joe Burkholder gathered in the Tofield Community Centre for a turkey dinner and birthday party in honor of Grandma Lena s' 88th birthday

A lovely cake, made and decorated by her daughters, was enjoyed by all

She was born near Milford, Nebraska, and came with her parents, the Ben Lauberts, to this district in 1910

The Burkholders were married on Dec 18, 1916 and have always resided in the Tofield district.

They have 7 children, 25 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

CARDS OF THANKS

Jack Community of Ryley

Your warmth and kindness the day of Barnes funeral brought great comfort.

I would have liked to visit with each of you much longer, but there was no time. You have left a friend. Barnes has left memories, which we can cherish together to each and everyone for "everything" my sincere thanks

Ryley opens pool

Lillas Brown cut a ribbon and the Beaver Heritage and Agricultural Society's new indoor swimming pool in Ryley was officially opened last Wednesday night.

Ms. Brown was given the honour of officially opening the new pool as she was representing Alberta Agriculture, where she is supervisor of agricultural societies. A large crowd was on hand for the opening ceremonies which saw a performance by the Edmonton Aquadettes, and a bevy of "beauties" from Ryley, along with music being supplied by the Ryley School Band.

Following the opening ceremonies, all those in attendance [illegible] next door to the school gymnasium for coffee and donuts.

People in attendance at the opening were told that the enclosed pool had [illegible] a total of $185,000. The sum could have been quite a bit higher, but for the fact that a lot of work was done by volunteers

In all, a total of 213 people from Ryley and surrounding area donated 7,177 hours of work towards the construction of the pool, amounting to a considerable saving in the overall cost picture.

George Knuhalet, Reeve of the County of Beaver, told those in attendance that Ryley's new swimming pool was a source of envy to many other counties, and pointed out that such a project was feasible only when people were willing to work together for a common goal.

Darwin Park of Edmonton, a recreation consultant with Recreation Parks and Wildlife in the Provincial Government, brought greetings and congratulations from his department and the government.

Greetings and congratulations were also extended by George Baker, Mayor of Ryley and Howard Berke, president of the Agricultural Society.

As master of ceremonies for the evening, Robert Cram kept the official program going at a smooth pace, and started the evening by extending a welcome to all the dignitaries and the public for attending

Members of the Edmonton Aquadettes who participated in Wednesday's program were Jill Richards, Barbara Drever and Donna Burton while Ryley's "beauties" went under such names as Richelda Cope, Andrea Hinchuk, Jeannie Strilchuk and Keithla Walls.

Although the official opening was Wednesday night, the pool was actually been operating for some time under the supervision of Beth Cherniawski

The first round of swimming lessons was fully booked with a waiting list while public swims were all being well attended.

The next set of swimming lessons will commence on November 28th with registrations now being accepted on a "first come, first serve" basis.

Lessons to be offered will include pre-beginner, beginner, junior, intermediate, senior, adult, ladies' learn to swim, Mom's and tots', and diving.

Notice to the.
Share Holders of the County of Beaver Seed Cleaning Co-operative Assoc. Ltd.

Please take note of the upcoming annual meeting of the County of Beaver Seed Cleaning Co-operative Association Ltd

In recent years this seed cleaning plant has dropped from a Class One to a Class Three rating. Any further decline would cause the closure of this plant for cleaning of seed. From time to time many farmers in the County express their concerns in regards to this plant, however each year fewer and fewer people attend the annual meeting.

The Council of the County of Beaver wishes to advise and strongly recommend that All Shareholders attend the annual meeting on the date below

The Homemaker

IF YOU CAN'T REMEMBER, THEY DEAR MOM AND DAD:
The war is done, my task is through
But Mom, there's something I must ask of you.
I have a friend, oh such a friend, he has no home you see.
And so Mom, I would really like to bring him home with me.
DEAR SON
We won't mind if someone comes home with you
Perhaps he can stay a week or two.
DEAR MOM AND DAD:
There's something you must know.
Now please, don't be alarmed:
My friend was in a battle recently
And he has lost his arm.
DEAR SON
Don't be ashamed to bring him home with you
Perhaps he can stay a day or two.
DEAR MOM AND DAD:
But Mother . . . He is not just a friend, he's like a brother, too
That's why I want him there with us, and be like a son to you.
Before you answer, Mom, I really don't want to beg.
But my friend fought in a battle recently, in which he lost a leg.
DEAR SON
It hurts so much to say, but the answer must be no,
For Dad and I have no time for a boy who is crippled so.
So months went by and a letter came
It said our son had died,
And when he read the cause of death
The Sheet was . . . suicide.
Days later when the casket came
Draped in our Country's flag
We saw our son lying there
Without an arm or leg.

Landscaping a new home

Miss Arlene Chesney, Horticulture Liaison Officer with the Alberta Horticultural Association will be guest speaker at the November meeting of the Camrose Horticultural Society on Wednesday, Nov. 3rd.

The topic for discussion will be landscaping and foundation planting. This should be of particular interest to the many people who are in the process of laying out and landscaping their new home or Lagrowing an established one.

Miss Chesney has written a number of articles on topics related to the beautification of home grounds and gardening in general. Much of her work entails organizing and promoting various horticultural projects throughout the province. With her help the local society hopes to conduct a series of meetings in the new year, to deal with landscaping and beautifying a home site.

Everyone interested is welcome to attend. The meeting in the Administration building on the Fairgrounds at eight o'clock on November 3rd.

Challenge yourself to the game of archery!

Poe Pourri

by Lorraine Poulsen

Another day of this cold and I will be entitled to an opportunity to write my Masters in Cold-Curing.

It's not getting a cold that bothers me as much as does rinsing myself of that cold.

After three days, I can tell you which medicines contain pain relievers, fever reducers and vitamin C. I know about anti-histamines and decongestants. I know which of those reduces swelling in the nose tissues; which one reduces sneezing; and how all of them promise continuous relief.

And if they don't deliver, there's always the downhome remedies . . . hot mustard packs, thick chicken soup and of course, hot tea with lemon. . . and sweet rest.

I've tried them all . . . downhome and store-bought. I'm still sneezing. My nose tissues seem twice their normal size and even when the perspiration is running from my forehead, I am cold.

I've taken a "Little Softie" to me and my cold; sought the instant relief of nasal spray; drank plenty of liquids and chewed uncounted pills . . . still I back and bark, keeping all of downtown Poe awake until the wee hours of the morning.

I sniffed Chinese medicine and tried to wear a garlic ring to bed (I could've lasted the night, but Bob couldn't), and I have forced myself to swallow raw onions . . . still I sneeze and sniff.

Lately I have found myself rejoicing at the news that someone else has a cold. It makes it easier when you know you are not suffering alone.

But I am through. No more boxed medicine; enough of the kitchen cupboard cure. . . I have had it.

I am going to bed and before I sleep, I will give "thanks" that I am not Jimmy Durante.

WINTER FEEDING HORSES

A mature horse can withstand our harsh winters well as long as it is healthy, has a balanced ration and protection from wind and moisture. Both wind and snow severely reduce the insulation value of a horse's winter coat and cause severe stress.

Although a horse should never be allowed to become obese, it should start the winter with some surplus flesh. This excess flesh provides insulation against the cold and gives the horse a reserve of energy on which to draw during very cold weather. It is also important that a horse starts the winter free of such parasites as worms, ticks and lice. These can reduce its ability to grow a protective coat of hair and decrease its utilization of feed.

According to Doug Milligan, head of Alberta Agriculture's horse industry branch horses start acclimatizing themselves for winter in the early fall by growing a winter coat and by gearing up their metabolism for the quick production of energy. Once acclimatized, horses are subject to heat stress when worked hard in a warm area. If a horse is kept inside during the fall and winter, the acclimatization process is slower.

Even though trees and three-sided shelters consideraby reduce feed requirements, a horse still needs 20 to 40 per cent more feed during cold weather (below -10 C.) than it needs during warm weather.

"Diets for wintering mature horses can be simple", Mr. Milligan says. "A horse that is not working needs 16 to 20 pounds of good hay a day, supplemental vitamin A (30,0001. U-day), minerals (free choice calcium and phosphorus) and water." Once a day feeding is adequate.
